Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

Oh, winter has its joys and charms, as I remarked before; we do not heed the storm's alarms, its fury or its roar, when by the fire we sit and drowse, and suck a briar's stem; but oh, the man who milks the THE HIRED cows at 5 o'clock A.M. The hired hand leaves his cheerful HANDful cough before the rooster crows; what wonder that he has a grouse as he puts on his clothes? They're colder than the law allows, with ice along each hem; and he must go and milk the cows at 5 o'clock A.M. Down to the Arctic barn he goes, and packs his frosted pall; and Bossy blifs him on the nose with her long frozen tail; his language would the dead arouse—each cussword is a gem; I weep for him who milks the cows at 5 o'clock A.M. Talk not of hardship or of woe, ye who at ease recline, till ye have sat, in sleet and snow, to milk the spotted kine! When old King Winter doth carouse with ice-work diadem, shed tears for him who milks the cows at 5 o'clock A.M.

Warding Off the 'Old Look.'

The woman who wants to keep away the appearance of age as long as possible must observe certain cautions and self-denials. The following hints are set forth by a student of "beauty culture."

She must secure a fair amount of rest, going to bed a couple of hours before midnight whenever practicable. If possible, she must manage an afternoon siesta. This means renewed vigor for the evening, and also means a great deal for the eyes.

She may not yield to laziness. That is one of the habits that bring on the appearance of age. Once one begins to avoid leaving her chair, to loiter tentatively for hours at a time, she may say good-bye to youth. Let us then be up and doing! Rest is essential to the preservation of one's looks. But idling is not rest, and rest is not idling. A few minutes complete relaxation flat on a couch, or reclining in a long chair, is more restful than an hour's loafing. When in a chair one should sit erect, waist muscles taut, head up.

To ward off the aging look one must exercise care in the matter of diet. That does not mean that she should stint herself in the matter of nourishment. On the contrary, she should take plenty of really nourishing food, but must avoid indulging in sweets to any great extent, and also must give up pastries and starchy, clogging foods generally, masticating thoroughly such as she does take.

She must steadily, regularly and unremittently care for her skin, using a cream if it be dry and a lotion if its tenderness is to be oily. She must take special care of the "tell-tale tract"; that is, the throat from the ear down to the collar bone, and under the chin. Massage properly performed will help keep down a double chin, while for a thin throat, rotating it slowly, turning the head from right to left—then back again, is a gentle exercise recommended.

She must, above all, have exercise in the open air. Two hours at least should be spent outside, though not perhaps all in active exercise unless she feels like it. Walking should be a regular part of the day's routine. Her windows must be wide open in any weather and almost any temperature all night long. Let her have abundant covering, and even a shawl around her head if need be, plus a hot water bag at her feet, but let her breathe all night pure, clear, unvitiated air.

A Book that— portrays in a strangely interesting and fascinating manner the early life of Allan Quatermain.

You remember him and his curious adventures in South Africa—"Marie" carries you back over his younger days.

Rider Haggard, the man who deals in the uncanny and mysterious, has climaxed every book he has written in "Marie."

Some critics say that "She"—the strangest being an author ever conceived—will always remain Rider Haggard's best production, but—other critics as competent and far-seeing, declare that "Marie" shows the famous author at his best.

Origin of the Moving Picture

We have become so accustomed to the moving picture that comparatively few people realize that we owe its existence to a wager. Yet such was the case, and it was not merely a wager but a wager about a horse. The first moving picture was made by an Englishman named Edward Maybridge, who emigrated to California about the middle of last century, and obtained an appointment as photographic surveyor of the Pacific Coast. The Governor of California had made a wager with a friend as to whether a horse had all four legs off the ground at the same moment while running. As neither of them could come to any definite conclusion on the matter Maybridge was called in to settle the point. He placed twenty-four cameras in a line to cover each movement of the horse and rider, the camera shutters being moved by connecting pieces of string which the animal broke as he passed. The result was a series of pictures showing each movement of the horse. It settled the argument, for Maybridge was able to show that, except when jumping, the horse never had all his feet off the ground at one time. But the experiment had done more than settle a bet, for it set Maybridge thinking what an interesting thing it would be to present the photos in motion. To do this he copied the methods made familiar to many in the zoetrope. The zoetrope is merely a pastboard cylinder with slits in the upper section, and when it is revolved rapidly it reproduces drawings apparently in motion. Maybridge employed this toy to reproduce the motions of the horse, and his experiment was attended with so much success that he decided to endeavor to reproduce the effect on a screen, using actual photographs. For some time he was baffled in his attempts, but he finally succeeded, the movements of the horse being shown, but no background. This was before the introduction of the flexible film for the camera and before rapid photography had been developed. Maybridge lived to see the wonderful moving picture of to-day, and he did quite recently at his home in England. He left to his friends the photographs and much of the apparatus used in his early experiments. Since his day we have advanced so far along the road to art that we can make moving pictures out of things that never existed, and the faked film has become one of the main attractions at our modern picture shows.

Good Reason.

A woman missionary in China was taking tea with a Mandarin's eight wives. The Chinese ladies examined her clothing, her hair, and her teeth, and so on, but her feet especially amazed them.

"Why," cried one, "you can walk and run as well as a man."

"Yes, to be sure," said the missionary.

"You can ride a horse and swim, too?"

"Yes."

"Then you must be as strong as a man?"

