DIFFICULT TASK TO FORECAST FOOTBALL CHAMPIONS

New York, N. Y., Nov. 7.—With the football season drawing close toward the championship days the situation as regards the leading team is more in doubt than it has been in several seasons. Upset has followed upset so that no one appears as a hard to forecast as it does in baseball. This uncertainty is doing a lot for the popularity of the game from the standpoint of the general public, but it is working havoc with loyal college adherents who look always to see their team win. In years gone by form rarely lied, and the team that won its early games in clean cut fashion seldom failed to come right through to the end with victory.

Previous to the game against West Point Yale looked to have about the best team in the east. The defeat by the cadets, however, made their stock take a slump, and Harvard loomed up big with its victory over the fast New York University, did anything but make an impressive showing.

Tigers Look the Best.
The Tigers now surely look the best, but the question is will they be able to hold the form they displayed Saturday for the next two weeks before their season ends with Yale. The coming Saturday will go a long way toward telling the tale. Harvard will have another test, which would prove whether or not the team has been forced along too fast in its training or not, for they will face the Carleton Indians, who are going along at a pace which gives promise of their duplicating the records of the red-skin teams of years ago.

To date the aborigines have not been defeated, and have beaten teams which probably are of a little better calibre than those which have gone down before them. Brown's bubble was pricked by what Harvard did to them, but they may be in the mood to play a sensational game against the blue.

It would be a very peculiar state of affairs if Carleton, Dartmouth and Brown should all win. The odds are about a million to one against any such a proposition, but so many strange things are happening on the chalk ribbed fields that there is always a possibility that this might eventuate. If such a thing happened it surely would complicate matters when it came to picking the best team of the year. Dartmouth has a great opportunity to win the undisputed title. They will tackle Harvard right after Princeton, and victories over both of these would just about settle the question beyond all doubt.

Players Should Wear Numbers.
In looking back at the first big game of the year there were some things which caused discussion that will last for some time to come. One of the chief points for criticism was the lack of inclination or desire on the part of the management to furnish the public with information which would add greatly to the pleasure of following the game. Under the present rules men are charged very often. The persons who give up their money to see the sport are interested enough to want to know who is playing, yet at Princeton on Saturday it was practically impossible to get any idea as to who was in the line-up, particularly of the Harvard team.

From time to time it has been suggested that the players wear numbers just as they do in athletic competition, but without success. Down at Franklin Field they have the best system in the East. The Pennsylvanians are willing to spend a few dollars out of the many thousands which football draws to have a telegraph operator on the side lines, with a substitute of each team beside him who knows every player. Then they have programmes printed with numbers corresponding to the names of the contestants, and as soon as a play is made the result is flashed to the score board and these numbers are posted. In this way everyone is able to follow the game with intelligence.

The trouble seems to be that most football coaches and graduate managers feel that the players should be right around them and their policy is the famous one of the old Commodore Vanderbilt, "the public be damned." On most of the big fields they have score boards, but the system of operation, except at Philadelphia, is a joke and absolutely useless.

Another echo of the Harvard-Princeton game which is furnishing some food for talk among the crimson adherents is whether the fact that "Bill" Langford's running down the field duplicating the records of the red-skin teams of years ago, and being tackled before he reached the last line. There was no valid reason why Langford could not have done his work just as well had he been a dozen or more feet behind the chasers, but there was nothing except a stumble which could have prevented that tally.

Some will say that there was a possibility of Leslie's setting across the field to head White off. There is also a possibility that as he might have jumped up in the air and tackled the aeroplane which floated over the field.

AVIATOR ISSUES CHALLENGE.
Pasadena, Cal., Nov. 7.—A gold cup and bonuses up to $5,000 have been offered by the backers of Aviator C. P. Rodgers to any rival aviator who can break Rodgers' transcontinental record of 49 days. This was announced today by Edward Merritt, one of Rodgers' business representatives.

Albany Mo., Nov. 7.—Miles McLeod, "hope of the white man," boomed by Jim Corbett, and now under the tutelage of Joe Choyinski, is SOME man. Notice the accent?

I came here to see the Goliath of whom so much has been said. I wanted to see what he looks like. I desired to size up the man-mountain who may stand in Jack Johnson's shoes.

The McLeods are wealthy. They own three farms. Miles operates one, a brother, also a giant, has another, and their parents own a third. The parents are bitterly opposed to Miles' pugilistic ambitions.

I finally found McLeod, having first gone to the paternal farm. He was working in a corn field, a white-headed four-year-old rolling around near by. At the house, where Mrs. Miles McLeod directed us to the field, a younger child tottered about. McLeod is a family man.

As I gazed at this man in his flapping brimmed, much-abused straw hat and worn, stained overalls, the child at his feet, I could scarce imagine him stripped to the buff, under the electric light in a smoke-filled auditorium, taking this titler of the soil and place him where I have seen so many men fighting like beasts.

My imagination is not vivid enough to take this titler of the soil and place him where I have seen so many men fighting like beasts.

