Useful Information. HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

As a general rule, it is most economical to buy the best of articles. The price is, of course, always a little higher; but good articles spend best. It is a sacrifice of money to buy poor flour, meat, sugar, molasses, butter, cheese, lard, &c., to say nothing of the injurious effect upon the health.

Of West India suggar and molasses, the Santa Cruix and Porto Rico are considered the best. The Havana is seldom clean. White sugar from Brazil is sometimes very good. Refined sugars usually cortain most of the saccharine substance therefore there

Butter that is made in September and October is the best for winter use. Lard should be hard and white, and that which is taken from a hog not over a year old is Rich cheese feels soft under the pressur of the finger. That which is very strong is neither very good nor healthy. To keep one that is cut, tie it up in a bag that will not admit flies, and hang it up in a cool dry place. If mould appear on it, wipe it off with a dry cloth.

Flour and meal of all kinds should be kept in a cool dry place. The best rice is large and has a clear fresh look. Old rice has sometimes little insects inside the kernals. The small, white sage called pearl sage is the best. The large brown kind has an earthy taste. These articles, and tapioca, ground rice, &c., should be kept covered.

The cracked cocoa is the best; but that which is put up in pound papers is often very good.

Shells are often very musty. Try a quarter of a pound before buying a quantity. To select nutmegs, prick them with a pin. If they are good, the oil will instantly spread around the puncture.

Keep coffee by itself as the odor affects other articles. Keep tea in a close chest or Oranges and Lemons keep best wrapped close in paper, and laid in a drawer of When a cask of molasses is bought, draw off a few quarts, else the fermentation produced by moving it will burst the cask. Bread and cake should be kept in a tin box or stone jar. Salt cod should be kept in a dry place where the odor of it will not affect the air of the house. The best kind is that which is called Dun, from its peculiar color. Fishskin for clearing coffee should be washed dried, cut small, and kept in a box or paper-Soft soap should be kept in a dry place in firkin of water in the cellar. Potatoes should be put into the cellar as soon as they are dug. Lying exposed to the sun turns them green and watery. Some good housekeepers have sods laid over barrels of potatoes not in immediate use. To turn them out upon the cellar bottom.

COOKERY FOR THE WORKING CLASSES. An experiment on a large scale, has been made in Glasgow, to introduce a system of there is accommodation to feed 400 persons at one time, besides which there are a dozen branch establishments planted in the most populous and central districts of the city. up in pennyworths. Eating houses are intended to be self-supporting, so that none should be deterred from frequenting them ing of charity. There are also separate rooms for females, and reading rooms, furrooms for females, and reading rooms, furnished with papers and periodicals, to which the public are admitted free of charge. Penny tickets are issued and the holders, on presenting them at any of the branch establishments, receive provisions equivalent to their value, which they are required to the rimates of the house, and compelled her to pass in selidude her "hours of recreation." The effect of this punishment which lasted for twelve months, was most depressing upon the "culprit." It is further more stated by the same authority that Dr. tablishments, receive provisions equivalent to their value, which they are required to carry home for use. This "Great Western Pusey's subsequent discipline in this case induced the girl "to attempt to starve herinduced the girl "to attempt to starve herinduced the girl "a phrase that is not quite ferred from the fact that 80,000 rations are distributed from it every week. When ery is but little understood and less pracin the mill, and so unable even if competent. to attend to cooking vituals for their husbands, the immense utility of such establishments, where everything is "done," on the most approved principles, must be evident

TURKAY BRAISED .- We frequently eat our meat a la braise, without knowing any more of the manner of preparing it than we do of the prescriptions with which apothecaries poison us; and although the braise is one of the most momentous operations of the kitchen, its principles are generally as little understood as those of the most abstruce mathematical science, or of the sinking fund. We shall endeavor to explain it according to the rules laid down by the president of a culinary society in the interesting chemical lecture which he delivered at an initiatory dinner. In the common esting chemical lecture which he delivered at an initiatory dinner. In the common mode of dressing our carneous ailments, either those particles which constitute the chief portion of their savor evaporate on the spit as fruitlessly as the sighs of an absent lover, or their nutrictive juices are drained into a pot with as little advantage to our stomachs as if they had been drawn into the vertex of the excehequer. To remedy these inconveniences, recourse is had to the braise, which is thus performed:—The bottom of a stew-pan is strewed with slices of bacon and beef (or veal and ham) sliced carrots, onions, celery, pot herbs and whole pepper mace and cloves; upon this bed is laid in soft repose the bird, or the joint, which is the special object of your care, which is then wrapped in the downy covering of the same materials, and the curtain of the lid is sautiously placed upon it. It is then the same materials, and the curtain of the lid is sautiously placed upon it. It is then the same materials, and the curtain of the lid is sautiously placed upon it. Miss Goodman gives an amusing instance of the minu lid is cautiously placed upon it. It is then placed on a moderate fire with hot embers on the top, and left to slumber in a gentle on the top, and left to slumber in a gentle transpiration, under the guardian protection of a sylph in the kitchen, during as many hours as the priestess of the temple deems salutary. When at length taken up it rivals the charm of Venus newly risen from the bath; and when dressed in all its splendor—that is dished with its sauce, we question whether the homage paid to the most admired beauty at her first presentation when the tradesmen cease to advertise most admired beauty at her first presentation.

The most homely leg of mutton acquires in this way a degree of refinement which fits it for the highest society; it may indeed be conjectured that it cannot remain long in such intimate union with the piquant associates we have mentioned without acquiring a certain portion of taste; nor are these its only advantages—it imparts a certain tenderness, peculiarly agreed to Texas—did you see anything of our old friend Jim out there?" TREATMENT ! OF CROUP .- Croup is an inflamation of the inner surface of the windpipe. Inflamation implies heat, and that heat must be subdued, or the patient will invariably die: If prompt efforts are made to cool the parts in case of an attack of croup, relief will be as prompt as it is surprizing and delightful. All know that cold is probably more economy in using loaf, crust and granulated sugars than we should water applied to a hot skin cools it, but all do not know and understand that hot water a sack of potatoes before him, seeing that applied to an inflamed skin will as certainly the horse was getting tired, dismounted, cool it off.
