Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

You Pay Only if Cured

Expect No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write For It This Very Day

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there is no doubt in the mind of any man that he has

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

both the method and the ability to do as he says. Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostate trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poisoning, hydrocele, enlargement of testis, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as Rheumatism, Bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would mean, therefore, that this is the best interest of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address simply:

Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room 10, Detroit, Mich., and he will all immediately be sent this free.

This is something entirely new and well worth knowing more about. Write at once.

"That's all you know about it," Miller laughed. "If the road is built, I'll make by it. This is another story. As soon as I saw you were right about putting a railroad into the mountains I began to look around for some of that timber land. I didn't have long to wait, for the only man that holds much of it besides Colonel Barclay—Peter Mosely, whom Perkins fooled just as he did your father—came in. He was laying for me. I saw it in his eye. The Lord had delivered him to me, and I was duly thankful. He was a morsel I liked to look at. He bragged about his fine body of virgin timber. I looked bored, but let him run on till he was tired; then I said:

"Well, Mosely, what do you intend to do with your white elephant? You know it's not just the sort Barnum is looking for."

"He kind o' blinked at that, but he said: 'I've half a notion to sell. The truth is, I've got the finest investment open to me that I ever had. If I could afford to wait a few years, I could coin money out of this property, but I believe in turning money quick.'"

"So do I," said I, and watched him flit about in the frying pan. Then I said: "What is the price you hold it at?"

"I thought," said he, "that I ought to get as much as I paid."

"As much as you paid the Tompkins and Perkins? I said, with a grin. 'Do you think you could possibly sell a piece of land for as much as those sharks? If you can, you'd better go in the real estate business.' You'd coin money. Why, they yanked two thousand out of you, didn't they?"

"I don't really think Perkins had anything to do with it," he said. "That's just a report out about old man Bishop's deal. I bought my land on my own judgment."

"Well, I said, 'how will fifteen hundred round wheels strike you?'"

"I believe I'll take you up," he said. "I want to make that other investment. So we closed, and I went at once to have the deed recorded before he had a chance to change his mind. Now you see, I'm interested in the thing, and I'm going to help you put it through. If your folks want the loan, bring them in in the morning, and if we can manage our Yankee just right we'll get the money."

CHAPTER XV.

AFTER supper that evening the Bishops sat out on the veranda to get the cool air before retiring. There was only one light burning in the house, and that was the little smoky lamp in the kitchen, where the cook was washing the dishes. Bishop sat near his wife, his coat off and vest unbuttoned, his chair tilted back against the weatherboard. Abner Daniel, who had been trying ever since supper to cheer them up in regard to their financial misfortune, sat smoking in his favorite chair near the banisters, on top of which he now and then placed his stockinged feet.

"You needn't talk that a-way, Brother Ab," sighed Mrs. Bishop. "You're jest doin' it out o' goodness o' heart. We might as well face the truth. We've got to step down from the position we now hold, an' present way o' livin'." An' that's Adele. Pore child! She said to 'er last letter that she'd cry 'er eyes out. She was bent on comin' home, but 'er Uncle William won't let 'er. He said she'd not do any good."

"An' she wouldn't," put in Bishop gruffly. "The sight o' you an' Alan before me all the time is enough to show me what a fool I've been."

"You are both crossin' bridges 'fore you git to 'em," said Abner. "A lots o' folks has come out'n scrapes, wuss'n what you are in, ten to one. I ain't never mentioned it, but my land hairt got no mortgage on it, an' I could raise a few seeds to he'p keep up yore interest an' taxes till you could see yore way ahead."

"Huh!" snorted his brother-in-law. "Do you reckon I'd let as old a man as you are, an' no blood kin, stake his little all to help me out of a hole that is gittin' deeper an' wider all the time—a hole I deliberately got myself into? Well, not much!"

"I wouldn't listen to that nuther," declared Mrs. Bishop, "but not many men would offer it."

They heard a horse trotting down the road, and all bent their heads to listen. "It's Alan," said Abner. "I was thinkin' it was time he was showin' up."

Mrs. Bishop rose wearily to order the cook to get his supper ready, and returned to the veranda just as Alan was coming from the stable. He sat down on the steps, lashing the legs of his dusty trousers with his riding whip. It was plain that he had something of importance to say, and they all waited in impatient silence.

"Father," he said, "I've had a talk with Rayburn Miller about your land. He and I have lately been working on a little idea of mine. You know these are people who will lend money on real estate. How would it suit you to borrow $25,000 on that land, giving that alone as security?"

There was a startled silence, and Bishop broke it in a tone of great irritation.

"Do you take me for a plumb fool?" he asked. "When I want you an' Miller to dabble in my business, I'll call on you. Twenty-five thousand, I say! If I could exchange every acre of it for enough to lift the mortgage on this farm an' keep a roof over our heads, I'd do it gladly. Pahaw!"

There was another silence, and then Alan began to explain.

While he talked Mrs. Bishop sat like a figure cut from stone, and Bishop leaned forward, his elbows on his knees, his big face in his hands. It was as if a tornado of hope had blown over him, shaking him through and through.

"You been doin' this to he'p me out," he gasped, "an' I never so much as axed yore opinion one way or another?"

"I'd rather see you make money out of that purchase than anything in the world," said his son, with feeling.

THE CHRISTMAS DINNER.

In spite of the fact that the word dyspepsia means "bad cook," it will not be fair for many to lay the blame on the cook if they begin the Christmas Dinner with little appetite and end it with distress or nausea. It may not be fair for any to do that—let us hope so for the sake of the cook! The disease dyspepsia indicates a bad stomach, that is a weak stomach, rather than a bad cook, and for a weak stomach there is nothing else equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It gives the stomach vigor and tone, cures dyspepsia, creates appetite, and makes eating the pleasure it should be.
