LARGE POLICY TO PROTECT TREASURY

New York, Aug. 5.—A $26,000,000 burglary insurance policy, covering securities for which the State Treasurer of Pennsylvania is responsible, was executed this week by the National Surety Company and twenty-five co-insuring companies. This is the largest burglary insurance policy ever written. The protection afforded by the policy dates from today and will run three years. Premiums will total more than $34,000 for the three years.

R. A. Algire, vice-president of the National Surety Company, explained that, while it was unusual for a state to take out of burglary policy of anything like such proportions, the development indicated a general tendency in that direction. The National Surety Company recently executed such a policy for the State of Kentucky for $4,000,000, Mr. Algire said.

"A state is subject to the same hazard as a bank, or any other institution," he continued. "It is essential for the state to arrange for some sort of protection for securities on hand or for state funds, where they will be held in the state treasury against the theft of various securities held in custody by the treasurer."

BELYEA IS THE FAVORITE IN TODAY'S RACE

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—A new national sculling champion will be created today over the mile and a quarter course of the Schuylkill River. Contenders for the title now held by Walter Hoover of Duluth include Hilton Belyea of St. John, Paul V. Costello of Philadelphia and Louis Zola, New York. Because he has not had sufficient time to get in condition since his victory in the Diamond Sculls in England, Hoover will not row today.

Owing to his two remarkable displays of prowess in winning the association singles yesterday, the Canadian veteran ruled the favorite over his younger opponents. Both Zola and Costello, however, had many supporters who said that youth would win over experience.

Features included an exhibition between Walter Hoover and Jack Kelly, retired world's champion sculler, and a veterans' exhibition by Fred Plaisted of Philadelphia and James H. Reilly of Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Plaisted and Reilly were famous professionals fifty years ago.

WORK OF GRAHAM BELL WILL GO ON

Baddeck, C. B., Aug. 5.—Before Doctor Alexander Graham Bell left Washington in June in what proved to be his last annual pilgrimage to his native place, he visited his cousin, Charles J. Bell, to visit him. He was assured that his cousin would come August 15, and he said that he would not leave his visit too late and intended that he forego an early end to his activities on earth.

For three months before he passed away, Dr. Bell was in unsatisfactory health, and he went daily to his work until last Sunday when he began to grow worse. Messages were despatched to his daughter, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, and her husband, in Brazil, and to others of the family, also a message to two Bostonians, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Harriss.

By coincidence, his cousin, Dr. Harris H. Kerr, arrived at the estate from Washington on Monday. The doctor seemed better and went about the house. He remained awake very late that night, and he spoke of his associate in his experiments here, read to him. A change for the worse came Tuesday afternoon, and he was seen that morning with assistance and loving care could not save his life.

The inventor himself realized that the end was approaching. He spoke of all his children and relatives and remained conscious almost to the moment that the spirit left his body and he fell peacefully asleep.

When the last moments had arrived the indomitable spirit of the man whose usefulness to his race was so great and so far-reaching, he called for Dr. Baldwin, to whom he expressed his wishes regarding the care of his body. He spoke of all his children and relatives and remained conscious almost to the moment that the spirit left his body and he fell peacefully asleep.

Honored by nearly every nation in the world and with numerous honorary university degrees, Dr. Bell took to the grave only the bit of ribbon indicative of membership in the French Legion of Honor. But there was another of his honors he greatly coveted, the degree of LL.D. from Edinburgh University, and the freedom of that city, for he loved Scotland and Scotland loved him.

At Dr. Bell's funeral today, Rev. John MacKinnon, who officiated, said he had never seen a man who was so considerate and kind to his employees and had never known a man more lovable.

GIRL TO WED MAN WHO WOODED WITH REVOLVER

Seventeen Months in Jail Because of Her Charges Mabel's Mind About Charlie.

New York, Aug. 5.—A dapper youth leaped from a Long Island train in Jamaica yesterday afternoon and ran across the platform to where a young woman was waiting. The two embraced so ardently that a crowd quickly gathered, thinking the action was for a movie "fade-out." The hero of this bit of romance was Charles A. Lindsay and the heroine Mabel Sandberg. An hour or so before Lindsay was released from jail at Rahway, N. J., after serving seventeen months, all on account of Mabel.

The "fade-away" came a moment later when Detective Charles Wandering of the Jamaica station stepped up and arrested Lindsay on a charge of abduction, also all on account of Mabel.

"Come on. Come on. You'll have enough of this after your arraignment in court," Wandering urged. He took the conspicuous lovers to the Jamaica police court, where Magistrate Miller heard the whole story. Mabel clung to Charlie.

It seemed that on Jan. 12, 1921, before Mabel realized that she loved Charlie, the young man is alleged to have forced Mabel to accompany him to Newark, where, he said, they were to be married. But Mabel, unwilling, got to a telephone somehow and told her father what was happening. The Newark police got Charlie. In his pocket was a revolver which he had employed to woo Mabel.

A New Jersey court convicted Charlie of gun offenses.

Mabel told the magistrate she wanted to withdraw the charge, as she and Charlie thought they'd be married in two weeks. The magistrate told Charlie to check his artillery, lose the ticket and take good care of Mabel.

HANDBALL WON $70,000 FOR EX-POLICEMAN

Man He Met in the Game Years Ago Named Him in His Will.

New York, Aug. 5.—James A. Scott, a retired policeman, now in charge of safe deposit vaults at 41 West Twenty-fourth street and living at Forest Hills, L. I., received $70,000 from the estate of his friend, William Milne Grinnell, whom he met while playing handball on Washington Heights many years ago. This was disclosed in the Surrogate's Court when an accounting of the estate of Mr. Grinnell, who died in August, 1920, at 830 Seventh avenue, was filed by the executors, Stanley D. Brown and Harry W. Sackett.

The executors reported that they had distributed $84,619 and had a balance of $37,000 on hand. Besides the bequest of $70,000, Mr. Grinnell left $5,000 to each of Scott's sons, James A. and Robert S. Scott, to be used by them in perfecting their education. Scott was retired from the police force several years ago, when an address overlooking a park while raiding a negro gambling resort.

Mr. Grinnell gave the residuary estate, amounting to $70,000 to Mrs. Marguerite Cunliffe-Owen, and left $5,000 to her husband, Fritz Cunliffe-Owen. Yale University got $10,000, while Persian pottery and tiles valued at $5,000 went to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Mr. Grinnell gave $25,000 to a cousin, Harold Mortimer London, and explained that he left nothing to his brother, George Bird Grinnell, and his sister, Helen G. Chase and Laura G. Martin, because they possessed large means.

SUGGESTS SPIRITUAL REMEDY FOR UNREST

Coolidge Says It Is "the only Recourse Left" Against Prevailing Discontent.

Wellesley Hills, Mass., Aug. 5.—Industry is changing from "the theory of exclusion to the theory of inclusion," according to Vice-President Coolidge, who delivered an address outlining the development of industrial democracy in the United States before the ninth annual Wellesley industrial conference. "It no longer is content with one small part of the individual," the vice-president added; "it seeks to enlist all his powers, to recognize all his rights as well as require the performance of all his obligations. In the ideal industry each individual would become an owner, operator, and a manager, a master and a servant, a ruler and a subject."

Mr. Coolidge noted the tendency toward this condition in many industries, citing the encouragement given employees to purchase stock, which "gives them ownership." They were also acquiring "management," he said, through inducements to make suggestions for the better conduct of the business, to apply their inventive ability, to share in determining their wages and conditions of "share and benefit from the general prosperity of the concern for which they
