

The Charlottetown Herald.

NEW SERIES

CHARLOTTETOWN, PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 10, 1907

Vol. XXXVI, No. 14

Herring!

Herring!

We have just received a quantity of very fine, large Herring, which we are offering in half barrels, pails and by the dozen.

Price, $8.40 per Half Barrel.

To those who desire to purchase, either two half bbls. to any on the P. E. Island way, but the two must go to the one address. We guarantee the quality to be good, otherwise they may be returned at our expense.

Eureka Tea.

If you have never tried our Eureka Tea it will pay you to do so. It is blended especially for our trade, and our sales on it show a continued increase. Price 25 cents per lb.

Preserves.—We manufacture all our own Preserves, and can guarantee them strictly pure. Sold wholesale and retail.

R. F. Maddigan & Co.

Eureka Grocery,

QUEEN STREET, CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I.

HARDWARE!

Largest Assortment,
Lowest Prices.
WHOLESALE and RETAIL

Fennel and Chandler

OAK BRAND TEA.

In order to introduce our Oak Brand Tea we will ship and prepay freight to any station or shipping point on P. E. Island an 18 lb. caddy, and if you are not satisfied in every way return at our expense, and we will refund your money. Cut this out and enclose $4.00 and mail to us.

McKenna's Grocery,

Box 576, Ch'town, P. E. I.

Enclosed find $4.00 for which you will send us a caddy of tea as advertised in this paper.

(Sign full name)

(And Address)

Students, Attention!

Rare Chance to Secure a College Education.

We have made arrangements that enable us to place within the reach of a limited number of deserving students, opportunities for securing, on easy terms, a classical or commercial education. A little work during the vacation season will secure this for the one worthily striving for such a boon, but who may not be in possession of sufficient money to realize his heart's desire. The facilities at our disposal enable us to offer a year's board and tuition at

St. Dunstan's College

to any three young men who will fulfill the necessary, easy conditions required. These may be beginners, or former students of the College who have not been able to complete their course. In addition to this we have at our disposal four scholarships at the

Union Commercial College

of Charlottetown] A full course in this excellent Commercial College may be won by any four young men or women, in town or country, who will fulfill the easy conditions we require. Whenever anyone satisfies the requirements in either of the cases enumerated he or she will be given a certificate entitling the holder to the educational advantages offered. A rare opportunity is here placed within reach of those desirous of acquiring a good education, and no time should be lost in taking advantage thereof. Only a little work is required in order to secure the coveted boon, and all can easily be accomplished during this summer's vacation, so that the winners may enter either college at the opening of the next academic year.

For particulars apply in person or by letter to the editor of the HERALD, P. O. Box 1288, Charlottetown, P. E. I.
June 20, 1906—tf

ROBERT PALMER & CO.,

Charlottetown Sash and Door Factory,

Manufacturers of Doors & Frames, Sashes & Frames, Interior and Exterior finish etc., etc.

Our Specialties

Gothic windows, stairs, stair rails, Balusters, Newels, Posts, Cypress Gutter and Conductors, Kiln dried Spruce and Hardwood Flooring, Kiln dried clear spruce, sheathing, and clapboards, Encourage home industry.

ROBERT PALMER & CO.,

PEAKE'S No. 3 WHARF.

CHARLOTTETOWN.

From Now

Till Spring

Your Overcoat will be the part of your dress by which the world will estimate what kind of a man you are. No man ever knows real comfort and satisfaction until he has an overcoat

Made to Measure.

Many who have their suits made to order have an idea that they can get what they want in a Ready-made Overcoat. But they are quite as objectionable as ready-made suits and show at a glance the lack of style and fit. We incorporate the very latest style ideas in our tailoring, and by only the best materials, which is a guarantee in itself. Before you buy a new overcoat give us a chance to show our new overcoatings and talk things over with you.

JOHN McLEOD & CO.

THE NOBBY TAILORS.

The Chinese Tongue.

Wenhoo, China, Dec. 4, 1906. "I am starting off tomorrow with Father Tisserand on a three weeks tour, during which time I expect to do much preaching as Father Tisserand's voice is in a poor condition. I shall not be at a loss for something to say, however, as I know several sermons by heart. Four of these are specially prepared; one on Mary Immaculate, which comes in handy for the Feast and throughout the Octave; one on Holy Communion which I hope will produce the fruit of love for our Blessed Lord; one on death and another on Hell, which may cause some salutary fear."