McLeod is as symmetrical as a sculptor could desire. He is all long, easy curves. So beautifully proportioned is he so evenly is his weight distributed, that he looks as lean as a greyhound. He is built for speed—a Jim Corbett at his best on an enlarged scale.

McLeod is doing road work to improve his wind; he is punching the big for speed, judgment of distance and to learn how to hit, as well as to develop the muscles of his arms and back; he is skipping the rope to gain speed and agility and to improve his footwork and wind; he boxes with whoever will don the gloves.

Is McLeod a fighter? I don't know. No one will know until he has been through some gruelling fights. He must be game, if he will win to the top.

Is McLeod a boxer? I don't know. A kick in it. He shoots it straight and it found Choyinski's chin frequently when they boxed.

Whether McLeod can live up to his looks remains to be seen. He believes he can, and we will all know whether he is a real thing or a false alarm before many months, for Choyinski intends to send the Gentry Co. giant against a good tough man after he has had him in hand long enough to teach him the rudiments of the game.

The biggest man aren't always the best. It may be well to recall Joe McAniff, and the axiom of pugilism that over six feet two inches they are not world beaters.

WAS TERRIBLY NERVOUS.

WOULD START AT THE LEAST NOISE.

Wherever there are people who are troubled with derailed nerves they will find that Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will restore the equilibrium of the derailed centers, and bring back the shattered nervous system to a perfect condition.

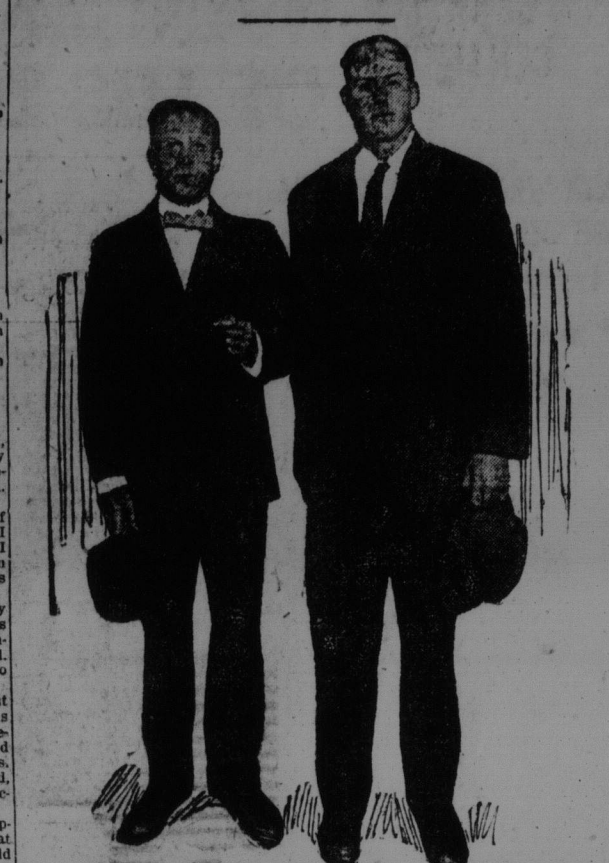

Miss Emma Read, Lakaw, Ont., writes: "I have great pleasure in writing to tell you about the great benefit I have received by using your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. About a year ago I was very badly run down and could hardly do so much as I tried different medicines but none of them did me any good. I was terribly nervous, and would start at the least noise, and even start in my sleep, which made me very weak. I used two boxes of your pills and I am now well and strong again."

BOWLING TONIGHT.
The city and industrial bowling teams will open their respective leagues this evening on Black's alleys, when the Tigers will clash with the Insurance in the city league, and the McAvity and Sons will roll the C. P. R.

Harvest Tea.
The ladies' auxiliary of the Seamen's Mission held a meeting yesterday afternoon and decided to hold a harvest tea in the hall of the Seamen's Mission building on the 16th of this month. There will be three tables; the first will be attended to by Mrs. Seymour and Miss Comyn; the second table will be under the leadership of Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Vuit, Mrs. Belding and Miss LeLachur. The third table will be attended to by Mrs. Dearness, Mrs. Rutherford, Mrs. Leach, Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Harding. There will also be a fancywork table. This tea is intended to raise funds for the Seamen's Mission, which have lately been made at the mission.

Sale of Hats.
The prominent feature for today in Murr's big sale of fall and winter millinery is an extraordinary offer in trimmed hats, described in the firm's advertisement on page two.

JOE CHOYNSKI AND MILES M'LEOD

Some idea of McLeod's gigantic proportions may be obtained from this photograph, showing the Gentry Co. farmer standing beside Choyinski. The latter is six feet in height, and weighs 170 pounds; but beside McLeod he appears to be a small man.

Horse's Leg Swelled.

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work - Quickly Cured by Nerviline.

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Marchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P. O. I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore and swollen. I applied Nerviline and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. One million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. Large size bottle, 50c., or sample size, 25c. All dealers, or The Catarthozone Company, Kingston, Ont.
