But John Trewswas saw the trembling of her eyelid, the flush upon her chesk, the sorrow and signs of recent tears that lingered on her face; and it was John's cheery voice that proposed dinner as a relief to all.

'My dear Lady Trewswas,' he said, 'are we all to starve because Hilton has lost his way in the woods? Come, let us have dinner; he deserves to get his cold for coming home late.'

'May he not have met with an accident?' asked the dector's wife.

dignant pain.

At this party her engagement was to have been announced, and her position as Sir Hilton's intended wife was to have as Sir Hilton's intended wife was to have been acknowledged; and from such a gathering of friends as this, brought tegether for such a purpose, he had chosen to absent himself, in order to prolong his ride with Olive Varcoe! Unless some accident detained him, his conduct was an insult, deliberately given; and it could only mean that he had discovered, ere it was too late, the mistake he had made in offering his love to her. How Eleaner's heart swelled—hew her veins throbbed at the thought! How horrible was the terture of sitting here, to be gazed at by these people, who could not see that her brain was on fire!

Increased Pay. The Right Hon. Sir John Macdonald The Right Hon. Sir John Assaconaud has given notice of a series of resolutions to be introduced in Parliament as the basis of a Bill to give an increase of pay to the members of the Civil Service. It is proposed to add $2,000 per annum to to the salaries of Lieutenant-Governors; he first of January. The remuneration of members of Parliament and Senators for of members of Parliament and Senators for their attendance is fixed at $10 per day for a session of thirty days, and for a session extending beyond that time the lump sum of $1,000 and no more; the Speaker salaries to be $4,000 per annum. An appropriation of $2,500 is asked for to effect the re-adjustment of the salaries of officers of the Senate; $5,000 to readjust

It appears that the Hon. Mr. Scott intends to increase the Crown dues on square pine timber, out or manufactured in the Uttavas district, from 1st May. That is, Mr. Scott is going to levy an additional tax on the Ottawa lumbermen, these very men whom the Teries assert he has sold himself to. If Mr. Scott is he has sold himself to. If Mr. Scott is really the agent of these lumbermen, how comes this to be thus, or rather is it not full proof that his official acts are performed so impartially that ithey fall equally on all parties with whom the Crown Lands Department has business to def But even this does not please the Tory organs. Some of our readers are no doubt great colat. aware that Mr. Wilmot, one of the government fishery overseers, has been engaged in experimenting at his es-tablishment at Newcastle, with the view of introducing and acclimatising salmon in our inland waters. In 1872 he made ries an experiment with reference to Lake Huren, the details of which will be found the salaries in the House of Commons, and $75,000 to readjust the salaries of civil servants throughout Canada, dating from the first of January last. The foregoing is the substance of the resolutions which are not expected to call forth which are not expected to call forth which are not expected to call forth salaries.

He says "In addition to the abeye streams, I also selected a point near Mount Forest, on the Saugeen River, which empties into Lake Huron at Saugeen, with the object of carrying out, if possible, the experiment of introducing and acclimatising salmen in the waters of our great island fresh water seas. This journey presented unusual difficulties, requiring extraordinary exertions to overcome them. First; carrying the fry in water cans to the railway station; then, after reaching Teronto by rail, having to wait at that eity to exchange from the Grand Trunk line to the Grey and Bruceread, aportion of which near Mount Ferest being unballasted at the time, made the passage very rough indeed. Upon arriving at that village, long after night, I was compelled to procure a conveyance in order to carry the cass (some eight in number)

Them taking them on again aver a very rough road by carriage through a pelting storm to their final destination, was a work of great difficulty and unriety. Netwithstanding all this, the greater number of the final were conveyed asfely and deposited in the Saugeen River, some at Mount Forest and the balance several miles further down.

It is to be hoped that the results of the experiment may prove satisfactory, and that by planting these superior fish, in waters from which there is no easy or direct access to the sea, they will become naturalized and seelimatised threeto, and produce beneficial results to the inhabitants of this sections of the country. In a scientific point of view it may also

The Grand Trunk.

The Grand Trunk Railway has always been noterious for its encouragement of through traffic to the detriment of local trade. We have heard many serious complaints during the past winter with reference to this matter, and the difficulty of obtaining facilities of transport has seriously interfered with the business of this section of country, grain dealers having been obliged to hold over their stocks or stop purchasing altogether on account of the difficulty of obtaining cars. We can also speak feelingly on the subject, ithe business of our office having been out back by the dilay in ferwarding material, our supplies of paper having been on several cocasions from three to four weeks considered from the dilay have found from the dilay in found from the dilay have found from the dilay have found from the dilay in found from the dilay have found from the dilay in found from the dil pues of paper naving been on several consists from three to four weeks coming from Hamilton, the delay having occurred on the Grand Trunk. reference to this road from a contemporary:—

"The Grand Trunk seems to be willing to obtain an unenvisible neteriety, by throwing obstacles in the way of every undertaking that cannot be made subsidiary to what they appear to consider their ewn monopoly of eur inland transport. When brought to book on this charge in parliament, they are graciously pleased to deny the impeachment, in so far as it refers to the Pacific Railway, but say nothing with respect to the Northern (of Ottawa) and the Ontario and Quebec lines, leaving it to be inferred that they are doing their best to prevent Sir Hugh Allan from negotiating the loans for those lines. Should Sir Hugh fail in these cases, the probability is that we will be indebted to the G. T.