"I am beginning to love the Chinese tongue. I had no idea that it could render so forcefully even the most subtle truths of our holy religion, and in so clear and simple a manner. I can only say that it is wonderful, and the poor Chinese are not much to be blamed for believing that their language came from Heaven. I have only had a passing glimpse, I may say, of the language of the common people; so what depths of beauty must there be found in the written language, in the flights of the poets, and in their classics. The poor Chinese are sadly misunderstood by the modern world, but, taking into consideration conditions and circumstances, I have come to the conclusion that a nobler race never came from the hand of God. They have been too much the butt of those who know them not,—who fashion their ideas according to their shallow notions of civilization, making it to consist in a Pullman car, a tea party, or a full-dress ball. The Chinese are highly civilized and before long they will surprise the world by showing themselves equal, if not superior, to their scoffers, and to the creators of our much boasted modern civilization. From reports which come continually to our notice from abroad, such civilization should be more properly styled the degradation of poor mankind, as in the case of France at present,—the so-called 'elite' of society, etc. May God save China for such civilization and gain her over to His holy Church, to stand by Him in that evil day which must surely come upon modern society, preparing for his vengeance. 'Modern' is not the word for what can be traced back to the days of Sodom and Gomorrah. I believe the reign of anti-Christ is near at hand, when there will be a great falling away of the faithful; or rather a weeding out of the enemies of Holy Church now skulking in the ranks of the faithful. Let us hope that our mother-land will send us many intrepid soldiers of the Cross, to meet those evil days, and raise up a royal people that will be grateful to our Blessed Lord and make amends for those who trample His grace underfoot and are lost. I will employ my poor efforts by writing for this end, and place full confidence in God who will surely send us laborers in His own good time."—From a Canadian Priest's Letter to His Brother.

Mr. Furlong describes his first meeting with one of the White Fathers on the way through Central Barbary. Without seeing the Crucifix and hearing the French speech the American traveler would not have known the priest from an Arab merchant; for in matters of dress and harmless local usage, Cardinal Lavergie was fair to have the priests of his congregation like the people whom they would evangelize.

The details of Cardinal Lavergie's life are familiar—his generous sacrifice of the important Bishopric of Nancy for the obscure Sea of Algiers; his industrial colonies among the Arabs; his successful crusade against the last stronghold of human slavery, which, when he set forth, was furnishing half a million victims yearly; his opposition from the criminal element among the French population and also from certain officials. The great Cardinal knew that the greatest barrier to Christian civilization in his field of labor was Mohammedanism, and that the deadliest blow that could be dealt it was the abolition of slavery; to which its whole social structure had been built.

We are concerned here, rather, with the after-death influence of Lavergie in the work of the White Fathers, the congregation which he founded in 1868, the year after he took possession of the Sea of Algiers. He got recruits from the best blood of France. "Indoors for martyrdom," he wrote on the papers giving leave to a young missionary to exercise his priestly functions in the interior. "It is for this I have come," said the priest.

Mr. Furlong describes his visit to the novitiate of the White Fathers, eleven kilometers outside of Algiers, and the difficulty with which he secured even a little information regarding the heroic work of these missionaries—so fearful was Pere Michel of vain glory. Two work, religious and educational, spoke for itself in the training of the novices, their printing press and all the rest. Mr. Furlong, however, was persistent.

"But the expedition to Timbuctoo?" I queried. Pere Michel paused a moment and his eyes gazed thoughtfully at the Crucifix which he held in his hand. Ah, the expedition to Timbuctoo, monsieur, it is a sad story.

"It was the desire of our order to establish a station in the southwest Sudan, and so Pere Paulmier, Moncreff, and Bouchard started on their mission. They spoke Arabic well, for they had been living with the tribes in the Algerian Sahara, acquainting themselves with the language and customs of many of the desert tribes.

"South lay the great territory controlled by the Touaregs. Pere Paulmier and his associates occasionally came in touch with some of these nomads who stayed north with the caravans or entered the towns to trade. On several occasions the missionaries had dressed their wounds or sores. In return the Touaregs invited them to their homes in the desert and later gave them assurances of their protection and a safe conduct south, which they accepted."

"With Touaregs, Pere Michel?" I inquired in surprise. "Touaregs from the west of Iddi, I believe, monsieur." I knew the reputation these robbers of caravans bore from Lake Tehad to the Mediterranean, a reputation for all that is fierce, treacherous and cruel. I had run across them in the sands of desert towns down in Tripoli where they came to buy camels and dates. Tall, slender, cat-like fellows with a cloth—blue, black or white—covering the lower half of the face to lessen evaporation and to write, like other boys. He sat on, and long, close-fitted kaftans may be apt with his head or his hands, but how few parents see the aptitude in the right light! It ought to be considered and seriously cultivated. The tastes of youth may not always be indications of the future; they often change with circumstances and surroundings. But they are just as often unerring indications of the direction in which the child's truest success in the world will lie. If a boy play at swinging a censer when he is little, or enjoy the sight of burning tandles on a toy altar, it is not an infallible sign that he will be a priest. And yet the roary that young Newman drew on his slate when he was a boy doubtless meant something.—From "A Gentleman."

