ARCTIC OCEAN IS WARMING UP

Report from Norway Says That Icebergs are Growing Scarcer.

Washington, Nov. 4.—The Arctic Ocean is warming up, icebergs are growing scarcer and in some places the seals are finding the waters too hot, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Consul Ifft at Bergen, Norway.

Reports from fishermen, seal hunters and explorers, he declared, all point to a radical change in climatic conditions and hitherto unheard of temperatures in the Arctic zone, exploration expeditions reporting that scarcely any ice has been met with as far north as 81 degrees 29 minutes. Soundings to a depth of 6,100 metres showed the gulf stream still very warm.

Great masses of ice have been replaced by moraines of earth and by many points well known glaciers have entirely disappeared. Very few seals and no white fish are being found in the eastern Arctic, while vast shoals of herring and mackerel, which have never before ventured so far north, are being encountered in the old seal fishing grounds.

No Spread The War In Last Minute Speech of Ex-Premier

Hit's Bonar Law on Economic Policy Success—Later, at Leeds, Says Irish Treaty Must be Given a Fair Trial.

(Associated Press.) London, Nov. 4.—Lloyd George received a rousing ovation from a great audience crowded into a motion picture theatre when he appeared to make a political speech this morning just a few minutes before the time limit expired for nominating candidates for parliament.

More than 25,000 persons applied for the 3,000 available seats. Many notable and titled personages were present. On the platform Lloyd George was surrounded by Lord Birkenhead, Austen Chamberlain and some others who were ministers in his cabinet.

Lloyd George launched into his speech with an answer to Premier Bonar Law's sarcastic characterization of him as a drummer boy. The little Welshman declared he was not ashamed of this description, and added, amidst cheers, that Germany lost the war because she had no drummer boy.

In a speech lasting Thursday Bonar Law compared Lloyd George to a drummer boy in the army, saying he served a useful purpose in war time, as he did the drumming better than anyone else, but that when the charge had ended and some had fallen and others were in the hospital, a drummer would be out of place in a hospital unless his drumsticks were taken away from him.

Referring to the Conservative watchword "tranquillity," Lloyd George declared that a policy of tranquillity was dangerous. "It's not a policy, it's a yawn," he said.

The achievements of the late government in the industrial and financial realms were not the results of a mere negative policy, Lloyd George maintained. They were the fruits of initiative and hard work. The former premier declared that a tax on capital must be resisted firmly, adding that he did not anticipate any great danger from the revolutionary elements in the coming elections.

Avoid the extreme of socialism," he said, "but do let us avoid the extreme of the standstill. A great nation like ours cannot stand still. You want a strong group of independent men free from party ties—strong enough to insist on a steady course, free from all extremes."

The speech was interpreted by many political experts as a strong plea for the creation of a centre party in the new parliament. He said that there was a pact between the Conservatives and Liberals in any constituency, he hoped the voters would stand by it honorably.

In districts where no such mutual non-opposition agreement had been reached, he suggested that the candidates should be carefully questioned as to whether they were prepared to place the interests of the nation before the interests of any party.

Lloyd George declared it was vital that the socialist attack should be emphatically repelled. Although the municipal elections might be forced into a reactionary course by a powerful and determined minority, that said Lloyd George, was a real imminent danger.

Particularly acceptable to the audience was the ex-premier's summary of the economic and financial policy of the late government. "When my friend Bonar Law, the new premier, left the wretched coalition cabinet," he said, "the British sovereign would buy in the U. S. only thirteen shillings two pence worth of merchandise, the Canadian Law managed at the Carleton Club to overthrow that cabinet. The British sovereign would buy eighty shillings five pence worth of merchandise."

Lloyd George touched only slightly on what his practical policy would be during the election and he left the audience rather in the dark regarding contacts with the Conservatives in the various constituencies.

If the attitude of Lloyd George's audience and that of the throngs of people about the doors are any criterion, he has by no means lost his popularity. When he appeared on the stage the whole audience rose and joined in cheering which lasted several minutes. Although he did not appear to be in his best speaking form he was able to hold his audience spell-bound, except for intermittent cheers, for more than an hour.

Bonar Law. Leeds, Eng., Nov. 4.—(By Associated Press.)—Premier Bonar Law, addressing 3,000 persons here today, said the view of the whole Unionist party was that the Anglo-Irish treaty was given a fair trial.
