FISH BREEDING.

Traditions of the "olden time" are not always entirely reliable. Facts that come down to us through no other channel than that of transmission from father to son by word of mouth through successive generations, are often so distorted, that what may be received without doubt of its authenticity, becomes exceedingly questionable. There is oftentimes a provoking lack of certainty in the traditional legends and alleged doings of by-gone generations. A knowledge of men and things that existed in any country hundreds of years ago, cannot well be ascertained without a written record. Via coc nterances, passing from mouth to mouth through passing centuries, are liable to important omissions and misleading exaggerations. The testimony and sayings of living witnesses, however, cannot well be ignored. Our own country has undergone many and marvelous changes since the old man of our day were mere boys; and what these survivors of a buried generation may say is worthy of entire credence. These hoary headed men of the present day assure us that when they were juveniles, our lakes, rivers and smaller streams abounded with fish. Salmon and trout, which now come under the cognomen of "rare luxuries" were so common then, that, comparatively speaking, they were lightly esteemed. The gray-haired sires of our day tell us that they remember when our Annapolis River was the annual resort of teeming shoals of salmon, and when our mountain lakes and brooks were swarming with trout.

But in the matters referred to there has been a very great change. High, impassable dams, thrown across our principal streams—the floating debris and dust from saw-mills and other obstructive causes, have tended to preclude salmon from reaching their ancient and accustomed spawning grounds. It is a fact well-known to scientists that the instinct of the salmon tribes lead them to their native waters in that to deposit their spawn. If then these invaluable fish are now less abundant than they formerly were, it is just because they have been prevented by means, which we have already mentioned, from getting back to the head waters of rivers and to lakes, where themselves and their scaly ancestors for many generations had been hatched, centuries perhaps before a white man's foot had left its impress upon American soil. Of late years, however, laws have been enacted to keep the rivers and streams sufficiently open to afford salmon a free thoroughfare between the sea and their natural spawning grounds.

Naturalists and men of scientific mental proclivities, who have watched with intense interest the mysterious processes by which both vegetable and animal life is reproduced and the species of each perpetuated by natural generation from age to age, have propounded, and verified by successful experiments the possibility—may, the certainty—of greatly multiplying fishes in our rivers by artificial hatching. Pisciculture may now be ranked among the practical sciences of utility at the present day.

Some of our readers already know that in this way many of the rivers on this continent have been restocked with varieties of fish, which, owing to causes above referred to, had become deplorably scarce. Two or three years ago, the Dominion Government, at a considerable outlay of capital, started a fish-breeding institution at the head of Bedford Basin, about eight miles north of Halifax city. We have just had an interview with a gentleman, who visited that establishment some time in March. He was delighted with everything which he there saw. He describes his interview with Mr. Wilmet, who has charge of this marvelous hatching factory, if we may so call it. The work is carried on in a spacious building, erected for the purpose, through which an angle stream, drawn from the Sackville River, flows. During the winter, by artificial heat, the air is kept at the desired temperature. The spawn are taken thither in the autumn, and placed in troughs, each with zinc or tin, and a current of water is gently passing through them. The hatching season is early in spring, and in a few weeks the baby fish, only an inch or two in length, are conveyed in tanks to rivers, where they are placed to shift for themselves. Mr. Wilmet explained to our informant the process of securing the spawn in Autumn, and a variety of other interesting matters; but we have not time to enter now into a more elaborate detail of what he there saw and learned. Suffice it to say, there are now one million and four hundred thousand salmon spawn—two hundred thousand white fish spawn from the Ontario lakes—and ten thousand salmon-trout from the same lakes—all these are now in the process of hatching, and the young fish, before mid-summer, will be put into the rivers and lakes of the Province. Mr. Wilmet told our informant that the white fish is not at all inferior to salmon as an article of valuable and nutritious food. They are only fresh water fishes never going down to the sea; and they sometimes grow to a prodigious size. There is a

Nova Scotian fish, called salmon trout, but those brought from the lakes in the Upper Provinces of the same name, are quite another species of fish, some of them weighing fifteen or twenty pounds. In flavor and appearance they are much like the salmon.

If the fish-breeding establishment at Bedford continues in efficient operation for the next ten years, the probability is, that before the end of that period our provincial rivers will be more abundantly stocked with fish than they were when Europeans first came to the country.

The following is the order of services to be held at St. James' Church, Bridgetown, on Easter Day, April 21st.

INCENDIARY FIRE ON BARRINGTON STREET, HALIFAX.

TWO FIREMEN BURIED BENEATH THE RUINS BY AN EXPLOSION—ONE RESCUED.

