Ald. Bell Roughly Criticized. Editor World: Had Ald. Bell gener Editor World: Had Ald. Bell generously assisted his son by giving up to him any one of the three positions which he himself occupies, instead of causing or bringing about the dismissal of another man—quite as needy as the son in question— to make a vacancy for him, it would have redounded to the alderman's credit. If I were Ald. Bell I would do it yet and have my credit restored. The course he has adopted is utterly indefensible and deserves universal execration. What a shame! What can Mr. Bell know of serves universal execration. What a shame! What can Mr. Bell know of others' needs or hardships with his own nest so well feathered by his own hand, but at the public expense and at the sacrifice of others?
