The name "influenza" dates from A new government was formed at 1742, when it was given to the epidemic in Italy; at the same time the name "grippe" was given to it in A Dutch torpedo boat has arrived France. The term "facies grippe" in the harbour of Oocslerland to guard had been used before to describe the thin, drawn face, with sunken eyes and waxy skin, bearing every sign of depression and exhaustion. This face is seen whenever the sympathetic nervous system and the suprarenal glands are deeply touched by an infection. From this term the word "grippe" was gerived.

Dr. Heckel says the term "Spanish fever" or "Spanish influenza," given to the epidemic in 1918, is quite incorrect, for that epidemic, like all others, was born where it is always prevalent-that is to say, Russia, Turkestan and the surrounding reg-

WHY PEOPLE CALL DISEASE IN-FLUENZA OR GRIPPE.

Influenza is a very ancient disease,

Dr. Francis Heckel, writing in I'lllustration (Paris), that it was formerly classified as one of the "pects" or plagues under which name all grave epidemics were known by our remote ancestors, who did not yet differentiate between typhus, diphtheria, pneumonia, and bubonic plague, cerebro-spinal meningitis, "grippe" and
