

STRAY TOASTERS (Epic - $4.75)
Mega-wierd mini series by Bill Sienkiewicz. Fully painted mag with good doses of mystery, horror, humour and psychological obsession. I'm not finished the first issue yet, but it is unlike anything you've seen before. Can't rate it yet, but I do recommend it.

UNCLE SCROOGE (Gladstone - $1.75) When was the last time you read a truly funny story? They're still out there. Often found in Gladstone's Walt Disney reprints. All their titles are excellent but I'm partial to Scrooge, or perhaps envious is a better word. Swimming in his money-bin; that's the life. Carl Barks' stories make up the bulk of these reprints as rightfully he should. Barks created Uncle Scrooge as well as Huey, Dewey and Louie; his nephews. Great Stuff for all ages.*

WASTELAND(DC - $2.50) An anthology series of horror stories. Usually, they hit the mark; but I don't think they do it enough for $2.50 a pop. **

THE INCAL (Epic - $13.95 or $16.95) A three part series of thick graphic novels collecting Alexandro Jodorowsky's and Moebius' Incal series. Re-translated and re-coloured, this is a science fiction adventure that opens with very innocent events and blossoms into an epic of universal proportions. Originally run in France in Metal Hurlant and then in the U.S. in Heavy Metal, its conclusion has just been published in France and will be seen in English for the first time in The Incal 3.*
