sound. He should be able to ride and to swim.

A Scout must be willing and anxious to do any little job that turns up.

Map reading and sketching are most valuable acquirements, and every Scout should make a point of studying these subjects.

Practise the art of keeping hidden. Get a friend to go out with you, and then place yourself against different backgrounds and let him try to spot you. You will then learn which backgrounds suit you best.

A Scout should learn the positions of the most important stars and constellations, so that he can find his way at night.

Tenderfoot (prospective).—"Do you know how to prevent your trousers from fraying at the bottom?"

First Class Scout.—"Of course; get into Scout "shorts."

A LIBRARY FOR CLERGYMEN.

In his annual report to the Synod, Principal C. C. Waller, of Huron College, London, made the following recommendation:—

"It is further suggested that the College should be asked to provide a guest room, and to arrange that any clergyman of the diocese might come into residence for a week in order to make use of the library. In this way it is estimated that every six years every clergyman so desiring might have the intellectual refreshment of a week in the College, during which he could make use of the library and even attend some lectures. The actual cost to the College would not be excessive, probably $150 would cover the actual expenditure for room, light and meals. Your Committee respectfully recommend the granting of a sum of $150 by the Synod for the purpose of providing the extra money needed to give effect to these recommendations."

TIT FOR TAT.

"I'll ring for Norah to bring a fresh pitcher of water," said the professor's wife.

"You doubtless mean a pitcher of fresh water," corrected her husband. "I wish you would pay more attention to your rhetoric; your mistakes are curious."

Ten minutes later the professor said: "That picture would show to better advantage if you were to hang it over the clock."

"You doubtless mean above the clock," she returned, quietly. "If I were to hang it over the clock we could not tell the time. I wish you would be more careful with your rhetoric, my dear; your mistakes are curious."
