TWO DORMERS ON SILO ROOF.

A short time ago I noticed an editorial re roofing the silo. You spoke of a double gable, one above the shoot and the other where filled. I spoke to our local framer, and he did not understand how it was built, the most here being roofed with just one gable. Could you print a plan of roof inside of the next two weeks, as I would like to have our's roofed this fall?

D. M.

Ans.—It was not a double dormer we advised, but rather two separate dormers, one directly over the silo chute, and the other either directly opposite or at right angles to the first one, depending upon where it may be most convenient to run the blower pipe up when filling. There is nothing complicated about such a roof. Any carpenter who can construct one dormer, can just as easily construct a second one on another part of the same roof. Of course, every dormer adds from ten to twenty dollars to the cost of the roof, the amount varying according to size of the dormer, the material of which it is made, and the speed and wages of the workmen erecting it.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY.

Can people who live on a road where the mail is carried every day from one place to another, get free rural delivery? How should we proceed, and what would be the cost to each person, provided the carrier does not have to go out of his way to leave the mail? Can he collect any fee for delivery?

A. J. W.

Ans.—1. The policy of the Post-office Department is to provide rural delivery on existing mail routes when a desire is expressed therefor by a reasonable number of the residents. The Department requires at least 50 per cent. of the residents of the route to purchase and erect boxes before authorizing the establishment of rural delivery. Those concerned should apply for a form petition to the Post-office Department, Mail Contract Branch, Ottawa, or to the Post-office Inspector of the postal district in which the proposed rural-delivery route is situated, which petition should be circulated over the route and signed by those who are willing to accept rural delivery on the terms of the conditions set by the Department, and when completed should be forwarded to the Post-office Department, or to the Inspector of the Division. A copy of the regulations governing rural delivery will be forwarded by the Department, or by the Post-office Inspector, on request.

GREASE HEELS.

I have a four-year-old horse that has had his heels and fetlock broken out for nearly ten months. A nasty, greasy substance oozes out of them, and there are enlargements resembling proud flesh on them. Should the hair be kept clipped off? Have had him on grass nearly all summer, and he is in fair condition.

A. S.

Ans.—The horse is undoubtedly suffering from grease heel. It is very doubtful whether a cure can be effected. The enlargements are the grape-like tumors which are common in such bad cases. When they abound, it is necessary to use the knife, or actual cautery, followed by caustics. Butter of antimony, applied to the proud-flesh areas with a feather once daily for two or three days previous to the following treatment would be good. Prevention consists in feeding moderately to lightly with grain, and exercising regularly when not working. Purge with 8 drams of aloes and 2 drams ginger given as a ball. Feed bran mashes until purged. Follow this with 1½ ounces of Fowler's Solution of Arsenic twice daily for a week. Apply warm poultices of linseed meal with a little powdered charcoal every six or seven hours for a couple of days and nights, and then apply three times daily a lotion of one ounce each of acetate of lead and sulphate of zinc and two drams carbolic acid to a pint of water. Keep the legs dry and clean. It will not be necessary to clip the hair off before poulticing.
