Dr. McNichol to be a Witness To-Night - Body is Exhumed-Epilepsy May Enter Into Medical Evidence.

HAMILTON, March 9.—(Special.)— The body of Miss Ethel Kinrade was exhumed this afternoon after resting in its grave since a week ago Sun-

Aside from the fact that the crown wants to find out exactly how many bullets and wounds there are in the body, there is nothing sensational in this move, according to the explana-tions of the authorities. They say they want to use Dr. McNichol, the first medical man who saw the girl first. medical man who saw the girl after she was murdered, as a witness, and as it would have been irregular for him to have acted as a witness and a coroner, too, it was decided by the attorney-general's department that it would be better to have everything done in a regular and legal manner.

That necessitated the appointment of a new coroner, and the swearing in of a new coroner, and the swearing in of a new introduced in the formalities. Proceedings had to be taken just as tho Dr. Mc-Nichol had never started an inquest. Dr. Anderson was chosen as the new coroner, and he will proceed with the inquest Wednesday evening. The body was disintered and taken to the morgue at the City Hospital this evening was a chall to be a with as little delay as home, but it had built up the empire abroad.

Dr. McNichol is wanted as a witness by the crown, not altogether on account of his medical testimony, but because he was the first to hear Miss Florence Kinrade's story. Her story to him differed from her subsequent stories. Amongst other things, she told him that the man who shot her sister had red hair and a red moustache. Not long after, to Detective Bleakley, she said that the man was of medium she said that the n dark complexion, and had a large wavy frooping black moustache. To the loctor, she said also that when the man entered the hall he forced her near the dining room, that her sister came down stairs, and that the man getting frightened turned around and shot her. She made no mention to him of going upstairs to get the $10.

This is Dr. McNichol's story of the affair as told to Crown Attorney Washington the day after the murder: "I was ready to go out and make some calls when I received a telephone message to go at once to the Kinrade home. My buggy was standing at the home: My buggy was standing at the door and jumping into it I drove over as quickly as I could. On entering the house I found no person there, but the body of the murdered girl lying at the foot of the rear stairway in dining room. I hastily examined her and found several bullet holes in her head, face and breast. She was dead, and in the post-mortem it was found that one bullet had pierced the right ventricle of her heart. This would cause death instantly.

"The room in which she law was full of fumes from powder and some smoke was still there. Shortly after I arrived several persons gathered about, and I was informed that Miss Florence Kinrade was at Mrs. Hickey's home

In State of Collapse. "I went over there and found her in a state of collapse. She was help-less and seemed to be unable to think," let alone talk, about the terrible af-fair. I gave her some sedatives and shortly after she became calmer and I asked her to tell me about it and to give me a description of the one who did the crime. 'I wanted to get this for the police so that they might get to work, as she alone could describe the man who murdered her sister."

"She said she and her sister were about to go out when she heard a knock at the door. I am not sure whether she went to the front or rear door, but I inferred that she went to the front door and opened it. A man appeared before her and as soon as she pened the door he pushed his way in. As soon as he was inside he demanded of her. She became terrified at this demand and probably seeing the look on her face and fearing she would make an outcry, he pulled a revolver from his pocket and threatened he would shoot her if she called for help.
"Miss Kinrade." said she, "backed down the hall, before the man, until they came within view of the dining room. She supposes that her sister came down the rear stairway on hearing their voices, as she heard a scream which was followed by a shot from a revolver. This was followed by several shots, and she ran from the house and went to Mrs. Hickey's home."

Revolver Not Found.

A plumber, W. D. Smith, was employed by the authorities to-day to tear up some of the pipes, tanks, etc., but the detectives were not able to find any traces of a revolver, but it was found that quite a large package could have been disposed of easily. The house and the surroundings have been carefully searched, but the detectives have failed to make any discoveries of import-

The jurors selected by Dr. McNichol were chosen by the new corner, but they were all re-sworn. It is now said that medical evidence will be given to the effect that one person conhected with the tragedy shows signs of epilepsy, which sometimes induces homicidal mania.

Dr. McNichol is wanted as a witness by the erown, not altogether on the original scheme. They had always understood, in fact he thought it was explicitly stated by Mr. Chamberlain, that under his proposals to be admitted free. He said that the proposal has been already repudiated by the house of commons, by the only confederate who so far had had the courage to lay aside his mask. (Hear, hear.)

Free trade was not in danger. The assault could be repelled again, as it had been repelled before. (Applause.)

FREE TO KILL EDITORS

Extension of Unwritten Law Urged by Counsel For the Defence in Nashville Trial.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 9 .- The unwritten law was extended to-day to cover editors who attack private or public men, by Gen. Meeks, of counsel for the defence in the trial of Col. Duncan Cooper, Robin Cooper and John D. Sharp, for the murder of former United States Senator E. W. Carmack.

