

DEW DROPS

Vol. IV.

TORONTO, JUNE 16, 1900.

No. 24

PLAYING FARM.

What a grand time this little boy and girl are having! They have a set of toys called "The Farm," and many are the happy hours they spend playing with it. They take the little fences and divide off the fields. In one they put the trees and call that the orchard. In another they place the sheep and cows and call it a pasture field. In another place they gather the pigs, with a little trough and a pig-pen near by. Of course they have a barn-yard, too, with chickens running about. Then there is the drive-house, with stalls in it for the horses. If any of my little readers go to the country this summer they must look about the farm to see how many interesting things there are. So that if they ever get a toy farm they will understand all about it.