SEVEN ACRES PROVIDE HOME FOR STRAY CATS AND DOGS

Humane Society's Kennels Dwindle As London Is Cleaned Up.

REFUSE TO LEAVE

At the very tip end of Victoria street west is to be found one of the most interesting spots in all London-the headquarters of the London Humane society and home of Inspector Tustin. Flowers clamber up the front veranda and great shade trees provide a happy restingplace for hundreds of birds who have learned to love the inspector and daily visit his feeding and drinking troughs. Here during the month of August 348 animals were looked after by the inspector. Every 48 hours the inspector's merciful gun puts tortured animals out of their pain and sends them on to the happy hunting ground. This gun, specially built for this work, comes from England. It has a wide-lipped bore, which is animal, and does its work instantly and mercifully.

It is of the wild Muskoka variety, but prefers Mr. Tustin's care to foraging for itself. So friendiy has it become that it wags its tail when Mr. Tustin comes into sight. It used to go off for days at a time, but always returned. Now it is too old and fat to make such lengthy journeys, and so just putters about the yard under the dignified name of "Fat."
