MISCELLANEOUS

Lady Visitor—What has come of the little kitten you had here once?

Little Girl—Why, haven't you heard?

"No. Was it drowned?"

"No!"

"Lost?"

"No?"

"Poisoned?"

"No!"

"Then whatever became of it?"

"It grew up into a cat."

Chest Felt Raw.

"I caught a severe cold which made my chest feel raw and tight. I used Dr. Wood's No. 100 Fine Syrup which loosened my chest, healed the lungs, and made me perfectly well."

Neil McKay, Ripley, Ont.

"Maria," complained Mr. Stubbs, "there are only two buttons on my coat. Why don't you sew the rest on?"

"Because I like to see you in style, John," replied Mrs. Stubbs.

"Simple Maria?"

"Yes. The papers say two-button coats are all the go this spring."

Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup is sure death to the worms every time, but harmless to the most delicate child. It contains it's own cathartic, so there is no need of giving castor oil or other purgative afterwards. Price 25c.

New Barber—Should I talk to my patrons on any political subject?

Old Barber—Well, if a man wants a pompadour you might tell him a hair-raising story.

Painful Periods.

Women who suffer terrible pain every month can find ready relief by using Milburn's Sterling Headache Powders. They contain no morphine or opium, and leave no bad after effects. Price 10c and 25c. Don't accept common headache powders, they'll surely disappoint.

Hubbard (reading)—Old Mr. Hoppson was buried yesterday.

Wife—Why, is he really dead?

Hubbard—(Sarcastically)—The paper doesn't really say whether he is dead or not, it simply states that he was buried.

A Sustaining Diet.

These are the enervating days, when, as somebody has said, men drop by mistake as if the Day of Fire had dawned. They are fraught with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained; and this leads us to say, in the interest of the less robust of our readers, that the full effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla is such as to suggest the propriety of calling this medicine something besides a blood purifier and tonic,—say, a sustaining diet. It makes it much easier to bear the heat, assures refreshing sleep, and will without any doubt avert much sickness at this time of year.

Have you been suffering a good deal lately and feel an occasional twinge of pain round your chest? Are you short of breath, nerves unstrung, sensation of pins and needles going through your arms and fingers? Better take a box or two of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and get cured before things become too serious. As a specific for all heart and nerve troubles they cannot be excelled. A true heart tonic, blood enricher and nerve restorer, they cure nervousness, sleeplessness, nervous prostration, smoker's heart, palpitation of the heart, after effects of influenza, etc. Price 50c per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all druggists, or will be sent on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Other Side of the Library Orase.

A writer in that first class review the "Nineteenth Century," expresses some opinions concerning public libraries with which every thoughtful person must agree. He says:—"Many of the libraries—I speak of the smaller ones—are so completely under the thralldom of those who only seek such recreation as 'shilling shockers,' newspapers, and the ordinary comic stuff, that they cannot be regarded as unimpaired evils. Even where things are not so bad as this, there cannot be doubt that there is more than one great evil common to all these institutions. They encourage habits of reading for the mere purpose of killing time; they form and confirm the practice of intellectual dissipation; they introduce boys and girls, and half educated young men and women to poems and fictions which, though not actually immoral and warranting inclusion in the Index Expurgatorius, inflame their passions and imagination, and have a most disturbing and unwholesome effect; they place in their way, often with the most disastrous results, works on religious and moral subjects for the perusal of which they are not ripe. No one who keeps an eye on the casualties recorded in the daily papers can have failed to notice, not only with what increasing frequency the suicides of young men and even mere boys are occurring, but how often, in the letters and messages justifying with flippant sophistry their crime, we have simple testimony of the demoralization caused by the perusal of works never intended for youth, and which but for these libraries would not have come into their hands."

Says the Pittsburg Catholic: "It is said that the majority of graduates sink into hopeless obscurity, only the very few make themselves felt and known. Not a word of truth in this assertion. There are thousands of bright men and women graduates of schools and academies doing a noble work for God and country in their chosen avocations and in their peaceful homes. The great and noisy world may not prize their praises, but their names are cherished in the circles they influence, and the good they do is more lasting than the rant and flourish of graduates who wot not of, who have made of their education a stepping-stone for selfish ends."

The Western Workman says that there is this difference between the temperance and the total abstinence movements: "Temperance tells the drinker not to take the last drink; that it is that drink which makes him drunk. But he can safely take all up to the last. Total abstinence tells him not to take the first drink, and has absolutely nothing to advise regarding the others. Their respective strongholds are the two extremes of the debauch. Economy and efficiency are certainly on the side of total abstinence."

Catholic Students Present a Passion Play.

The recent presentation by the students of Santa Clara Jesuit College, California, of a passion play, written by Clay Greene, a graduate of the institution in the class of 1869, has been highly spoken of.

The drama is arranged into four "epochs" of two scenes each, telling the story of the life of Christ from the shepherd scene to the Crucifixion. The Saviour Himself does not once appear in the drama—his presence is indicated by a powerful white light.

Nor do Mary or any of the women appear at any time upon the stage. But the story is so familiar, the interest so strong, and the representation so powerful and absorbing, that the absence of the principal characters is said to produce a feeling of satisfaction rather than regret. The trial scene before Pontius Pilate is arranged in an interesting manner. The people are assembled, and great disorder ensues when Herod's refusal to interfere is read. The populace jibe at the disciples, who suffer in silence. Only by the bright light thrown from the prisoner's box is the presence of the Man-God made known. In vain Pilate appeals to the people to free Jesus; at last he washes his hands of the deeds, and orders the crucifixion.

