STRONG SPEECH BY A BISHOP

At a St. Andrew's Society banquet held in London, recently, Bishop Fallon was one of the speakers, and he delivered a notable and an inspiring address. The Free Press of that city thus records him:

"His Lordship was given an ovation on rising, and delivered a strong speech on 'Imperial Federation.' The future of the Dominion was one of vital interest. There were three outstanding possibilities. One was annexation to the United States. In his ten years residence in the American Republic, he had covered nearly all the country, and there found little or no sentiment in favor of annexation. The Canadian people were not 'avorable to it; in fact would strongly oppose that. Independence sounded well in the ears of some, but was impossible. The type of independence enjoyed by Cuba and Mexico did not appeal to him, and he would have none of it. With these two conditions impossible, nothing remained but imperial federation. This was the only of nations, with one great object in mind, the bringing of civilization and light to the nations of the world."

"There was always one dominant nation and it Great Britain did not hold that place it would be either Russia, Germany, China, Japan, or some other. The component parts of these empires would sacrifice themselves, of course, as sacrifice was necessary in the time or in the city. It was possible and feasible and he hoped that the day would soon come when this would be achieved. Canada should bear some of the burden of the empire. The time for excuses had passed. The development of the empire along the lines he suggested would be believed, make for the peace of the world and the stability of the other nations."

"His Lordship was given a great ovation on sitting down."

Well spoken, Bishop Fallon. More and more each day it becomes clearer that Johnny Canuck must help in the upkeep of the greatest domains under one flag which the world has ever seen.

TRIBUTE TO CANADA

Munsey's Magazine, a leader in influence and circulation in the United States devotes a notable special article in its Christmas number headed: "Canada's Great Strides." Here are some extracts:

"A little more than a generation back Canada began to bound forward. Among the big things she has accomplished during this time these stand out the front."

"Built one thousand miles of railroad each year."

"Increased her production of grain four hundred per cent."

"Added two millions to her population, setting a world's record in an increase of forty-two per cent."

"Increased the value of the output of her manufacturing industries one hundred and forty-two per cent."

"Increased her domestic trade one hundred and eighty-five per cent."

"Increased her foreign trade ninety per cent. during the past five years. The Dominion now stands third among the nations of the earth in its per capita trade."

"No better index of Canadian development during the past five years can be cited than the growth of the business done by its pioneer road the Canadian Pacific. Ten years ago this railway handled its traffic comfortably with 800 locomotives and 20,000 freight cars; now it has 2,000 locomotives and more than 100,000 cars for freight. Ten years ago its gross annual income was $37,000,000; in 1912 it was $160,000,000."

"There are many reasons for Canada's recent dramatic expansion in enterprise and institutions. Primarily, of course, it rests on vast national resources but Canada has had these vast resources throughout the centuries."

"Her real progress began with the wheels of enterprise set in motion by the building of her first transcontinental line, the Canadian Pacific. It not only turned loose vast sums of money, but gave to men of affairs and to men not yet arrived in the realm of affairs, the visions of a coming Empire."

"The whole country straightway felt the throes of a new life and back of everybody and back of everything stood a government with keen appreciation of the proper relations of government to the realization of such an imperial unity."

THE NEW HOBBY HORSE

Once more, dear Courier, we would suggest to you that you study the customs returns of your own country and tabulate for the information of yourself and of your readers the value of the foodstuffs which are annually imported into the Dominion from the United States. In this way you will be able to make clear the importance to Canada of the campaign for cheaper living to which the Liberal party is now committed.—Expositor.

Sir Wilfrid has evolved a new policy. To his already large collection he has added one more political hobby upon which he hopes to ride to victory once again. And as usual the Expositor has climbed on said horse with all the unthinking alacrity for which it is so noted.

"Free Food" is his latest slogan, and the Liberal press eagerly acclaim it a winner.

The balloon has gone up, but, filled with hot air it must come down—sooner or later.

In a characteristic speech delivered before a gathering of Liberals in Hamilton the other evening, Sir Wilfrid expounded his new policy of "Free Food" as the only and absolute remedy for the present high cost of living situation. He said it was the remedy, and the audience of enthusiastic Liberals evidently believed him for they say the cheering was great. But, by this time, many of his hearers will have experienced grave doubts that the remedy is genuine.

Laurier's speech on this occasion was, as has been said, characteristic. It was flowery, picturesque and full of glittering generalities, but not one fact, figure or argument as a solid basis for his new policy. Not that he cared a whit. He accomplished his purpose. He dazzled his admirers—he hypnotized them with his platitudes and his figures of speech. But that was all.

Once again Sir Wilfrid has proved himself supreme as a political opportunist. But his hardest task is ahead. He must prove his new doctrine to be true. He would do in Canada as the Democrats have done in the United States—remove the duties on food products entering the country. Has the price of food products been lowered in the States? Sir Wilfrid knows they have not. Why is Canada's surplus produce rushing across the line? Is it because prices are lower there? Yet Sir Wilfrid's argument is that if the duty was removed the Americans would buy up the Canadian produce, ship it home, and then send it back again to us at a lower price for what it can be purchased here.

