

who published in a Paris journal, 1832, his "Souvenir of himself:

"I began my service with him when I could not deny that those who had done Chile their good, one of these men, worthy to speak of Colonel Tupper, his name; and who, after having known his fate, was cruelly killed. Tupper was a man of great talents, athletic, and brave. It would be distinguished in any situation that he could have been reduced to a slave

"I shall never appreciate in Chile Tupper's example."

Spain, in 1831, by General during the civil war in Spain translated from the to justify the strategic movements the disproportion between the victories nor prodigies of valour of the liberals were routed. conquest which proves neither over the horrid cruelties of the savages, the most unprin-ciple which were executed with the aid of the bravest of soldiers, who hero to whom Greece and the dreadful assassination will be the price for your murderer, Divine and an account of that infamous by a man † who at the time stranger, ‡ indebted for his life."

as follows: "Tupper . . . es, del mas apreciable de los gran alzado estatuas Grecia y . Si no hay castigo visible à su cargo."

Spanish renegade.