

COPY

2.

the number of men in and about McGill who can contribute to a really first-class magazine is much greater than we sometimes suppose. Should we associate with us in any such venture our sister French University, the Université de Montréal? The Magazine would, in any case, be bilingual. If the Magazine were issued periodically all University studies of an extended character might very well be published as a joint venture with the Magazine. Arrangements can at present be made for an office and for printing on a very reasonable basis. I should like to receive suggestions.

Yours very sincerely,

(Sgd.) Ira A. MacKay
Acting Dean