QURS is a sturdy trade in men's suits. Up-standing, as an old oak tree, it has grown from this acorn of policy: "Never let a customer leave the store with cause for dissatisfaction, either discovered or otherwise."

As a result men keep coming back to us with some such story as this: "Have you any more suits like the one I am wearing? I bought it a year ago in a special sale for about ten dollars; I can't wear it out, but I want another for 'best.'"

That's the reason, in a nutshell, that our suit-sales have such a high reputation. They are made up of good suits, first, last and all the time; the price they sell for is often determined by conditions of the moment. As an illustration, come and look at the suits we're offering to-morrow at ten-ninety-five. Some of them were ticketed to sell at twenty dollars. Here are the details:

100 Men's Suits, all new fall styles and patterns, in fancy worsteds and English tweeds; an assorted lot of rich dark brown and grey mixtures, herringbone stripes and heavy twill effects; also some plain navy blue clay worsteds; tailored in the very best manner, and perfect fitting.
