A NEAPOLITAN CAPE.

Gradually the fashions are reverting to styles of grandmother's day. New modes have new names of course, but there is something familiar about this latest of wraps—the Neapolitan cape. It is developed in broadcloth or serge and may be made with or without the Gladstone (or Lily) collar. The front may be of corded silk or any contrasting material. Five and one-quarter yards of 45-inch or 4 1/4 yards of 54-inch material will be needed to make the design.

Either the 45 or 54-inch material will have to be laid open to cut the circular part of the cape. From a fold of material the back trimming, collar, band, yoke stay and facing may be cut. The back trimming piece and collar are marked with triple "X" perforations, and, consequently, placed on a leatherette side of the goods. Remaining parts are arranged on a lengthwise thread.

The process of putting the cape together begins with closing the back seam, which is indicated by a single large "O" perforation. The upper edges are gathered between double "X" perforations and the band sewed to the gathered front edges as notched. New adjust back trimming piece position on back, center-backs and notches even, regulating fullness underneath. Close back seam of yoke stay and undergarment, indicated by large "O" perforation; adjust to position underneath cape, center-backs, neck and front edges even, leaving lower part in back dress. Wire collar along lines of small "O" perforations and sew to neck edge as notched.

One of the newest of summer wraps is this cape made of chiffon cloth and trimmed with corded silk. Roman striped silks may be used effectively in this connection.

THOUGHTS ON THE GREAT TRAGEDY

(REV. HAROLD T. ROE IN HALIFAX CHRONICLE)

Since last I addressed my readers in the columns of The Morning Chronicle the one outstanding event has been the terrible fate of the Empress of Ireland and her freight of human souls. That tragedy has occupied the premier place in our thoughts and conversation all through the week. The whole world was so stunned and started at the blow that not yet has composure been restored. Notwithstanding the pressure of business or the pursuit of politics and other avocations, disaster ever and anon recurs before our mind. It may seem strange, but it still true it is that even yet I can hardly credit the calamity. The only ocean trip I ever travelled was some four years ago when coming to this country to make my home. I crossed the Atlantic on that superb, but ill-starred, liner, the Empress of Ireland. Born and reared in one of the inland counties of England, I had but little, if any, acquaintance with the sea and none whatever of ocean-going steamers. To me the Empress was the largest and finest ship I had ever seen, but I shall never forget my amazement as I stepped aboard her at the docks at Liverpool. To me she was colossal, a thing of wonderment, and altogether unique and grand. When some one on the streets of Mahon Bay told me she was sinking I flatly refused to believe it. In spite of the tragic story of the huge "Titanic" I could not credit the story of disaster to the Empress of Ireland. Other ships I did not know and had not seen, but the Empress—had I not lived upon her, traversed her length of decks and been borne by her across the waters, and of course, it was only too sadly true. Not only had that gently rocking vessel foundered but she had carried with her over a thousand precious lives. How eagerly I scanned the papers, and how had relatives among the passengers or crew, but the very ship herself seemed something personal to me. She was, so to speak, a link between me and the dear old land I have left behind.

These were my first thoughts as I read the news of the calamity.

My next thoughts were of Commissioner Ross, and I called to mind a memorable meeting in the City of London when, on the same platform as the late General Booth, I heard him deliver an impassioned and eloquent address on the work and aims of the Salvation Army. The Christian gentleman—a valiant warrior of God—is silenced for ever this side the grave. My mind then turned, as yours have done, to the hundreds of men and women, ay, and children, too, our brothers and sisters who suddenly, without warning, were snatched into the

RETURNS TO PAY IT BACK

Worcester, Mass., June 9—Impelled by a conscience that would not be still, Morris Rosenfeld came back to the court room from which he fled three years ago. Rosenfeld gave himself up and sought and secured clemency from the court. For three years in California, out of reach of the best efforts of the district attorney's office to locate him, Rosenfeld has worked and saved money in order to make restitution from the larceny case in which he disappeared from the court room just a few minutes ahead of the reporting of a verdict of guilty against him by the jury that tried his case on February 17, 1911.

Judge Dubuque released Rosenfeld under nominal bail furnished by Probation Officer Early at the direction of the court.

KILL THE FLIES IN YOUR HOUSE NOW

Toronto's Medical Health Officer says: "If you come across any flies in your house kill them now." Therefore all good housekeepers should commence using WILSON'S FLY PADS early and continue their use through the season. Remember that every ten-cent packet of WILSON'S FLY PADS will kill more flies than three hundred sheets of sticky paper.

Follow the directions carefully to get the best results.

HAD NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

With Frequent Sick Headaches and Much Pain After Eating—Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Cured.

This letter is from a lady who gained 14 pounds by using the great food cure. It did wonders for her in improving her general health. She is enthusiastic in its praise, and refers to her neighbors as witnesses of the splendid results obtained.

Mrs. Susan Dobson, Spring Hill Mines, N. S., writes: "It is with pleasure that I write to you in praise of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was troubled with dyspepsia, and could not eat without suffering much pain; also had sick headaches frequently, and my nerves were in bad condition. About ten years ago I took a thorough treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, using altogether 21 boxes, and since then can eat anything, have been freed from headaches, and my health has been greatly improved in every way. I gained 14 pounds in weight, and feel sure I owe everything to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You may use this letter, and my neighbors can tell you of my condition before using this treatment."
