

MISSION FIELD.

HOW MISSIONS ARE WORKED.

Archdeacon Farler, of the Universities Mission, writes from Magila (East Africa) to the Times in reply to an attack on Mission in Africa by Dr. Lenz. He observes that, as that traveller's personal knowledge extends only to the Independents and Presbyterians on Lakes Tanganyika and Nyassa, his remarks do not directly affect the Universities Mission; but he wonders what Dr. Lenz expected to see, considering that the station he criticises have all been formed within the last twelve years. He gives the following account of his own work:—"Twelve years ago this station consisted of a mud hut the residence of the missionaries, a few sheds, and a small iron building used as a Church. The natives were always fighting; no man could travel alone safely; they clothed themselves with goat-skins, and their only means of exchange were beads or cotton sheeting. Now a Church holding 700 people, with nave, aisles, porches, an hospital, schools, house for the missionaries, dormitories for boarders, and dining hall—all have been built by our native converts in granite under the superintendence of an English mason. As I write I see eleven masons, native converts, nine of them apprentices, building a large house for Sisters. There is now perfect peace and safety in the land; a child can travel alone. The natives dress in well-made garments, sewn by themselves after the coast fashion. All use rice and rupees, and our wages are paid in money. Trade has been introduced; a large market established close to this station is attended by two or three thousand traders every market-day. The natives bring their rice, maize, sorghum, sanson seed, cattle, sheep, and fowls, and find ready purchasers in the coast people, who can now safely come.

The offertories in the Church has amounted last year to £32, and as the rate of wages is 4s. a day it will be seen that our people give liberally. They also make offerings in kind; one day we counted 800 heads of maize which had been given in the offertory. I can see from my window a young native Christian, trained as a doctor, attending to a crowd of patients in a piazza near the dispensary, binding up their sores and giving them medicine. Finally, all our translations, some of which are now done by our native teachers, and our other literary works, are printed in the first instance by our native Christians who have been taught printing. The Times pronounced this reply to Dr. Lenz unanswerable, and deservedly contrasts the welcome given in Europe to travellers—"the spoilt children of society"—in acknowledgment of their brief dips into African darkness, with the neglect, not aversion, displayed at home to missionaries, men who are content to pass their entire lives in isolation, insalubrity and peril.
