An Unbreakable Set of Teeth

There is a class of patients who do not object to paying a fair price for artificial teeth, if they can really secure comfort, usefulness and naturalness.

I have a set of teeth, such as is unobtainable in any other office in this city, to my knowledge. It is out of the ordinary line and unlike the teeth in general use. Its beauty is at once apparent, and it is practically unbreakable.

It will pay those, who are desirous of obtaining the best to be had in the dental line, to call and inspect this for themselves.

I will gladly demonstrate its superiority over other plates, even if you have no immediate intention of investing.

HEAVY SENTENCE FOR TAVERN KEEPER

James H. Dalton Fined $50 or One Month Jail for Allowing Men to Fight in His Saloon--Bobby Dixon in Court.

James H. Dalton was convicted by Judge Ritchie this morning of permitting a row in his saloon on Bridge street, on Saturday, April 8, in which Joseph Pierce and George Kiernin were the principals. Dalton himself is said to have been under the influence of liquor. Dalton, in his defence, asserted that he endeavored to prevent the brawl.

Patrolman Rankin, of the North End Division, who preferred the information, was sworn. He stated that between 6 and 7 o'clock on the evening of April 17, Mrs. Dalton, the tavern-keeper's wife, attracted his attention to the barroom, and as he gazed into the store he perceived two men were fighting furiously, and aiming blows at random. He entered and ascertained that the men were Kiernin and Pierce. Both had doffed their hats and coats, and were bleeding profusely from numerous cuts. Pierce's countenance was unrecognizable, and pools of blood were on the floor. Against the wall Dalton was leaning in a maudlin state, with a gash over his right eye, from which blood was flowing. Apparently he was not active in the encounter, as his coat and hat were on. He was intoxicated. Mrs. Dalton requested the policeman to eject the two belligerents from the barroom, and he complied. Both were also intoxicated.

Officer Rankin was the only witness examined for the prosecution, and on his oath behalf Dalton offered no defence. He said a witness that he was desirous of obtaining was in Fredericton. He added that he has not reopened his saloon since the evening of the disturbance, and as he was refused a license by the commissioners, he has abandoned any intention of reopening. Patrolman Rankin substantiated his statement that his store has been closed since the 17th inst. He was informed that the case would be presented on second information for permitting Kiernin and Pierce to frequent his tavern, as both are not of unblemished reputation. He said he invariably refused admittance to Kiernin, who is unmarried, and Pierce, who is married. The penalty for infringement of this particular section of the liquor license act is a minimum fine of $10 and a maximum fine of $50.

He was convicted of allowing the fracas to exist as it must have been in progress for a considerable length of time, and a fine of $50 or one month in jail was imposed.

Robert Dixon, the illustrious star of the police court, firmanant, was again the feature of the proceedings this morning, and the playlet will be continued tomorrow morning. Patrolmen Covay and McLean arrested Dixon on Long Wharf between 7 and 8 o'clock last evening, having been attracted to Dixon's impromptu slumber couch among the logs, by some vociferous snoring. He was presented with a free drive to the North End station, and when he confronted his honor this morning, his facial contour was somewhat disarranged. In fact, the only means of recognition that the individual was not Robert Dixon, was his dishevelled hair. After pleading inability to intoxication, he was fined $8 or two months. He strode to the centre of the court, and declared that the policeman who escorted him and Peter Keenan from the North End police station to central station at an early hour this morning, had struck him, and that was the manner in which he sustained the injuries to his face. He said that Keenan could corroborate his assertion. Tomorrow morning was appointed for the investigation, and the officer who is charged by Dixon, will be asked to be in attendance. Dixon said he was unable to discern the policeman's features in the dark.

Keenan, a Prince Edward Islander, whom Dixon depended upon to substantiate his story, paid a fine of $4 for inebriation, and departed.

Austin Dyer, a Scotchman, paid the same fee for his freedom.

A search of the habitation of local ethnologists by the police failed to reveal the dusky profile of one William Dixon, who is accused of using his fists on one John Hill, his discarded affinity. The time was Monday night, and the place was Carleton House. Miss Hill was inquisitive that "Mistral" Dixon should court another of her sex, and escort her to the Nickel, when her own heart was pining for him. He informed her that it was impossible to purchase three tickets with a dime, and when she persisted, he pumelled her. He then "trekked" out of sight, and has evidently left these precincts or is in concealment.

James Boyd and Thomas Ferry, who are reported by Patrolman Steeves for fighting on Westworth street yesterday afternoon, degraded the summons to appear.

Further hearing in the case of I. C. R. Officer Smith against William Daley for trespassing in the depot, was postponed until next Wednesday, owing to the illness of John Glynn, witness for Smith.
