CHATHAM TO NEW YORK. The Waldorf Astoria, New York, Sept.

The Waldorf Astoria, New York, Sept. 6th, 1900.

The taste for travelling is becoming almost universal. There are not many who do not occasionally acquire the fever for "seeing the world and getting near all sorts and conditions of peoples and civilizations differing from their own." Such a state of affairs having afflicted me for some time finally culminated in a resolve to take a short European tour. After weeks of assiduous preparation during spare moments, in studying railway timetables, guide books, and books that other travellers have written, with happy anticipation of coming events, the hour of our departure has come at last. Grant Allen, a distinguished writer and traveller, whose guide books every one should read who visits Europe, says it is from things and not from words that one may learn most of what is truly useful. So, after much reading, we are now about to contemplate the things themselves. We hope to increase our knowledge of geography, of history, of art and of medicine, to get a deeper insight into human nature, to see and learn how the other fellow lives. We expect also to be amused as well as instructed, and perhaps get a glimpse of of the lighter side of life.

pect also to be amused as well as instructed, and perhaps get a glimpse of of the lighter side of life.

However, we are off. On a hot September afternoon we said good-bye to friends at the Grand Trunk Station and started to see a portion of the world. We were fortunate in having for travelling companions Mr. and Mrs. Langus Scott Gray, Baarding a and started to see a portion of the world. We were fortunate in having for travelling companions Mr. and Mrs. James Scott Gray. Boarding a Wabash sleeper we sped rapidly through the counties of Ontario washed by the waters of Lake Erie. After leaving Kent the country did not seem quite so prosperous until the Niagara peninsula was reached. The cornstalks in Elgin were not half the size of those in Kent, and for every one ear on the Elgin stalks there were from four to six on ours. Neither did the fruit crop compare favorably with that we left behind. Farmers of Kent, be happy and satisfied; you have the most magnificent heritage that Providence ever bestowed upon farmers. As eventide approached we crossed the Niagara river and met one of the most obliging of custom house officers. Anyone crossing the river at this point look out for "Jerry" and they will come across a most courte-ous official, providing, of course, they are not attempting to smuggle.

We reached New York this morning, none of us feeling very "fit," the heat during the night being intense, to-did not be the department.

none of us feeling very "fit," the heat during the night being intense, together with some reaction from nerve tension, left us all a little depressed. In crossing the ferry we observed the results of that recent terrible marine results of that recent terrible marine fire, with its awful consequences, at Hoboken. In driving to our hotel we passed under the Dewey arch which was raised with so much "pomp and circumstance" only a year ago, but now showing signs of rapid deterioration. We spent the day quietly, the heat in the city being extreme, and this palatial hotel, with its unequalled appointments, is delightfully cool and appointments, is delightfully cool and restful. We made final arrangements restful. We made final arrangements about our steamer, tickets, etc., which were rendered simple and formal, however, by the care and thoughtfulness of Mr. Rispin, the agent of the Cunard Line in Chatham.

The evening was spent at the Broadway Theatre, and we listened with great interest and pleasure to a dramatization of Lew Wallace's beautiful story of "Ben Hur." No play of recent years has created more pleasant comment, none has received so much comment, none has received so much publicity at the hunds of the press, and as a magnitudent scenic pageant none surely has deserved more of either. If there were more such plays and fewer Zazas and Saphos the stage would rest upon a much higher pinnacle than it does at present. After returning from the theatre we spent a pleasant hour in the roof garden of the Waldorf Astoria, sipping delicious iced lemonade, listening to the sweet strains of a Hungarian Band and viewing mighty New York with its none surely has deserved more of viewing mighty New York with its thousands of twinkling lights by mid-

ON BOARD SHIP. ON BOARD SHIP.

SS. Campania, Sept. 8th, 1900.

About one o'clock to-day we got our first glimpse of the Campania, the immense ship that is to carry us, we hope, safely across the Atlantic. One's first duty on board a steamship is to get your traps arranged in your stateroom, secure steamer chairs in a desirable location on deck and good places at the dining tables in the Saloon. This being done we ascended to the deck to take stock of the other passengers and their friends. The chief feature of a departing steamen the deck to take stock of the other passengers and their friends. The chief feature of a departing steamer is the parting adieus between friends and the beautiful and extravagant gifts of flowers which for several days after decorate the dining tables. All is bustle and excitement for a short time, but sharp at the appointed ime the huge ropes holding the steamer

LIFE ON THE OCEAN WAVE.

S. S. Campania,
Sept. 9th to Sept. 14th.
Life on board ship, when the weather is pleasant and one is not attacked with mal de mere is a grand loaf and is simply deligntful. Several days of the voyage, were ideal, warm, with fresh, invigorating be eezes and little or no unbtion of the ship. One's meals, are an all important item, and they are quite numerous and delicate. Breakfast is served from nine until ten o'clock; a cup of beef tea or chicken broth with biscuits are brought to en broth with biscuits are brought to you on deck at eleven-thirty; lunch at one o'clock; afternoon tea, consisting of tea, coffee, or chocolate, with ing of tea, coffee, or chocolate, with sandwiches, ginger snaps, light biscuits and candy, at five o'clock; dinner at seven o'clock, and supper at ten o'clock, if you are equ'l to it, concludes the day. To assist digestion, one walks considerably, chats and makes oneself agreeable to your fellow passengers, plays quoits, shuffleboard, whist, etc.