"I am."

"And you wouldn't let a man beat you, not even if he was your husband, would you?"

"Indeed, I wouldn't," said the missionary.

The Mandarin's eight wives looked at one another, nodding their heads. Then the oldest said softly, "Now I understand why the foreign white devil never has more than one wife."

"Ideas."

Sidewalk Sketches. By H. L. RANN. THE CONSTABLE.

It is high time that the current literature should shed its meed of praise upon that intrepid and under paid officer, constable. This individual goes through life in a modest and unobtrusive manner, protecting society from the ravages of the mooly cow, and arresting the predatory canine, but where do we read any poetry about him? Who ever saw a village constable with a Carnegie medal pinned coyly over his left lung? Who ever heard of a constable receiving a vote of thanks for leading an expository tramp out of the city limits with a defiant mien and a pair of storm boots? Where is there any record in history of a pink tea with the constable as the guest of honor? And yet the office was formerly one of great distinction. Constables were very numerous during the French revolution, it being their business to clog up the Bastille with crowned heads and remnants of royalty who had fallen into the habit of running over the populace in touring cars with non-skidding tyres. Of late years, however, the demand for constables has fallen off and their duties consist in keeping the books at the dog pound and winding the town clock. The constable goes armed to the teeth with fine cut and several blank chattel mortgages, which he ornaments with a stub pen and the latest designs in reformed spelling. Circus day is a trying time for the constable, for he is expected to protect the aged rube from the wiles of the three-shell man and hunt the short-change artist to his elusive lair. The constable is usually clad in glittering raiment, consisting of a chateleine billy and a twinkling star. It is a sad period in the life of a dog when he bites the village police force in the calf of the leg, and this affords one of the few instances where the constable kills anything but time.

Doctor Advised Her to Take Them. DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED MRS. BELLIVEAU'S BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

New she can do any kind of work—why Dodd's Kidney Pills are so popular.

Pre Den Haut, Westmoreland Co., N.B., February 2. (Special).—It is becoming a proverb in New Brunswick that no place is too small to furnish at least one person who owes his or her good health to Dodd's Kidney Pills. And this place is no exception to the rule. Mrs. Dominique J. Belliveau, a well known and highly respected resident says in an interview:

"I took Dodd's Kidney Pills on the advice of my doctor for Bright's Disease, and I am glad to say three boxes cured me completely. I can do all kinds of work now. I always keep Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house in case we might need them."

Sometimes you wonder why people cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills are so enthusiastic in their praises of them. The reason is that they strike right at the root of ill-health. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the Kidneys. That means that all impurities are strained out of the blood. It means pure blood, and pure blood means good health all over the body. Good health means good spirits; hence the enthusiasm.

Rev. Jas. Bell Resigns.

The General Committee of the Church of England Temperance Society was held last night when the Chairman, Rev. James Bell, announced that he had resigned from the Cathedral staff and in consequence would give up the Chairmanship of the Society in due course. It is needless to say that much surprise was exhibited when the announcement was made and deep regret expressed by all present. The members feel that the C. E. T. S. will suffer serious loss in the retirement of the rev. gentleman who has endeared himself to all and who was a zealous worker in the cause of temperance. They are assured that wherever stationed Mr. Bell will still uphold the honour of Temperance, and they wish him and Mrs. Bell every future success and happiness.

Victorias Defeat the Feildians.

Before a large audience in the Prince's Rink last night the Victorias defeated the Feildians; reversing the victory of the latter in the previous game. The Vics won out by a score of 5 goals to 1, and a fast and fair game was the outcome, fouls being an unknown quantity and a good exhibition was given.

When the game opened the Vics made a dash and Brien made a try but was blocked, then McPherson had a look in but was barred, and Collier taking the rubber west when some smart work occurred at mid-rink. McPherson got away passed to Shortall and he safely landed the disc between the twines, scoring Vics first goal.

A few seconds after the rubber was in play McPherson tried for goal but the disc catching in Hunt's skate he kept it clear of the twines. Vinnicombe was now called on by Strong, but saved well and sent the disc east when Parsons and Bulley combining got the puck on the Feildian goal and kept Hunt busy guarding it. The Feildians now put on a spurt and exciting work was done by both aggregations with good runs by several of the members. Shortall sent in a "hot un" when there was a scrimmage and Bulley shot No. 2 for the Vics.

Soon after the teams crossed—Victorias, 2 goals; Feildians, 0.

SECOND HALF.

Hardly had play begun in this half when Shortall found the net and made the third goal for the Vics.

Feildians now bucked up and Pinsent and Winter worked hard but to no purpose. Hunt just managed to save a hard shot sent by McPherson, but Collier secured and got away with the rubber when the Feildians put up a splendid game and for quite a while kept on the Vics goal. Collier had a try which Vinnicombe saved and was just getting it clear when Strong got the disc and smashed it between the twines scoring the one and only goal which the Feildians scored.

The Vics now put on a rapid spurt, and though the Feildians played well the Vics had the best of the game, and before the whistle blew Brien and McPherson added two more goals to their score.

The teams lined up:—
Victorias.— Vinnicombe, Parsons, Tobin, Bulley, Brien, McPherson, Shortall.
Feildians.—N. Hunt, G. Hunt, Collier, Pinsent, Strong, T. Winter and P. Winter.

All the players on both sides were in good form.
