CASES IN FAIRVILLE COURT.

A case of considerable interest was dealt with on Friday and Saturday last by Magistrate W. H. Allingham in the Fairville court. Three boys, all under seventeen, were implicated. One answered charges of drunkenness and profane language. He had been arrested on May 24 by the park policeman at Seaside. A soldier in the Kilfers Battalion gave evidence. The boy admitted he had been drinking, but said he was not drunk. He left a deposit of $10 which was forfeited on his non-appearance.

Two other boys faced a charge of using liquor in a public place. One said that he had taken liquor from a bottle in the pantry and replaced what he took with water so that he would not be detected. This case was the first of its kind in this court. John A. Barry, who appeared for the three boys, argued that there were too many complications in the case to convict the defendants. The latter case was dismissed.

MRS. JAMES McHARG.

Death came early this morning to Mrs. James McHarg, at her residence, 609 Main street, following illness which extended over two years. She was fifty-seven years of age and leaves her husband, one son, James L., and one daughter, Annie Gertrude, both at home. The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning from her late residence to Brown's Place. Services will be conducted at the home on Tuesday evening. Although death was not unexpected, the news will cause sincere regret among a large circle of friends.

FARMERS STILL WAIT FOR WARM WEATHER

Some Talk About the Valley Railway—Boys and Farms—At Public Landing Church—The Beautiful River

The Man went up river again on Saturday afternoon to learn what the Woman and the Children had been doing on the Farm. It was raining again when he set out and also fine weather when he arrived at Public Landing, and six short rows of potatoes were added before dark to the state when the rows of vegetables and flower seeds already in the ground. The Woman named them and the Man counted, and the result was a total of fourteen, with some varieties still to be planted. Whether they were to be or is one of the mysteries of the campaign for increased production. They tell at Public Landing of a man who planted beans and when they thrust themselves through the soil he dug them out and turned them upside down, so that the seeds and roots were covered and the roots were in the air. He thought that was the right thing to do. Let an amateur farmer smile. It may be his turn next.

There was an interesting discussion on the Valley Railway as the Ozone went up river on Saturday afternoon. One man asserted that whoever was responsible for the construction of this road should be shot. He said they had gone out of their way to make curves, which caused greater friction, and therefore a greater consumption of coal, and a consequent increase in the cost of operation for all time to come. He believed some of the curves were dangerous. Another man stoutly argued that it was a fairly straight road. He had seen it for himself. The other man gave him an appraising look, and made this observation:

"They certainly didn't get prohibition in this country any too soon. You must have been in an awful state when you saw that road and thought it was straight."

The Valley Railway was also discussed at Woodman's Point on Saturday. A deep blast on Friday night sent fragments of rock flying through windows, and in one or two cases through roofs, at least half a dozen houses being hit or having windows broken. Fortunately no one was hurt. Work on the line is slow because men cannot be got. A fencing crew has two scores of houses on them at Public Landing wharf. One is the cook house and the other the bus house, and they provide very comfortable quarters which can be towed from point to point as the work of fencing proceeds. Nobody is laying any bets as to when trains will be running on this road.

Captain Flewelling of the Ozone was visited by a sturdy boy at Indiantown on Saturday. The boy was looking for a place on a farm, and thought he could earn fifteen dollars a month. The captain thought so, too, and undertook to make some enquiries up river in the lad's behalf. This reminds us of two boys—not school boys—who were sent to farmers in Kings county some weeks ago. One farmer wrote last week that the boy was of no use to him, and he was sending him back, and the other wrote that his boy had walked out one fine morning and so far as he knew was still going strong.

Amateur farming is not half bad when a farmer takes you out and says: "There is the land all ready. There are the tools. Go to it. If you don't know what to do, ask me." That was what Charles Parker said to the Man and the Woman and the Children. The Man found on Saturday that a fine cucumber head had been made and the seeds planted, and another bed with sweet peas, nasturtiums and a few other flower seeds; and there was still room for the potatoes and some winter beans and corn, with some squash and pumpkin seeds in odd corners. Until he tries it the city man does not realize the healthful effect of digging in the soil and getting a real interest in the work of co-operating with nature in the field and garden. When the first soreness leaves his muscles the work becomes a pleasure. But the spring is late. Not a tree is yet in full leaf, and the white blossom of the May-cherry which usually gladdens the eye at this season is still folded in the scarcely opening buds. Even the fields on high ground show great patches not yet tinged with green. The winds are cold and low lying lands are still too wet to cultivate. A week of bright warm weather would now trans-