On Sunday, church service was held in the large saloon, Mrs. Gray took charge of the musical part of the services for which she, was warmly gom-

One day of our passage was foggy and we had an excellent opportunity of witnessing the extreme care exer-cised by the Cunard officers when danger threatens. There were three officers on the bridge, two sailors at the bow of the boat, and two at the mast head, all vigilant in their duties.

gennal and courteous gentleman, and an ex-secretary of the navy, under whose regime was initiated those pro-ceedings in the re-organization of the U. S. Navy, which were continued by his successors in that department, and finally resulted in the magnificent fleet of ships, which, in the hands of fleet of ships, which, in the hands of Dewey and Sampson, so easily destroy ed the Spanish fleets and as a result banished from the western hemisphere one of the most effete of the dying nations with all its rottenness and corruption.

Another gentleman who made himelf most agreeable to our party of Canadians, was the Hon. Charles Rus-sell, a genial and accomplished Irish-man—I hade the cursuity to ask him, as press comments have been con-flicting—about the notorious Mrs. Maybrick. He told me that Mrs. Maybrick was a wicked, scheming adulteress, and for that reason his father (Lord Russell) thought that the jury found her guilty, and that she was innocent of poisoning her husband. After Lord Russell became a judge he sent several memorials to the Home Office on her behalf and that he thought the Home Office should either have allowed the sentence oof the of the court to have been carried out or to set her free. He told me of the last illness of his illustrious father, who had been comparatively well iun-til a short time before his end. He was a man, however, who would com-plain very little, with great force of plain very little, with great days character and never allowed any slight indisposition to curtail his work. He did not consult his family doctor until five days before his death. The doctor, however, at once recognized the gravity of his condition, called in Dr. Broadbent, perhaps the most celebrated London physician, who diagnosed obstructions of the bile ducts, and as the only hope advised an operation, which was performed by Mr. Treves, when a large cancer of the liver was discovered, which could not be remedied. He rallied after the operation for a few hours, but soon felt that the end was near, called in the members of his family, bade them all an affectionate good-by and died with a prayer on his lips. Previous to the operation he made his will, and received the last rights of the Roman Catholic church, of which he was a most devout member. character and never allowed any

Another of our passengers who was quite popular with every one, was James Corbett, the famous prize fighter. He is an exceptionally kind good hearted, generous fellow. As a sample of his generosity, when asked to buy a program for the seamen's concert, which is held on every trip, the customary price being 25c, he at once gave $5. He is quite a gentlemanly looking man. I was quite surprised at his comparatively small hand. He has, however, a very long arm, are a great swing of his shoulders. With are apparently most powerful. THE WORLD AS IT IS CURES HUSBAND AND WALL Powley's Liquified Ozone, an antiseptic preparation of liquid oxygen, which kills the germs, should be in every home in Canada.

THE NEW SYSTEM OF TREATMENT.

Mr. Banks Cured by Ozone of a Fearful Case of Eczema in the Leg.

For twenty years I was terribly troubled with eczema in my left leg. My leg was swollen three times its natural size, and, apparently, mortification had set in. The skin had broken out in places, and matter was oozing from the ulcers. The leg was black and rawish red in parts right up to my hip, and the itching was frightful. My wife had been much benefited by Ozone, so I decided to give it a trial. It was not long before I noticed an improvement in my blood. The humors began to disappear, and soon my leg had resumed its natural healthy tone. I believe that Ocone has saved my life, and I give this testimonial for the benefit of others.

Ozone also cured me of bad kidney disorder and a most painful eye trouble. J. B. Banks, (Signed)

I was afflicted with bronchial and lung trouble for three years. The I was afflicted with bronchial and lung trouble for three years. The disease become firmly seated in my system, and I began to despoir of ever being well. I had the best medical advice in the city, and spent a lot of money in medicine. I became a complete wreck, physically, at the end of three years, and at night had to be propped up in bed with pillows, so that I could breathe. I had three hemorrhages of the lungs. My system was entirely run down, and I suffered exceedingly from female troubles. A friend of mine living in Muskoka told me to try Ozone, the new system of treatment, as she had been greatly benefited by it. I purchased one bottle, but did not get much relief. At the end of the second bottle I felt much improved, and when I had taken nine bottles I had quite recovered.

My husband did not know that I had taken Ozone, and thought that I My husband did not know that I had taken Ozone, and thought that I had stopped the doctoring altogether. He said to me: 'Didn't I tell you that you would get well when you stopped taking medicine?' When I told him about Ozone he was surprised, and thought that it would do his eczema good. He took some, with the result that it cured him.

We are both very thankful for Powley's Liquified Ozone, and consider it the best household remedy to be obtained. I have never yet been troubled with a return of my old complaint, and feel wonderfully well.