Is that logical? Is it even sensible?

NOTES AND COMMENTS

December first and scarcely a touch of winter yet, but don't make any mistake, it's a comin'.

Wasn't it Premier Borden who proposed that a tariff commission should be continually at work, and wasn't it Sir Wilfrid Laurier who had his subsequent Senate kill the measure?

The amusing local Grit organ has the childlike idea that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has only to announce some new policy and presto, the Tories are knocked into oblivion. Reciprocity, for instance?

The Toronto Globe announces that Premier Borden has returned to the Capital with health "considerably" improved, but that it is "not yet completely restored." Too much so, in all probability to suit that organ.

The Roblin Government of Manitoba was another Conservative administration alleged by Grits to be going to the wall. Result in a by-election in that Province, Dr. Montague, the Tory, increased a former Conservative lead from 88 to about 400. The real trouble with the flummoxed Tories is that they refuse to flummux.

The Woodstock Sentinel Review, during the course of a careful article with reference to the East Middlesex by-election for the Ontario House, says:

"The Conservative candidate had achieved some measure of unpopularity in his own Township of West-Nissouri because of his attitude, as a member of the county council, to a local school question which had excited considerable local interest. This circumstance was expected to tell against him, and as a matter of fact it did."

While our cotem is talking so fervently about free trade in food decreasing the price, it might take notice of this special despatch from London, England, to the Toronto Globe:

"While this city's population has been steadily increasing, a marked drop in the number of marriages registered in November is a feature of the month's vital statistics. The high cost of living is apparently having a deterrent effect on matrimony."

SOME REASONS

Because it is wicked to waste.

Economy in this direction which is needed in every home.

There are useful ways of spending money and goods, so do not waste them.

To waste them is to put them to the poorest use.

To practise economy is an art in which everyone should strive to excel, for to do it well one must be master of this art.

All must live, and should live well, and an important question to decide is how to live the best with the least expense.

Many people purchase expensive articles of food and clothing, when less costly would be far better for them in many ways as well as being, in some instances, more serviceable.

Table expenses show the need of economy in most homes. For wise economy in this direction is favourable to health and happiness and includes the pocket also.

Information concerning the qualities of food, with the amount of nutrient they contain, and careful cooking, will reduce the household expenses considerably.

Old Grocer Griggs sold me some figs and called them fresh and sweet; but they were old and full of mold, they were not fit to eat. I gave the pigs those measly figs and even the porkers balked; each smelled the fruit with wrinkled snout, and acted badly shocked. Then I told Jones in caustic tones about those figlets stale, and he told Brown, who went through town distributing the tale. Oh, Brown told Smith, and he, forthwith, told Black and White and Green and they told Jinks, and he, methinks, told ten or seventeen. And so those figs I bought from Griggs kicked up a famous fuss, and people cried: "That blamed old snide will get no coin from us!"

Now, here my rede. Each crooked deed gets a spread abroad, till people hoot your name. You cannot beat a man or cheat, but that you suffer worst; and every time you sneak a dime, your fame's set back a verst. Thus Grocer Griggs, by selling figs unseemly and unfit, made seven cents, but many gents who dealt with him have quitted.

Don't Stay Gray! It Darkens So Naturally that Nobody can Tell.

When Artists Disagree

A certain eminent landscape artist sold a picture to a wealthy woman of Boston. The woman soon became tired of the picture because, as she declared, it lacked animation. So she went for another artist and asked him to paint a man or a woman on the road that ran through the middle of the picture.

The artist did so, and when he met the man who had painted the original work, he told him what he had done. "I had the temerity to alter a landscape of yours the other day," he said. "It was the one you sold to Mrs. W. She wanted a figure painted on it, so I added an old man walking down the road."

"Road! What road? There's no road in that picture."

"Why, yes there is," said the other, "There is a road that runs through the middle of the canvas."

"Why you fool!" indignantly cried the first artist, "that's no road! That's a river."

SAGE TEA PUTS LIFE AND COLOR IN HAIR

Don't Stay Gray! It Darkens So Naturally that Nobody can Tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days. Agent, Geo. Bowles.

NO OCCASION FOR HASTE.

A prominent bishop in the United States tells the following story:

"A young man came to me one day and said: 'Bishop, I want you to marry me on next Wednesday.'"

"Well, the night came, the church was crowded, and everything went off successfully. When the ceremony was over the young couple waited instead of leaving the chancel. So I held out my hand, shook hands with the bride and then held out my hand to the bridegroom. He had his hand in his trousers pocket, and as I stood with my hand out he said, somewhat impatiently, and in a tone that could be heard all over the church:

"Now don't be in such an all-fired hurry, bishop; I'm getting the money out just as fast as I can."

"And everybody in the church giggled."

"All right, young man; I'll marry you, I assured him."
