A NEWSPAPER FOR BEGGARS

Paris, Jan. 16.—Perhaps the most curious newspaper printed in the world has begun publication in Paris. It is called the "Mendicant's Journal," and is intended for restricted circulation among the beggars of the city. The government, however, may take steps to suppress it. The newspaper offers to supply lists of names of beggars who may be approached. Particular facilities for obtaining costumes suitable for cold-weather beggars are hinted at. Also a beggar well recommended may obtain at the bureau of information of the paper a list of important weddings, baptisms, burials, and givers of social functions, together with servants who may be "kicked."

Dates on which royal or other official visitors are expected in Paris will also be supplied in advance on payment of a fee, this to be graduated according to the standing of the beggar in his trade and the position he must consent to occupy, as well as the importance of the coming guest.

SAYINGS OF PHILADELPHIA TOTS.

"Oh, yes," she answered, "I always go to church when papa is converted."

EASILY EXPLAINED.

Visitor: "My good man, why are you here?"
Convict: "Christy 'cause they hain't jined the open door movement here yet."

AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL FOR EVERY LARGE CITY

City People Would do Well To Know Something of Farming—Chamber of Commerce Secretary's Views

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 18.—"An agricultural school or an experiment station should be established in the outskirts of every large city in the United States," declares R. J. Maclean, secretary of the Spokane chamber of commerce. He believes this would, in a measure, solve the cost of high living and would direct attention to the production of basic resources. Continuing, he said:

"I do not agree with the president of the Washington Educational Association when he says that more attention should be devoted in the schools to commercial lines. I believe we should first devote our attention to education in agriculture and horticulture. These are the pursuits from which all wealth emanates and on which all other pursuits are dependent. Increase activity in these lines and you, therefore, must increase activity in commercial and all other lines."

"If the schools teach agriculture, agriculture will become more popular. We will then have more farmers, and naturally more production and more valuable resources."

"If I had my way about it there would be an agricultural school or an experiment station on the outskirts of every large city, to educate young men in things pertaining to the farm. The difficulty now is that the city man who wants to learn something of agriculture must usually go a long distance away, entailing great expense. In the cities there are thousands of people who merely eke out an existence. How much better they would be if they were on farms."

"The country boy who comes to the city for the first time is very green with respect to city ways. But there is nothing greener than the city boy on a farm for the first time. Our city people do not know enough about farming, and if they knew more we would be able to solve, in a measure, the high living cost."

HIS THOUSAND TO HELP
TOWARDS SINGLE TAX

Millionaire Joseph Fels Will Put up Cent for Cent in Canadian Campaign

Toronto, Jan. 16.—"I will duplicate every cent put up to fight the single tax in Canada. I don't care who puts it up, or how much they put up, so long as my pocket holds out."

This remarkable offer was made by Joseph Fels, the millionaire "single tax" advocate in an address at a luncheon of the Tax Reform League of Eastern Canada.

Mr. Fels said he made a similar offer in Montreal and expected $100,000 would be collected there.

Mr. Fels predicted that if Lord George does not take up "single tax" at his lightning cry in England at the next election, he will go down to defeat.

DISAPPOINTED.

The city nephew had taken his Uncle Josh to a great hotel for dinner and uncle had demanded backwash cakes. Afterward the city nephew asked if the cakes were satisfactory.

"Pretty good," uncle admitted, grudgingly, "but I wanted to see a man in the window make them. I suppose they make 'em by machinery in that hotel."

THE SUDDEN DEATH OF JAMES ARTHUR

Talking to His Wife, Formerly of St. John, When End Came

Critics Described Detroit Man as One of Six Greatest Photographers in United States—Leaves Three Children

Of the death of James Arthur in Detroit, reported in the Times last night, the Detroit News says:—

James Arthur, the Woodward avenue photographer, who has been proclaimed by leading critics one of the six greatest photographers in the United States, died suddenly at his home, 99 Boston boulevard, last night.

He had been ill since Christmas, but his physicians were confident of his ultimate recovery. Yesterday he appeared to be in the best of spirits and spent a portion of the afternoon down town. At evening he returned home, and shortly before his death he was laughing and joking with members of his family.

He lay down on a couch and was talking with his wife, Mrs. Clara B. Arthur, prominent club woman and leader in Detroit suffragist circles, when the end came with one warning. Heart disease was the cause of death.

Yearly Trip Abroad

James Arthur was born in Montreal 26 years ago, the son of Alexander Arthur, a prominent merchant of that city. He received his education in Montreal schools. When he was 18 he journeyed to a year abroad, where his father was in the habit of combining business and pleasure excursions. Much of the time in the old world was spent in Scotland, the father's native land, but extended trips were made on the continent.