Heroes of the African Missions.

An interesting article in the February number of Scribner's Magazine is a narrative by Charles Wellington Furlong describing his visits and impressions among the White Fathers of North Africa. The article is illustrated by drawings and photographs made by the author, and is condensed as follows by the Boston Pilot:

Mr. Furlong describes his first meeting with one of the White Fathers on the way through Central Barbary. Without seeing the Crucifix and hearing the French speech the American traveler would not have known the priest from an Arab merchant; for in matters of dress and harmless local usage, Cardinal Lavergie was fair to have the priests of his congregation like the people whom they would evangelize.

The details of Cardinal Lavergie's life are familiar—his generous sacrifice of the important Bishopric of Nancy for the obscure Sea of Algiers; his industrial colonies among the Arabs; his successful crusade against the last stronghold of human slavery, which, when he set forth, was furnishing half a million victims yearly; his opposition from the criminal element among the French population and also from certain officials. The great Cardinal knew that the greatest barrier to Christian civilization in his field of labor was Mohammedanism, and that the deadliest blow that could be dealt it was the abolition of slavery; to which its whole social structure had been built.

We are concerned here, rather, with the after-death influence of Lavergie in the work of the White Fathers, the congregation which he founded in 1868, the year after he took possession of the Sea of Algiers. He got recruits from the best blood of France. "Indoors for martyrdom," he wrote on the papers giving leave to a young missionary to exercise his priestly functions in the interior. "It is for this I have come," said the priest.

Mr. Furlong describes his visit to the novitiate of the White Fathers, eleven kilometers outside of Algiers, and the difficulty with which he secured even a little information regarding the heroic work of these missionaries—so fearful was Pere Michel of vain glory. Two work, religious and educational, spoke for itself in the training of the novices, their printing press and all the rest. Mr. Furlong, however, was persistent.

"But the expedition to Timbuctoo?" I queried. Pere Michel paused a moment and his eyes gazed thoughtfully at the Crucifix which he held in his hand. Ah, the expedition to Timbuctoo, monsieur, it is a sad story.

"It was the desire of our order to establish a station in the southwest Sudan, and so Pere Paulmier, Moncreff, and Bouchard started on their mission. They spoke Arabic well, for they had been living with the tribes in the Algerian Sahara, acquainting themselves with the language and customs of many of the desert tribes.

"South lay the great territory controlled by the Touaregs. Pere Paulmier and his associates occasionally came in touch with some of these nomads who stayed north with the caravans or entered the towns to trade. On several occasions the missionaries had dressed their wounds or sores. In return the Touaregs invited them to their homes in the desert and later gave them assurances of their protection and a safe conduct south, which they accepted."

"With Touaregs, Pere Michel?" I inquired in surprise. "Touaregs from the west of Iddi, I believe, monsieur." I knew the reputation these robbers of caravans bore from Lake Tehad to the Mediterranean, a reputation for all that is fierce, treacherous and cruel. I had run across them in the sands of desert towns down in Tripoli where they came to buy camels and dates. Tall, slender, cat-like fellows with a cloth—blue, black or white—covering the lower half of the face to lessen evaporation and to write, like other boys. He sat on, and long, close-fitted kaftans in scabbards attached by leather bracelets to their wrists. "But it was a foid, Pere Michel, to have placed their lives in the hands of Touaregs from the Iddi Desert." "Ah, monsieur, the Arabs among whom they dwelt tried to dissuade them, but the possibility of reaching their long-desired goal, Timbuctoo, now seemed assured. So Monsiegnor Lavergie authorized their departure, and a little caravan of three missionaries and an escort of five Touaregs with camels and baggage began its perilous journey over the great burning wastes toward Timbuctoo. From the time when they passed beyond the sandhills their whereabouts and happenings were shrouded in the greatest mystery, and they disappeared as completely as though the earth had swallowed them up. No communication from them of any kind ever reached their friends here at Mission-Caree or elsewhere.

Items of Interest.

A Committee has been formed in Florence, the native city of St. Mary Magdalen de Pazzi, to commemorate the third centenary of her glorious death.

Irish exchanges chronicle the death of Right Rev. Mgr. William McCarty, P. P. V. F. of Dromore, County Down, Ireland, one of the most cultured and popular priests in Ulster.

A monument to the late Canon O'Hanlon, P. P. Sandymount, Dublin, has just been completed and placed over his grave in Prospect Cemetery, Glasnevin. It is in the form of a limestone Celtic cross, of artistic proportions, standing between eleven and twelve feet high. There is an inscription in English and Irish engraved upon the cross.

