CTRATHCONA'S HORSE

Arrived at Halifax on Friday Morning After a Fourteen Day's Passage from Liverpool.

Less Than Three Hundred Men Return - Col. Steel Expresses His Appreciation of the Hearty Welcome Received-Off for the West.

(Special to the Sun.)
HALIFAX, March 8.—It was not until daybreak this morning that the fourteen days' voyage of the Allan liner Numidian with Strathcona's Horse on board came in full view of the rocky southern shore of Nova Scotia. By 7 o'clock the steamer was entering the harbor, and shortly after she dropped anchor a mile below the Intercolonial piers. The steamer, like all North Atlantic shipping in the past all North Atlantic shipping in the past few weeks, had tempestuous weather. When she passed Cape Clear, on the south of Ireland, a gale was met in the teeth by the steamer which con-tinued with violence day after day, causing heavy seas and much discom-fort. The Numidian sailed on the afternoon of February 23rd, and her daily runs in the thirteen days there-after were as follows: February 24, 200 after were as follows: February 24, 200 miles; February 25, 248; February 26, 210; February 27, 232; February 28, 175; March 1, 162; March 2, 104; March 3, 166; March 4, 172; March 5, 265; March 6, 260; March 7, 252; March 8, 212.

It was a pleasant home coming for all on board except one, Private A. Robinson of C squadron, who is ill with pneumonia.

By no means are all the Strathcona's who sailed a year ago on board. Of the shirty-one officers who went out eighteen return, and of the 585 men 262 were on the Numidian, When Strathcona's Horse left Cape Town they had 515 all told on board. Of these 145 remain in England on furlough waiting discharge. The regiment has lost 26 men by death since sailing from Halifax, of whom 12 were killed and 14 died from illness. Thirtyeight of the Strathcona's remain in South Africa in other corps, fourteen of them having received comm and 26 more stay there to engage in private business. Two Strathcona's died of enteric fever in England.

The Sun correspondent had a long interview with Colonel Steel, the substance of which was that the gallant der indignantly resented some reported criticism of the alleged lack of humanity by the Strathcona's in their treatment of the Boers. The Private Tobin of Ottawa, one of the

The band of the regiment was nearby, discoursing a variety of airs, some national and some the latest topical airs. The Strathcona's were hard at work the strathcona's were hard at work the strathcona's were hard at by, discoursing a variety of airs, some national and some the latest topical airs. The Strathcona's were hard at work transferring their belongings from the Numidian to the freight shed and thence to the train standing ready for the western journey. The steamer was careened over, giving the people on the lower level of the freight shed a bird's-eye view of her wave-washed decks and making the frequent trips to and fro between her and terrafirma a little easier than otherwise it would have been. Colonel Steele's tall manny figure was full in view of the great crowds that, despite the bayonets of the guard, surged around. The soldiers of the guard wished to hear the cotonel, and the people were equally agrees.

the colonel, and the people were equally anxious. An opportunity presented itself for the speech, and here is what Colonel Steele said:

"I thank you, Col. White, officers and men of the Third Royal Canadian Regiment for the bare took have done. and men of the Third Royal Canadian Regiment, for the honor you have done Strathcona's Horse in receiving us in this way on this occasion. I wish to congratulate you on the fine appearance and discipline of your men."

word, said:

"Boys, never forget that you are Canadians, and that Canada as a country has no superior in the wide world. Always be ready to take up arms to defend the Empire whenever the occasion calls. The corps you have welcomed home today, raised by that patriotic Canadian, Lord Strathcona, have endeavored in a quiet way to deserve the respect of the Imperial troops in South Africa by endurance and attention to duty. We have not

In each person's system are myriads of germs which under favorable circumstances develop into a cold. The coughing, sore throat and discharge from the head and lungs are not the cold but simply the results of the efforts of nature to dispel the poison.

Each attack leaves the system weaker to repel subsequent ones with the result that one becomes "subject to colds." Then come weak lungs and next Consumption. In re-turning home, we have a picture ir our minds of a quiet farm-house, and it should be characteristic of a Canaa soldier, and back again into a citizen, as required. The Strathcona's are proud of being Canadians, and hope that the young men in particu-lar will always remember that they are Canadians first. I have served in the ranks and carried a rifle many a long day, and can advise you from experience to always endeavor to do your duty in whatever position you are placed, and in the assurance that if you try you will succeed. I thank you again for the honor you have done the Strathcona's this day."

Concluding his brief remarks, the colonel said with fine effect: "Remember Canada; she's all right."

At this the immense gathering burst into cheers, and the fine band of the third R. C. R. struck up The Maple Leaf. Women pressed forward, eager to get a grasp of the colonel's hand, and one old Irishman ejaculated egarding the Australian and New caland animals, he believed the Canadian ponies were better than the Australian animals.

The orders were supposed to be that the men would not go into the city here, but proceed direct on board the cars. This rule was not carried out rigorously, and many of the returned soldiers found their way down town. This was one of the reasons why the train was delayed in getting away. The transferring of so much baggage was not an easy matter. The Numidian docked at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, but it was six hours later before the heavy military special, with its double locomotives, pulled out of the station. The men left with hearty Halifax cheers ringing in their ears.

ARMY REFORM

Secretary for War Outlines the Plan for the Proposed Reorganization.

Over One Hundred and Twenty-six Thousand Additional Men, and Forty Thousand Volunteers to be Added.

LONDON, March 8.—In the house of commons today Mr. Broderick, the secretary for war, prefaced his introduction of the army estimates for 1901-1902 by saying that the war in South Africa had brought to light many faults, even in those portions of the army system which were believed to be best.

Broderick then proceeded to divulge the army system which were believed to be best.

Mr. Broderick then proceeded to divilge the war office proposals which contemplate the ability to send abroad three army corps with a division of cavalry, in all 120,000 men, and at the same time to have a sufficient force for home defences.

The war office proposals further coatemplate that the country be divided into six districts, each corps commanded by the officer who had a command in time of war. The artillery must be supplemented by heavier guns. The army must be provided with a much larger body of mounted men and transports, and the musketry drill needed improving. It was a question between the volunteer and compulsory systems. He adhered to the former, under which 140,000 men had offered themselves for the war. Compulsion would, therefore, be like applying the spur to a willing horse, and would be disastrous. The government could not shut out the possibility of having to despatch forces to defend the British possessions abroad.

Mr. Broderick then entered into details concerning the proposed reorganization of the army. He said the object of the government in dividing the country into six districts was to centralize the responsibility and decentralize the administration. The three army corps, to be entirely composed of regulars, would be stationed at Aldershot, Salisbury and in I was the administration.