The innovation was sprung during Gen. Meeks' speech to the jury. Previously he had expressly disclaimed the belief that any editorial attack justified killing the writer. The general warmed up to his subject with a burst of eloquence, saying:
"You talk of the liberty of the press.
Why gentlemen, no man lives who be-

Why gentlemen, no man lives who believes more firmly in the liberty of the press than I do. But when a man in an editorial position turns the liberty of the press into license, and undertakes to defame and defile you and your family what are you going to do? The prosecution vill tell you you have your recourse in the courts. Yes, and your recourse in the courts. Yes, and you get a judgment for $25,000 against a man not worth the price of a plug of tobacco. Is that satisfaction? "Oh, gentlernen, I tell you that the streets of this, our city, have run red before with the blood of men who improperly used other men's names in public prints."

General Meeks devoted five hours to aristocracy and breeding; declared no crime had been committed when Sena tor Carmack was shot to death, and closed with a dramatic appeal to the jury to "turn loose this gallant old soldier-Col. Cooper."

duith, speaking at a free trade meeting at Queen's Hall, said, in reference to the allegations that capital was being driven abroad by the exportation of capital to foreign countries, that Britain gained the thing she needed most—a cheap, abundant, world-wide supply of food, which formed the life-blood of our working population and materials which formed the lifeblood of our trade.

Where was the capital gone? What was it going to be? He referred to Canada, which in 1908 took £40,000,000, quoting to the effect that for railways, power, light, heat and public municipal services Canada must apply to London as the world's financial centre. He contended that owing to the free trade system British capital had not only exploited British industry at home, but it had built up the empire abroad.

More than two-thirds the total was invested in countries where from Montreal to Victoria Harbor on the Georgian Bay will be completed from Montreal to Victoria Harbor on the Georgian Bay will be completed from this city to Smith's Falls, 129 miles, by September 1, and that a good deal of work will also be carried forward on the remaining sections during the year. ### MAY BE CONVERTED. Members of Private Bills Committee and the "Ex." Entrance.

Considerable interest is being mani fested in that part of the city's bill now before the legi lature relating to the eastern entrance to the exhibition After the adjournment of the budget debate last night leading members of the private bills committee got together in an effort to become more familiar with the merits of the proposal. The needs of the eastern entrance, the key of which lies in the construction of the Bathurst-street bridge, are being seen from a broader standpoint. and the rural members are being led to realize that legislation of such paramount importance to the development of the city cannot be considered from sentimental attitude.

If the members of the committee can be induced to visit the locality they will no doubt realize that the claims of the city are meritorious, and that the protection of life by deviating the crowds from Dufferin-street, demands immediate attention.

This was the verdict brought in last night by Coroner Young's jury enquiring into the circumstances of the death of the young English immigrant, who died while being taken to the General Hospital from the House of Industry.

OTTAWA, March 9 .- (Special.) -- At ten o'clock to-night, Sir Frederick Borden concluded a three hours' speech in defence of his militia estimates. Several Conservative members spoke in reply, but perhaps the most sensational criticism was that made by Mr. Robb, the new Liberal member from Huntington, Que., who said that no self-respecting mother would allow her son to attend a militia camp, where he self-respecting mother would allow her son to attend a militia camp, where he would learn nothing but to smoke cigarets and to drink bad whiskey.

Sir Frederick announced that to economize, many corps would be drilled at local headquarters this year instead of being sent to camp, and certain corps in a disorganized condition would not be trained at all.

The report of the militia council presented to parliament to-night mentioned that advantage was taken of the visit of the first cruiser squadron to Hallfax to obtain expert naval opinion regarding certain matters connected with the defence of that fortress, and thanks are due to Capt. Sir Robert Arbuthnot, far a very valuable report drawn up under his direction.

The report proceeds to say that: "Questions connected with the military situation, both at home and abroad were carefully studied. The general scheme of defence was in part amended; and the allotment of units to field forces and garrisons revised and brought up to date.

Special mention is made of the cadet corps and the fact is referred to with satisfaction that the movement shows steady growth. On March 31, 1908, there were under the control of the department of militia 145 corps of cadets with an enrolled membership of 9000 boys.

In reference to the expenditure of $1,305,000 in 1908-9 for annual drill, the minister stated that of this sum $230,000 was expended in sending 11,000 troops to Quebec for the tercentenary. The minister referred with satisfaction to the steady increase in number of men trained, while in 1895-6 the number was 19,000 men and 1125 horses, in 1908-9 47,500 men and 8500 horses were drilled. Should the same number be drilled next summer the vote asked would fall $215,000 short of the required Headquarters, Staff Expense.
