THE NEWS

Our news from the seat of war has been gradually becoming devoid of excitement as the Presidential election approached. The political contest seems to have swallowed up the belligerent feelings of both Federal and Confederate; for on the issue of this great bloodless battle, both parties know that war or peace will depend. While the people of the South are viewing with bated breath the political throcs of the Northern States, and hoping, with all the fervor of a population that have tasted in such unmeasured quantities the horrors of a devastating war, that McClellan will be the choice of the people, the anti-slavery party of the North are basing the success of their great cause, and the cause of humanity, however paradoxical it may appear, on the return of Lincoln, and the continuation of the war. In the meantime, Grant still pushes "on to Richmond."

He is not advancing so rapidly to be sure as the London Times desires; still his efforts are searcely slower than those of Wellington before St. Sebastian or of the allies in front of Sebastopol. Hood is again threatening Sherman's communications, and Sherman is again forced to keep his troops spread over the long line of railway between Atlanta and Chattanooga. There is abundance of rumers in the intelligence of startling operations; but they may be taken as simply electioneering sensations. They are not, however, confined to Lincoln manufacture; for we find the circulation of false statements about the war so extensive and so important that Lincoln himself is obliged to come forward and declare their untruthfulness. The principal of these sensational rumors is that Sherman has evacuated Atlanta. On the other side, we have the remarkable piece of strategy attributed to Grant of allowing his antagonist to obtain as many reinforcements as possible in order that a Federal trap might be sprung to catch the whole Confederate army under Lee. The authority of this new feature in military movements is a Doctor of Divinity named Ross. Apart from these novelties, we see that the Confederate ram Albemarle has been blown up by a Federal torpedo. The

From England the news is equally devoid of special interest. The telegrams from New

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The Tribune's correspondent on the left of the Army of the Potomac, on the 30th, says:

The angle a mile and a half south and west that was acquired on our left by the re-cent strategic demonstration, is being strongly fortified. The army line on the railroad is to be immediately pushed out to the left two or three miles beyond its present terminus. This extension was oasily gained, as the enemy weakened their line at that point; to intercept what seemed to be a flank movement around their extreme right. While they were massing against the 3rd and 5th corps on the extreme left, the 9th corps shoved in at this point and took a line of their intrenchments, which was reversed, and now forms our new left angle. Probably during the war there has not been made so important an extension of fortified line with so little fighting. This, like other movements recently made, demonstrates the enemy's growing weakness. The Wilmington Journal of the 22d save that great preparations are making for the defence of that place, and all non-combatants are required to leave.

CASTINE, Maine, Nov. 2 .- On Thursday night an attack was made on the battery at this place. At midnight a party of raiders entered the city from the rear, and when challenged immediately fired on the sentinel who returned the fire. The garrison mustered promptly and pursued the raiders half a mile. Several shots were exchanged. They finally escaped in a boat. It is supposed their object was the capture of the United States Cutter lying in the harbor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 .- Dr. Ross, a clergyman in North Carolina, says the entire State of North Carolina, as well as Virginia, are alive with rebel deserters, who in most cases are armed and organised and abundantly able to protect themselves. In the western part of the State they remain Supreme. They make repeated raids on the wealthiest plan-ters and rebel depots for supplies, and give protection to runaway slaves, who are also armed. The authorities have given up all hope of foreing them back into the ranks, and have been repulsed in efforts to this end. Jeff. Davis said when in Raleigh that the deserters of the Confederate army outnumber Confederate soldiers in the field. An extensive conspiracy was recently brought to light at Raleigh, implicating many prominent offi-cers of the conservative party, who now openly threaten to head these deserters and their friends, and take possession of the State Government of North Carolina and all railroads in the event of Governor Vance failing to institute at once a separate State. The doctor says that it is now apparent to the rebel authorities that Grant has been affording facilities to Lee to receive reinforcements, when Grant, by a sudden spring of his trap, will close up the last gap and force Lee to capitulate. This, Governor Vance thinks, is Grant's plan, which has given Jeff. Davis much concern, who is in favor ef evacuating Virginia, and had repeatedly implored Lee to do so, and not incur the risk of capitulat-

The Weekly Colonist. Later from the East. New York, Nov. 8-A Hampton Road £3,000 for compensation.—At the inquest on ALL CURES MADE EASY! correspondent gives an account of the destruction of the rebel ram Albemarle:

Lieut. Cushing discovered pieces of floating timber belonging to the ram. The light of a number of camp fires were plainly to be seen. He says soldiers were thronging the wharf, firing at beats as they passed. He discharged heavy loads of canister from 12 pounder hewitzers, making a complete circle under a scorching fire of musketry, under a full head of steam, pressing floating guards towards the hull. The boat soon came o a stand still. By firing muskets and pistols almost in their faces from the ports of the ram, several were wounded. Cushing then exploded a torpedo directly under the port of the vessel, below the port hole of a 200 pounder Brooks' rifled gun, which was at the same moment discharged at the boat. An immense volume of water was thrown up by the explosion, almost deluging the boat.

A heavy shell from the enemy passed through the bottom of the boat, knocking the splinters around in terrible style, and she immediately began to sink. It is not known how many fell into the hands of the rebels. Lieut. Cushing swam down the river for half a mile and reached the shore. At daylight he crawled through the swamp, within speaking distance of the enemy's works, and having learned that the Albemarle had sunk he then put off for our lines, 18 miles distant, which he reached in safety.
