Any Kind Welcome and May Be Left at Advertiser for Club.

Persons with overfilled music cabinets will have an opportunity to dispose of some of their stock by presenting it to the Soldiers' Club, opposite the municipal buildings. Music is much in demand amongst the boys training in the club and the stock on hand at the club is somewhat inadequate, besides being a little the worse for wear. Copies of all kinds of songs and melodies are desired.

ANOTHER FORD GARAGE.—That London is not losing its place as one of the best "motor" cities in Canada is evidenced by the appearance of a new Ford garage and service station soon to be opened by A. E. Greer & Son in East London. The new garage will be located at 755-777 Dundas street, in a new store just west of Rochester street.

RECRUITING SLOW.—Recruits for the Engineers have been coming in slowly of late. Only one, A. H. Bailey of Detroit, has been accepted in the last two days. This makes a total of 25 men towards a new unit, but as some of these men are in hospital it is not thought likely that the draft will go for a week at least.

RETURNED MEN WANTED.—A communication has been received by the Soldiers' Aid Commission from St. Frank Glass, M.P., asking for returned men who could take temporary positions at the postoffice. Additional men are required at this time, both as carriers and inside men, to assist in handling the large amount of Christmas mail.

ALL FRIENDS INVITED.—The first meeting of the Humane Society, since its election of officers, will be held at the city hall tonight to welcome the new president, W. L. Robinson. KICKED IN THE HEAD.—Although he suffered concussion of the brain from a kick from the 63rd Battery, Pte. J. Carr of the 63rd Battery, is now recovering rapidly in the Military Hospital. Carr's horse became unmanageable as he was going down Ann street, and threw him, his chin to the curb, but was kicked in the back of the head. The sharp corks on the animal's shoes cut his scalp in three places. He was attended by Dr. W. J. Tillman.

FIRE ON CAR.—A small panic occurred on Normal car No. 10 last evening when a fuse blew out and set fire to some oily waste. The flames quickly spread to a broom standing near, and in a few seconds the car was filled with smoke. It was crowded at the time, and a number of women and children started to scream, while others made a rush for the door. The car was stopped and the fire put out in a short time by the crew.

City Girl Unwitting Heroine of Romance Which Death Spoils

Her Soldier Friend, Who Earned Commission and Fame in France, Then Died Gloriously, Never Spoke His Love, But Left Her Everything.

This is a romance of wartime, the heroine a London girl, daughter of a prominent family, the hero, a chivalrous young southerner. Unlike many romances, the heroine was all unaware she was playing the role until—But this is anticipating the end of the story and the end of the story has in it a heartache, for all who read.

The belletrist countries were not the only ones which immediately felt the effects of the outbreak of war. In August, 1914, down in Central America, there was a stalwart young civil engineer under contract for five years at $2,000 a year. When Kaiser Wilhelm tore up "the scrap of paper," and proceeded to grind the fragments beneath his heel, the wheels stopped moving around even in Central America. The young engineer's contract was null.

He felt a pronounced grudge against the Kaiser and the war lords of Germany who had robbed him of a promising position, not to mention precipitating untold disaster upon Belgium and other nations. The engineer made his way north with the intention of some time enlisting to fight for the cause of liberty and righteousness with a Canadian unit.

All Relatives Dead. There was no member of his own kin left to protest. His family had been wiped out in the old home land in the south when he was still a young boy and the last tie which had bound him to Dixie land was broken by the death of his beloved "mummy," his nurse from his infancy, some years before.

Engaging for a time on contract construction work in Detroit, when a call went out for recruits for the 18th Battalion, he bought a ferry ticket to Windsor, and enlisted as a private under Lieut.-Col. Wight.

His battalion was organized in London and on an eventual occasion the distinguished looking southern private was introduced to the girl in the case. Other casual meetings followed.

Daughter of a hospitable family, which in its kindness was always mindful of strangers, especially on holiday occasions, it was not unusual that the girl, meeting the soldier on Christmas Eve, should extend an invitation to him for Christmas dinner. There were always covers laid at such festive times for others besides the family gathering.

He gladly accepted, his warm, southern heart overflowing with gratitude to be permitted to have a part in the real family party. It was so long since he had known anything of the kind of his very own.

Became One of Family. During the months which followed he established a place for himself in the family circle. He slipped in so unobtrusively and was so appreciative that anything done for him was a real pleasure—particularly in view of the fact he had no home folks of his own. With the daughter of the household he was the best of friends, and the relationship as far as she was concerned was in no way changed the spring night the 18th Battalion started on route for overseas. There was, perhaps, the look in his eye of the man leaving his own people, but his smile was brave and his hand tight firm. He went gallantly by, by this time having won his stripe as corporal.

Letters came back, many of them, and letters and parcels found their way to him in England and later in France.

It was November of 1915 that the 18th first saw active service, and the soldier from the southland entered the trenches as a sergeant.

Obtained Commission. In June of this year he took an officers' training course in a cadet school in France and obtained a commission as Lieutenant in the 16th Royal Irish Rifles.

As he had a few days' breathing space, a welcome leave to spend in England. There was not time to rest, however, so fully occupied with the idea of looking up old friends there was one from London whom he saw at the Royal Victoria Hotel in London immediately for France. And there was another to whom he had much to talk about, a fair nursing sister. He had frequently met her in the London home which had become almost as his own. She was the intimate friend of the daughter. He told her things, though he had left behind him. It was only afterwards that the nurse wrote and told the girl.

The leave was up and the day came for going into the firing line with the 16th Royal Irish Rifles. One, two, two and a half weeks passed without mishap.

Died on July 3. On the 3rd of July the gallant young southerner laid down his life for the cause for which he was fighting. A fatal note was sent to the London girl, and following this came a cable from the colonel of the regiment stating the boy had been killed instantly.

DO NOT JUDGE MAN BY SIZE OF HAT IS ADVICE OF DOCTOR. Dr. H. A. McCallum Lectures on Nervous System. MASTER TISSUE OF BODY. Lantern Slides Used To Illustrate Talk at Memorial Church.

The nervous system is the master tissue of the body," said Dr. H. A. McCallum in a lecture before a large audience in the Sunday school of the Crum Memorial Church last night.

Dr. McCallum made his remarks clear by the use of a number of excellent lantern slides. "The eye, ear, nose, mouth and skin send in reports, sensations of the whole environment of the body to the brain."
