LADY JANE.

The child interested Pepsie at once Although she had seen very few high-bred children in her short life, she noticed that this little one was different from the small inhabitants of Good Children Street. Her white frock, black sash, and wide black hat had a certain grace uncommon in that quar ter, and every movement and step had an elegant ease, very unlike the goodnatured little creoles who played around Pepsie's window.

However, it was not only the child's beauty, her tasteful, pretty dress, and high-bred air that interested Pepsie ; it was the pale, mournful little face, and the frail little figure, looking so wan and ill. The woman held her by wan and iii. The woman held her by the hand, and she walked very slowly and feebly; the robust, black eyed young man carried a small basket, which the child watched constantly.

NDRY, A. Tin CHIMES. ngings. Journal

That madame yonder must have tra-velled much in the North. I've heard they use them for ladies' toilets."

And, straightway, madame acquired greater importance from the conclusion that she had travelled extensively.

Then the wagon went away, the door was discreetly "bowed," and the loungers dispersed; but Pepsie, from her coign of vantage, still watched every movement of the new-comers. She saw Raste come out with a basket, and she was sure that he had gone to market. She saw madame putting up a pretty lace curtain at one window, and she was curious to know if she intended to have a parlor. Only one blind was thrown open; the other was "bowed" all day, yet she was positive that some one was working behind it. "That must be madame's room," she thought; "that big boy will have the back room next to the kitchen, and the little girl will sleep with madame, so the room on this side, with the pretty curtain, will be the parior. I wonder if she will have a carpet, and a con-sole, with vases of wax-flowers on it, and a cabinet full of shells, and a sofa." This was Pepsie's idea of a parlor; she had seen a parlor once long ago, and it was like this. So she wondered and speculated all day; and all day the pale, sorrowful child sat alone on the side-gallery, holding her bird in her arms; and when night came, Pepsie had not sugared her pecans, neither had she child sat alone on the side-gallery, holding her bird in her arms; and when night came, Pepsie had not sugared her pecans, neither had she read her prayers, nor even played one game of solitaire; but Madelon did not complain of her idleness. It was seldom the child had such a treat, and even Tite Souris escaped a scolding, in consideration of the great event.

The next morning Pepsie was awake very early, and so anxious was she to get to the window that she could hardly wait to be dressed. When she first looked across the street, the doors and shutters were closed, but some one had been stirring; and Tite Souris in-formed her, when she brought her coffee, that madame had been out at "sun up," and had cleaned and bricked" the banquette her own self.

"Then I'm afraid she is n't rich," said Pepsie, "because if she was rich, she'd keep a servant, and perhaps after all she won't have a parlor.

Presently there was a little flutter behind the bowed blind, and lo! it was suddenly flung open, and there, right in the middle of the window, hung a very tasty gilt frame, surrounding a selves," is sufficiently disproved by the history of the persecutions in Ireland. For fully thee hundred years of persecution by England, leath was preferable to life for the Catholic in Ireland, and yet one case of suicide is recorded. It is monstrous to hear the editors of the Protestant press speak of "absolution," of which hey know absolutely nothing, and of Irish Catholics, whom they hate with a hatred that has its roots in the lowest pits of hell. They do the work of their master, and every subject which they touch savors of the atmosphere in which he dwells. Such men are in which he dwells. Such men are spiritual murderers, for they bring death on the souls of their readers by inciting them to hatred of their fellowcitizens.

n Important Statement by a Well-Known Citizen.—Mr. E. J. Powell, of 33 Alma Street, Relates His Remarkable Experience to an Advertiser Representative—Tortured by Malignant Rheumatism From Boyhood. He at Last Escapes From Agony—A Story Full of Hope for Other Sufferers.

London Advertiser.

London Advertiser.

At 33 Alma street, South London, lives Mr. E. J. Powell, a gentleman who has resided in London and vicinity for about six years, and who enjoys the esteem of a large circle of friends here and elsewhere throughout the Province. Those who know him are doubtless aware that he has been a sufferer since his youth from rheuma ism in its worse form. His acquaintances in the city, who remember the long siege of the illness he stood a year ago last winter, and who had come to look upon him as almost a confirmed invalid, have been surprised of late to see the remarkable change for the better that has taken place. The langgard face and almost crippled form of a year ago have given way to an appearance of robustness, vigor and agility that seem the result of a wonderful agency.