Of a natural artistic temperament, the son was permitted to indulge his tastes to his heart's content. He spent whole days wandering through the famous art galleries of the old world cities, and in his youth made a solemn resolve that some day samples of his own work would adorn some of the galleries he was then visiting. He lived to see that ambition gratified, his work being known in all the art centres of Europe.

He came to Detroit when he was 23 years old, and immediately established himself in a studio. For 20 years he has been in business at 284 Woodward avenue, his studio there being one of the best known in the country.

Mr. Arthur was an artist first, a photographer afterward. It cannot be said of him that he was a mere copyist. Rather, he was a creator, a designer of pictures. He was a fine representative of the advanced school of photography, his work amounting almost to a passion with him. He was constantly working upon new ideas and in his later years he spoke constantly of certain ideas which he expected would revolutionize the art he had made a life study. These ideas he never imparted to any other person. He worked constantly in their development. They were a part of him, they died with him.

Married 29 Years

Mr. Arthur was married 29 years ago to Miss Clara B. Peters, a member of an old boyhood family of St. John, N. B. He was naturally of a retiring disposition himself and was reticent at all times in appearing before the public. He contented himself with his work and with his home. Mrs. Arthur, a cultured woman of this city and a leader in all movements looking toward the betterment of her sex, looked to him constantly for inspiration and encouragement, and he took an extreme delight in her work.

She is a gifted public speaker and is constantly pleading to eloquent terms that her sex be permitted its just estate, but she has always said that it was the spirit

LATH MAKERS' TROUBLE.
The Calais correspondent of the Dan Commercial writes—Lath manufacturers are finding it hard to secure a sufficient supply of wood for manufacturing, p. pose this winter, owing to the high price of the same. The St. Croix Paper Company of Woodland is offering big prices for wood and the owners of lath find themselves seriously handicapped consequently, as their business is such they cannot pay a fancy price for wood owing to the uncertainty of the market for lath. Ordinarily at this time of the lath mills throughout this section delay a rushing business, but just now they are conspicuously still as a result the increased cost of the raw material

Eat More Bread
Few people eat enough of what is rightly called "the staff of life"

FOOD authorities declare that wheat is the KING of all foods. It is the best food for growing children, the best for old age, the best for every age of life. It is best chiefly because it contains most of the life-building nitrogen combined with the proper degree of starch.

Of all the forms in which wheat may be eaten, bread stands at the top. There is no food yet created that can take the place of good bread—"the staff of life."

The better the flour you use, the better, more wholesome, bread you'll make. And better bread means the use of PURITY FLOUR.

The bread will be better, higher-class, because PURITY FLOUR consists exclusively of the high-grade portions of the best Western hard wheat. There are no low-grade portions of the hard wheat berries, nor no soft wheat flour, in it. It is all high-grade—a strong, vigorous flour. The leaves will be more nutritious, because they contain the high-quality nitrogen, gluten, starch and phosphates—the blood-enriching, body-building and life-sustaining elements of the world's strongest wheat. Think of the added enjoyment of eating bread you know is so chock-full of wholesomeness. Think of the good it will do your children, your husband and yourself. Think of the wisdom of eating lots and lots of it, for it is a fact known to the medical profession, that few people eat enough of "the staff of life."

Of course PURITY FLOUR will cost you slightly more than ordinary flour. It's worth the difference. And it will make "more bread and better bread" for you than you can obtain from the same weight of ordinary flour.

And the pastry PURITY FLOUR makes! It's more delicious too, if you take the precaution to add more shortening than is required with ordinary flour. The extra strength of PURITY FLOUR requires the addition of more shortening for best pastry-results.

Think of the PURITY trade-mark when you buy flour. Add PURITY FLOUR to your grocery list, right now.

The Best Way To Make Porridge

EVERY housewife has a little different way of making porridge.

Some wet the oats in cold water first, others stir the oats into boiling water. Some prefer porridge very thick, others thin it out; some like it flaky, others like it jellied.

All these ways can't be the best way. We think there is one best way—that's the Tillson's way.

Here it is:—

Put one and two-thirds cupfuls of boiling water in the inner part of a double boiler. Have the water boiling briskly, sprinkle in one cupful of Tillson's Rolled Oats slowly, so as not to stop the boiling of the water. Add one-third teaspoonful of salt, cover, cook one minute, then place the inner saucepan in the outer in which the water should be boiling. Cook fourteen minutes. Avoid all stirring as this breaks the oats and makes the porridge pasty.

Just out of curiosity get a package of Tillson's Rolled Oats and make your porridge this way for two or three mornings. See if you don't decide that of all the ways of making porridge, this way produces the tastiest results.