The first half of the fourth "epoch" is the greatest part of the drama—the march to Calvary. The disciples are gathered in a garden as the procession passes on the other side of the wall. The audience can see the top of the cross, as it progresses slowly, borne by the unseen Master. Once it falls and then appears again above the wall and passes from view amid the cries and jers of the frantic multitude. Jesus now appears, acknowledges his wickedness, and leaves the stage to hang himself. The concluding scene is the interior of the temple at Jerusalem, near the ninth hour. The whole city is enveloped in a unnatural darkness and Calvary is powerless to dispel the fears of the people. He orders the Christians' arrest but the order is followed by terrific laughter and lightning and at the ninth hour the temple is rent and the fall of the walls discomposes the crucifixion on the distant hill. The scene closes with the blessing of Pilate by Peter when the Roman declares his sorrow, and the disciples predict the glory of Christianity and Rome.

A Protestant critic gives warm praise to the students who took part, and also says: "The drama throughout was elaborately staged, the costumes of surpassing elegance, and the scenery carefully painted. The treatment of the story was dignified and always reverent, a fact which the vast audience appreciated and showed by their refraining from applause throughout." At each presentation there were present Roman Catholics, Protestants and Jews, as well as a great number of non-believers, all of whom appreciated the intense dramatic character of the story, and listened to its portrayal with reverent interest."

Money for the rescue of children from slavery sometimes came in by concerts and musical entertainments which were given by the young rescued negro lads, who, under the guidance of Father Baur, had been furnished with European instruments, and formed a regular brass band. Visitors, especially sailors, captains of the navy, etc., dropped in their alms as often as they called at the school, and were witnesses of the cleverness and music with which the boys, who were instructed by Brother Felician in mechanics, repaired their damaged vessels. The Sallian, who often visited the establishment, availed himself of the labor of the inmates for various requirements. In a short time the missionaries had thus rescued about 170 children from slavery, and Father Horner had now to provide for them and to teach them. Three elementary schools, two for boys which were conducted by the Brothers, and one for girls, conducted by the Sisters, were built; after school time the ablest among the boys were instructed in mechanics and in different branches of various handicrafts, such as tailoring, carpentry, joinery, etc., the girls in the management of the household and the various duties of domestic life. The Sultan, who was very much pleased with the progress of the children, gave to the Fathers a grant of excellent land, nearly five miles in circuit, at Bagamoyo, just opposite Zanzibar, where later on the children destined for agricultural labor were established.—Illustrated Catholic Missioner.

The Good Counsel Magazine has the following:—"The dangers to which the young are exposed from bad literature are frequently pointed out by those who have their welfare at heart, but rarely are they advised of the perils equally great that lie hidden in the melodious songs of the day. One need only glance over a half dozen of these lurid sheets to find ample proof of the deadly risks to which the morals of the young are exposed. No one seems to pay any attention to the words of these trashy productions. If the air is catchy, they go and all else is overlooked. But, however little notice is taken at first of the sentiments thus set to music, their frequent repetition impresses them deeply on the mind, with the result that before the singer has lost its interest, the attention is fixed upon the words in the attempt to discover their meaning. Then it is that the evil seed bears fruit."

English exchanges record the conversion of Mrs. Napier Miles, wife of Colonel Napier Miles, who commanded the three regiments of Household Cavalry in South Africa, and who was made a C. B. in recognition of his services.

The funeral of Mlle. Bourgeois daughter of the President of the French Chamber, was the occasion of an imposing ceremony at St. Clothilde, Paris the other day. Mme. Loubet was present in a side gallery; Colonel Lamy represented the President of the Republic, and among others present were M. Fallieres, president of the Senate; M. Combes and the whole of the Cabinet, nearly every Senator and Deputy, the British, Russian, German and Italian Ambassadors, the academicians, members of the judiciary, the generals and admirals in Paris, besides a great number of distinguished writers and artists. After the Requiem was over M. Combes followed by the Ministers, debbed before the coffin, sprinkling the remains with holy water, according to the French custom. The interment was at Pere-Lachaise.

The Holy Father has appointed Very Rev. Thomas O'Dea, D. D., vice-president of Maynooth College, Bishop of Clonfert, in succession to the Most Rev. Dr. Healy now Archbishop of Tuam.

Cardinal Kopp, Prince Bishop of Breslau, has recently issued a rule in his diocese requiring all newly ordained priests to spend six weeks in a Prussian normal training college before entering upon the duties of the ministry, in order to obtain a practical insight into the whole system of primary education.

In 1899, and again in 1901, says the "Ave Maria," the priests who are attached to the Church of the Sacred Heart, on Montmartre, Paris, organized the monster excursion known as the "Men's National Pilgrimage to Lourdes." The third pilgrimage was set down for the present year, but for some month back there has been considerable doubt and uncertainty as to the possibility of proceeding with it. The missionaries at Montmartre have been expelled and among the few authorized congregations it was difficult to see which one would dare take the initiative and assume the responsibility of the undertaking. There is in consequence much satisfaction among the devotees of Our Lady of Lourdes at the announcement made in a late number of the "Messager du Sacre-Coeur" to the effect that the pilgrimage has been resolved upon and that his Eminence Cardinal Richard has accepted the presidency thereof.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys of the liver, and are a warning of an extremely hazardous neglect, so important in a healthy action of these organs. They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

"I was taken ill with kidney trouble, and became so weak I could scarcely get around. I took medicine without benefit, and finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the first bottle I felt so much better that I continued the use, and six bottles made me a new woman. When my little girl was a baby, she could not keep anything on her stomach, but she gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla which cured her." Mrs. Thomas L. Hill, Wallingford, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures kidney and liver troubles, restores the back, and builds up the whole system.
