Sir William Van Horne takes exception to the attempt that has been made here to saddle Canada with some of the responsibilities for recent suspensions. "The failure of some London people to secure control of the Grand Trunk, and the attendant results of that failure," says Sir William, "have been charged to Canada, I fail to see any possible connection between this circumstance and Canadian conditions. Grand Trunk securities have been mainly confined to the London Stock Exchange ever since I can remember, and the failure of such an attempt by speculators here in London might just as well reflect upon South Africa or Australia as upon Canada. There is no real scarcity of money in Canada for legitimate business," added Sir William. of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, Limited, granted an interview to day to the Journal of Commerce.

"What have you to say, Mr. Hutchison, as to the charge brought against the Canadian miller that he sells his products more cheaply in foreign markets in general, and in the British market in particular, than he does to consumers in this country?"

"To answer that question fairly and fully requires a knowledge of several important facts in the export business; and in addition to that an understanding of the demand of the consumer in Canada.

The Canadian consumer demands a higher average quality of flour than the millers are in the habit of exporting, and the great bulk of our flour that is sent abroad is of an intermediate grade. I may say that taking the business of his company as an indication of the average conditions obtaining in the spring wheat milling industry in Canada, it will be found from a perusal of the data athered from the business conducted by this company during recent months, hat of our total exports of flour to Europe, practically none was of the highest puality that we sell in Canada; while over 80 per cent, of the exprist consisted of 2nd, 3rd, 4sh and intermediate grades. Such higher-grades as are sent abroad ire exported for the purpose of assisting to sell flour of lower quality, as some callers demand a certain proportion of several grades. In addition to that, we sush our export trade for the purpose of keeping our mills running to full canadity, so that we may reduce the average cost of production per unit of output and in addition supply the local trade with offal, which is so necessary for mixed farming in Canada.

Only Partially True.

"Some statements are appearing in the press to the effect that Canadian our is being carried from the West and shipped to Europe to be sold at a very uch lower figure in London than the same grades bring in Canada. This true, but not by any means to the extent indicated by recent writers in the ss. "I have compiled the following figures, Mr. Hutchison, and would like to

"Yes, they are probably as near the mark as you could get, and it will be seen that these various grades of flour were actually sold at a lower price in the United Kingdom than at home. But it must not be forgotten that it costs a kreat deal more to sell flour in Canada than abroad. A cable costs from 50c. o $1, and yet by means of it flour may be sold to the extent of from 200 to 50,000 sacks, and all that the miller has to do is simply to load his flour on the boat, attach his bill of lading to the draft; deposit all the decuments with his anker, and regard this transaction as completed without any additional expense or risk of loss. Practically at that point the foreign buyer has the flour and the Canadian miller has his money. In selling at home, however, it is nevessary to keep a force of travellers all the time on the road under heavy expense. Individual sales may range all the way from five bags upwards; and the mills may have extra expense arisin gfrom cancelled orders. At times, oo, the companies are asked to hold flour for a long time after the date for shipment is past, all of which plainly means additional selling cost.

"But that is not the worst feature of the situation. While the flour is sold in England for spot cash and the miller does not have to wait a day for his noney, once the flour is placed on board the cars, he very often, on the conrary, is obliged to wait for payment in Canada, and sometimes suffer heavy cosses from bad debts.

"Practically none of highest quality of flour (Top Patent) is sold in Great Britain. Of the lower grades, most of the output of Canadian mills is sold throad, very little of it being used for home consumption. As a matter of 'act, these grades are on the average sold cheaper in the United Kingdom han in this country; but, at times, one or other of them selfs for less in Canuda than abroad, because Great Britain, being the big consuming market of the market by exporting the flour abroad.

per barrel. This plainly indicates how keen the competition between the six hundred odd Canadian millers is for the home business. The Canadian list sigures are invariably the extreme prices for small quantities, including delivery, which in many instances involves cartage miles from the mills, and do not by any means represent the average price received. For instanc, a flour listed at $5.00 per parrel will give an actual return on the average, say, of $4.60 in the domestic market on account of cash discounts, erc. The export return for the same four is, say $4.10. But it should be remembered that the cost of marketing an export barrel of four is twenty cents less than for marketing a barrel of domestic flour.

Ocean Freight Rates.

"This brings us naturally to the question of ocean freight rates. It is quite true that the millers are discriminated against in the matter of freights on wheat, as compared with flour. Some years ago, the difference ran as low as 1½c. per 100 lbs., but the average for a number of years has been in the neighbourhood of 2½c. Within the past year or two, however, this difference has greatly widened; it has ranged all the way from 3c. to 8½c., and even 12c. for 100 lbs., which makes competition with British producers on a profitable basis with current values of wheat entirely out of the question. "It is quite true that there is a difference in the cost of handling flour as against wheat, but we feel that the difference charged by the carriers is disproportionate. However, the mills bring business to the steamshi peompanies for westbound traffic, since much of the millers' supplies, notably dute for the manufacture of bags, is imported from Great Britain or India. The steamship owner is entitled to a profit just as much as the miller. If the rates on grain cannot be definitely fixed on account of competition among tramp steamers, and the general exigencies of shipping conditions, then the rates on flour should be made exible, in order not to discriminate against export flour or grain.

"The statement that the flour mills make excessive profits is incorpreted."

"In addition to these advantages, the British miller pays less for his labor machinery, and less for his capital. In England, capital can be secured as rate. Moreover, the British miller pays less for his laborate. While in Canada 6 per cent. to 7 per cent. is the ordinary for the flour are made. And what is more to the point, the British miller is "While critics of the flour milling industry have said a great deal about the by-products which thave been selling steadily in Canada at lower prices than obtain classwhere, and first per ton higher in the United State than in Casa. Each dolong in per ton increase on bran is equivalent to a reduction of $450. on the barrel of flour, so that this really makes a difference, in roune figures, of 250.