About 3.15, Sunday morning, a fire broke out in the building on Barrington street extending near Jacob Street, occupied by Howard C. Evans & Co., general and commission merchants, and owned by Arthur Fordham. The various fire brigades were soon on hand and made a rush to save the stock and fixtures. Before, however, anything could be got out a rumbling was heard which was followed almost immediately by an explosion. Some fifteen firemen were in the building and all escaped with the exception of Edward Frederick, 2nd officer U. P. Co., 2nd Division, and a man named Howell, also a member of the U. P. Co., who were buried in the ruins. Every effort was brought to bear to extricate these men, but nearly three hours elapsed before they could be got at. When they were in the cellar, Frederick was lying on a heavy box of tobacco on his chest, and a large letter press on his head, and Howell talked to the men working to release him for some time before he was finally reached. His injuries were comparatively slight, consisting of a broken leg and a few bruises about the head. He says he heard Frederick groan twice after the explosion. In the meantime the flames had spread to the store at the back, owned and occupied by Mr. Fordham as a leather store. This building was soon completely gutted of its contents, but the fire was got under control without any further damage. It is supposed to be the work of an incendiary, as Mr. Evans' place was unsuccessfully burglarized on Friday night, and it is thought the would be burglars were trying their game again and in some way set fire to the wood-work around. The explosion is said to have been caused by some four or five pounds of powder left there a few days previously by a customer for shipment. The whole front of Messrs. Evans shop was blown into the street. Frederick was a young man and was the only support of a widowed mother, and has carried on business as a druggist on South Street, and has been married to a young lady of this city next week.

THE INSURANCE. Mr. Fordham has a total of $32,000 on stock and buildings, divided as follows: On both buildings in the Royal.....$ 7,000 On stock in the Royal.....10,000 On stock in the North.....10,000 On stock in the Northern.....5,000 Total.....$32,000 Mr. Evan's insurance is between six and nine thousand dollars, divided between the "Guardian" and "North British and Lancashire" companies.

ITEMS. LONGBEVITY.—On the 27th of March last Mrs. Catherine Fleet died at Ecum Secum in this country at the age of 100. She was born in the Western part of the Province and many years ago came with her husband to Ecum Secum, where she resided till her death. Towards the close of her life she became very much emaciated and feeble but her mental faculties were not greatly impaired.—Chronicle.

NORTH SHORE FISH TRADE.—Baldwin Molloy, of Bathurst, fresh fish exporters, shipped to the United States last season two hundred thousand pounds of fish, principally salmon. Their freezer, is capable of freezing forty thousand pounds. Their principal market is Boston. They intend shipping large quantities this season also, having made preparations for as large transactions as last year.—Moncton Times.

London fog is not cause by the rarefaction of the air, or by the consumption of gas, nor yet by the hills on the north nor by the river. The peculiar atmospheric condition termed an anticyclone is the real cause of these annoying visitations; the wind is then blowing round a well-defined circle in the centre of which the air is tranquil, and consequently the smoke, condensed vapors, &c., cannot escape as they do when there is a direct onward movement of the wind. These objectionable visits occur mostly in November.

WAR INDEMNITIES—HOW MUCH THE LOSERS HAD TO PAY IN TIMES PAST.

There was a Russo-Turkish war which terminated in September, 1828, by a treaty under which Sultan Mahmoud II had to pay $4,000,000 as compensation to Russian merchants, and also $25,000,000 in ten half-year instalments of $2,500,000 each. Russian troops to occupy the country until the uttermost farthing had been reimbursed, the whole left bank of the Danube being surrendered to the Muscovite invaders. There are yet further instances. Napoleon, during the whole of the first empire, had paid one-half the general expenses of France by pecuniary assessments on foreign countries. After Waterloo, settling day arrived, on which by the treaty of Paris (Nov. 20th, 1815) France had to pay the enormous sum of $307,000,000 to the foreign countries that had so been laid under contribution; also having to pay, cloth and entirely maintain a foreign army of occupation (150,000 men) for not less than three, nor more than five years, under the command of Wellington, until the whole amount was paid. This is no isolated incident of the past. The principle which was acted upon, as here stated, at the close of the French war in 1815, and of the Russian war in 1815, and of the invasion of Denmark without any just cause, overpowered her numerical force robbed her of the duchies of Schleswig and Holstein, and exacted a large payment to defray the expenses of the war. Still more recent was the action of the late Emperor of France ($1,000,000,000) by Prussia from France, as war indemnity in 1871, with the surrender of the Rhine provinces of Alsace and Lorraine. The cost of the war was $2,000,000,000, which, as here stated, at the close of the war, was deducted from the $1,000,000,000 of indemnity paid by France, leaving a clear profit of $1,000,000,000. The cost of the war was $1,850,000,000, not reckoning the enormous value of Alsace-Lorraine, estimated at $865,000,000 more. War is a bad thing for the losers.—Ez.

THE WEALTH OF ENGLAND.

A paper has just been laid before the Statistical Society in England by Mr. Giffin, in which the subjects of the wealth of England and of the recent accumulation of capital in the United Kingdom are considered carefully and at length, and with results which have even startled those Englishmen who have thought themselves most familiar with the financial history and condition of their country. Mr. Giffin finds, for example, in regard to the growth of capital in Great Britain, that in ten years, between 1861 and 1871, the capital of the country was increased by the enormous sum of £2,400,000,000, or about twelve hundred millions of dollars. In 1865 the capital of the country was £1,200,000,000, without which, in 1875 it was £2,800,000,000. In other words England has been adding to her capital wealth or her national estate at the enormous rate of £240,000,000 a year! At the close of the century of the Crimean war, when she was carrying on her great wars with Napoleon I., was but £115,000,000, and in 1855, £208,000,000, but it had risen in 1855 to £296,000,000, and in 1875 rose to £271,000,000.
