The President reviews the different financial laws that have been passed and exhaustively treats of the present monetary conditions. He says: "The foregoing statement of events and conditions develops the fact that after increasing our interest-bearing bonded indebtedness more than $162,000,000 to saye our gold reserve, we are nearly where we started, having now in such reserve $79,333,966, as against $65,438,377 in February, 1894, when the first bonds were issued."

Bo away With Greenbacks.

Continuing, he says: "I am convince the only thorough and practicable remedy for our troubles is found in the retirement and cancellation of our United States notes, commonly called greenbacks, and the outstanding Treasury notes issued by the Government, in payment of silver purchases under the act of 1890.

"I believe this can be quite readily accomplished by the exchange of these notes for United States bonds of small as well as large dehominations, bearing a low rate of interest. They should be long-term bonds, thus increasing their desirability as investments, and because their payment could be well postponed to a period far removed from present financial burdens and perplexities, when with increased prosperity and resources they would be more easily met.

"To further insure the cancellation of these notes and also provide a way by which gold may be added to our currency in lieu of them, a feature in the plan should be an authority given to the Secretary of the Treasury to dispose of the bonds abroad for gold, if necessary, to complete the contemplated redemption and cancellation. permitting him to use the proceeds of such bonds to take up and cancel any of the notes that may be treasury, or that may be received by the Government on account.

A Banking Proposal.

The President thinks that the natical banks should be allowed to issue circulation equal to the par value of the bonds they deposit to secure it, and that the tax on their circulation should be reduced to one-fourth of one per cent., which would undoubtedly meet all the expense the Gevernment incurs on their account. In addition they should be allowed to suistitute or deposit in lieu of the substitute or deposit in lieu of the bonds required as security for their circulation those which would be is-sued for the purpose of retiring the United States notes and treasury
