

Vandalism is rampant at Malton, Lorne Park

By DAVE AUSTIN

Two of the town's three Centennial libraries, opened last October, have been subjected to vandalism on their premises.

The Clarkson-Lorne Park Library and the Malton Public Library have had windows broken, break-ins, books taken and flags stolen. The third library in Lakeview has been left virtually unscathed with the exception of a few cracked windows before it opened.

The three new libraries were opened in October. They look very much alike and are built on similar designs. The hardest hit library is the Clarkson-Lorne Park, located near Lorne Park Secondary School.

Several of the building's back windows have holes and cracks caused by BB pellets. The library was broken into three weeks ago and all the petty cash was stolen. Vandals armed with paint tins covered several of the walls with obscenities that workman had trouble removing even with sandblasting.

The library has also had its new flag taken right off the flag pole and several signs inside the library have been taken.

One spokesman explained to The News how a reference book had been found torn and ruined in the parking lot of the high school next door. Only the cover of the book was worth saving.

The library in Malton has been broken into twice and all the petty cash has been taken both times. It sits in the open and can be approached easily without the danger of being seen.

The Malton library has also had its flag taken but has not yet had an inventory to determine if there are any books missing.

A spokesman for the library board said better lighting had been installed in all three libraries and hoped this would curtail most of the vandalism.

The library in Lakeview has had no problems with vandalism. Mrs. Grace Murton said working in the Lakeview library has been "quite an eye-opener."

She said when she first started work there she expected some trouble after what she heard and read about the area. "But the children are very respectful here and there is nothing detrimental I can say about them."

She described the children as very nice and said she was very pleased that Lakeview library had had no problems with vandalism.

Council names members of 16 committees