R. v. Henry Gibson, rector of Bolton-Sand, in the Diocese of Liverpool, England, who died the other day, at the age of eighty years, was sprung from a family remarkable for devotion to Holy Church. Three sons became priests, a fourth child became a nun, and she is still living, at the age of eighty-six years, in the Benedictine priory of Colwich, Stafford under the name of Mother Mary Gabriel.

A fact which is not commonly known is that Father Bernard Yagban, S. J., is the only English priest who has ever numbered King Edward VII. among his congregation. And the preacher shined none of his vigor on that notable occasion giving, indeed, a good many hard knocks to people not far removed from courtly circles. As one would expect, the king has a sincere regard for such an outspoken priest who has had the honor—almost unique among priests, again—of dining with his Majesty.

The Republic of Chile has nominated a resident Minister to the Pope in the person of Senator Rafael Errazuziz-Umeneta, some time Minister of Foreign Affairs and chief of the Catholic and conservative party. Chile, after a painful period of hostility to the Holy See, many years ago, renewed its diplomatic relations with the Vatican, but only in a half-hearted way, for while the Holy See sent Mgr. Montt to Santiago as Delegate Apostolic and Envoy Extraordinary, Chile contented itself with transacting its business with the Holy See through its resident minister at Paris. The appointment of a direct representative means an increased cordiality on the part of the Republic, and this significance is further augmented by the choice it has made.

A recent Papal audience which may have important results was that accorded to Miss Eleanor Warner, M. D., an English lady who is interested in instituting a college for Catholic young ladies at Cambridge. A previous decision of the English Bishops excluding Catholics from attendance at the universities was confirmed by Propaganda during 1897 in an encyclical letter. In 1895 the Congregation gave leave for men to attend. In 1896 it accorded the same permission to ecclesiastics. In 1897 it declared that women students were not embraced in the permission. But the movement of enlarged liberty which these dates, taken as a whole, indicate and the satisfactory results which the indulgence displayed, and the safeguards with which it was surrounded, have led to the expectation that as the Sacred Congregation is at present considering the case for women in a very favorable spirit, the permission may be extended to women.

"IT'S ONLY A COLD, A TRIFLING COUGH"

Thousands have said this when they ought to have said, "Thousands have neglected to cure the cold. Thousands have filled a Consumptive grave through neglect. Never neglect a cough or cold. It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

It is the medicine you need. It strikes at the very foundation of all throat or lung complaints, relieving or curing Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Croup, Hoarseness, and preventing Pneumonia and Consumption. It has stood the test for many years, and is now more generally used than ever. It contains all the best healing virtues of the pine tree combined with Wild Cherry Bark and other potent remedies. It stimulates the weakened bronchial organs, allays irritation and excites inflammation, soothes and heals the irritated parts, loosens the phlegm and mucus, and aids nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulations. Don't be humbugged into accepting an imitation of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cents.

Mr. Julian J. Leane, Belle Cote, N. S. writes: "I was troubled with a bad cold and severe cough, which assumed such an attitude as to keep me confined to my house. I tried several remedies advertised but they were of no avail. As a last resort I tried Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and one bottle cured me completely."

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Now, Harry," said the inspector "which would you rather write about? All you know about William the Conqueror or all about your last holiday?"

"All I know about William the Conqueror," said Harry.

"Why?" asked the inspector, very much surprised.

"Well, you see," said Harry, "I could write all I know about William the Conqueror in a few seconds, whereas it would take a couple of hours to write about my last holiday."

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere.

Beware Of Worms.

Don't let worms gnaw at the vitals of your children. Give them Dr. Lee's Pleasant Worm Syrup and they'll soon be rid of these parasites. Price 25c.

"Where was he struck by the motor car?" said the coroner.

"At the junction of the dorsal and the cervical vertebrae," answered the surgeon.

"Will you please point it out on the map?" asked the coroner, indicating one that hung on the wall.

Milburn's Sterling Headache Powder gives women prompt relief from monthly pains and leave no bad after effects whatever. Be sure you get Milburn's. Price 20 and 25 cents, all dealers.

"These trousers are very much worn this season," said the tailor, displaying his goods.

"So are the ones I have on," replied the poet, sadly.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

WEAK TIED WOMEN

How many women there are that get no refreshment from sleep. They wake in the morning and feel tired than when they went to bed. They have a dizzy sensation in the head, the heart palpitates, they are irritable and nervous, weak and worn out, and the lightest household duties during the day seem to be a drag and a burden.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

are the very remedy that weak, nervous, tired out, sickly women need to restore them the blessings of good health. They give sound, restful sleep, tone up the nerves, strengthen the heart, and make rich blood. Mrs. C. McDonald, Portage la Prairie, Man., writes: "I was troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, and weak spine. I got four boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking them I was completely cured."

Price 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25, all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.