

can say is, that I have done my best to place before them a full and clear description of the country I visited; and, lest they should doubt me, I advise them, if they have the means and time at their disposal, to go and judge for themselves.

THE END.