Hearing of this a reporter called on Mr. Powell in order to ascertain by what magic means this transformation had been wrought. The scribe first asked it the reports concerning his wonderful restoration to health were true.

"I am thankful to say they are," said Mr. Powell. "My case is pretty well known around here."

"To what do you owe your recovery?" was

"To what do you owe your recovery?" was vice: it would be useless to try a medicine, I thought, Many of my friends, who had probably read of the remarkable cures accomplished by Pink Pills, kept urging me to give them a trial.

"At last I yielded and bought six boxes as a sort of forlorn hope. I took four boxes and received no benefit that I could recognize, but while taking the fifth I noticed that for a period of three or four days I felt no pain. This was a novelty to me, as for three or four years I had not known what it was to have a moment's freedom from suffering, whether in bed or out of it. I supposed it was a temporary relaxation due to natural causes. However, it gave me some hope to finish the sixth box. Then I knew I was getting better—much better. The pain which had been constant become intermittent and less severe. My friends and family told me that I was beginning to look like another man. My face, which had began to wear a drawn expression, common with people who are suffering, commenced to show a better color. My system was being toned up. Inspired with increased hope I purchased six mor: boxes from Mr. Mitchell, the druggist, and continued to take them, and with each box I realized more and more that it was a cure. I used up thirteen boxes in all, and when the thriteen wought for me through the use of Pink Pills. He asked me if I would object to giving a testimonial to the firm—Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, of Brockville. I said I was not a man who cared for motoriety of any character, and did not relish the idea of having my name published broadcast over the land. That is one of the reasons why I have been so long in making this public. But I am so profoundly grateful for my rescue from a life of pain to one of health and strength that I feel I would be neglecting a duty I owe to suffering humanity if I allowed these scruples to interfere any longer with an avowal of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the first of April last. I started again in June and have used six boxes, not because I lava had any exercise and tower the last few y

BEV. MR. M'INTYRE'S TESTIMONY.
The reporter dropped in on Rev. C. E. McIntyre at the parsonage, 82 Askin street. "I know Mr. Powell well," said the reverend gentleman when questioned. "He was an esteemed parishioner of mine when he lived on Askin street. He atterwards moved into the country, but he has since returned and is attending the Askin street church again."
"Do you remember Mr. Powell's illness a year ago last white?"
"Ves; I frequently called on him. He had a very bad attack of rheumatism which laid him up for a long time. He had to be wheeled around the house in a chair."
"You notice that he has recovered?"
"Yes; he appears to be a well man now. I heard he had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills,

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best selling and most popular medicine in the store," ald Mr. B. A. Mitchell, the well known drugstst upon whom the reporter next called.

"Do you know of Mr. Powell's case?" asked he reporter.

"Very and I consider it a most remarkable one. I remember that Mr. Powell was a great sufferer from rheumatism. He was continually buying medicine of some sort, but seemed to get no better. Then he commenced to try Pink Pills. I saw he was beginning to look like a different man, so I asked him one day about it. He told me that he traced his cure to the use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills. As I have already said, the demand for Pink Pills is something astonishing, and they invariably give the best satisfaction. I know this to be so from the voluntary statements of customers, and if necessary the proprietors could get scores of testimonials from people here who have been benefited by the use of Pink Pills. I have sold thousands of boxes, and have no hesitation in recommending them as a perfect blood builder and nerve restorer, curing such diseases as rheumatism, neuraleria, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus dance, nervous headache, nervous prostration and the tired feeling therefrom, the after-effects of la grippe, diseases dehending on humors in the blood, such as serofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. Pink Pills give a healthy glow te pale and sallow complexions, and in the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, over-work of excesses of any nature."

Prof. David Swing, of Chicago, a good Protestant authority certainly, in a recent interview in that city shows what a barren business the Protestant missionaries are doing in heathen lands. The following instance is in the Professor's own words:

verting a heathen. My Church sent a bright young preacher to Africa some time ago and paid his salary and expenses for two or three years. When he came back he said he had very nearly saved one old chief, but was afraid he would soon fall from grace. He kept the chief in the fold by making him the high mogul of the mission The chief liked this first-rate for awhile, but in summer he disappeared for a whole month, and when he came back our missionary took him to task and de-ur missionary took him to task and de-