TWO COLE'S ISLAND BOYS DIE IN WAR

Leigh Northrup And Charles Boyd Killed

News Comes From Major Barker In Cable to W. H. Gamblin And Is Sent to Relatives—Corporal Fred Craft Wounded

Walter H. Gamblin, of 82 Mecklenburg street, received a cable this morning from Major L. W. Barker of a well known siege battery unit informing him that his nephew, Gunner Leigh Northrup, son of Edwin L. Northrup of Cole's Island, had been killed. He also asked him to notify the relatives of Gunner Charles Boyd, that he had also been killed in action.

Both young men were natives of Cole's Island where they were well known and highly respected. They had many friends in this city who will regret to hear of their death. Gunner Northrup was seventeen years of age at the time of enlisting and his chum, Gunner Boyd, was twenty. Both stood above six feet in height and were fine specimens of manhood.

Upon receipt of the cable Mr. Gamblin sent a long distance call to Cole's Island and arranged for the sad news to be conveyed to the relatives. When the news spread that the young men had been killed a gloom was cast over the entire neighborhood and expressions of regret were heard on all sides for the unfortunate young heroes and their bereaved families.

Corp. Fred Craft.

Corporal Fred Craft, son of Byron Craft, West St. John, who many friends have with a draft from a local battalion, has been wounded in France. His wife and four children reside in St. Stephen.

NURSING SISTER DEAD IN FRANCE

Miss Priscilla Taylor Well Known In S. John

Death Resulted From Infection—Young Woman Had Been Many Months In Work of Caring For Wounded

Sergeant Taylor, of No. 8 Field Ambulance, has received sad news from France. On May 24 he was officially notified by the authorities in Ottawa that his only sister, Miss Priscilla Taylor, who had been an army nursing sister for more than twenty-two months, had died. Death, as stated in the telegram, was the result.

On May 8 Sergeant Taylor received a letter from a nursing sister in the same hospital in France reporting the serious illness of his sister. Two days later she died and on May 24, Sergeant Taylor got the word here. There were no other particulars.

Sergeant Taylor said this morning that the death of the position that his sister had contracted her illness through the faithfulness she put into her work. She was well known in New Brunswick and although she was born in Nova Scotia she had lived the greater part of her life in this province. She was a graduate nurse of Boothby Hospital and took a post-graduate course in Bellevue Hospital in New York. Following her studies she nursed in this city for a year. In the fall of 1914 she received an overseas appointment and was in England six months in a military hospital. She then left for France and had been actively engaged in her labor of mercy for sixteen months. Sergeant Taylor is her only living relative.

form the whole face of nature. At the pretty little English church by the river side at the Sunday afternoon service, the rector, Rev. C. W. Nichols, referred to the patriotic duty of cultivating as much land as possible, and also to the duty of Christian people in their praying to ask that God, who gives seed-time and harvest, grant favorable weather for the cropping season.

The choir boys at this service were the boys of the Wiggins institution, who are already in summer quarters, and were brought across the river by Mr. Pierce in a motor boat. Their fresh young voices added greatly to the musical portion of the service. It was Whitsunday, and the rector urged upon his flock the importance of seeking the aid of the Holy Spirit to enable them to answer the questionings of this testing time of human faith; to strengthen them against sin and its temptations; and to give the fervor of real supplication to their times of prayer. The afternoon sunshine streaming through the windows, brought out in clear relief the figure of the Good Shepherd, in the stained window behind the altar, carrying the thoughts of the worshippers back to that life whence comes the inspiration of service and of sacrifice, even in these grim days of war and death.

"I have traveled many thousands of miles," said a man on the Ozone on Saturday, "and I have never seen a prettier place than where we are now." They were just moving out from Westfield wharf toward Woodman's Point. The Ozone brought down more than seventy-five passengers this morning. The morning up river was windy and cold, and farmers were still shaking their heads as they discussed the crops.

OAK HALL SCOVIL BROS., LIMITED ST. JOHN, N. B.

Dear Mary:—

Well, George and Anna are going to get married, I've already decided what we are going to give them—it will be furniture.

I wish papa and mama had given Frank and me furniture when we were married. I think furniture is such a sensible wedding gift. Young couples need it.

Let's buy our presents at the same time. Then we won't both give the same thing. I'll come for you and we'll go to the furniture store tomorrow. How about it?—HELEN
