TWO

Published by permission of P. J. Kenedy & ons clay Street, New York HAWTHORNDEAN

A STORY OF EVERY DAY LIFE

BY MRS. CLARA M. THOMPSON

CHAPTER XXIII.-CONTINUED Rosine was willing to do any thing but do wrong to soothe her sister, and she commenced slowly, without looking up :

draw

parson.'

into

through all his icy coldness he was as courteous to the Captain as possi ble, always saluting him in a defer ential and kindly way, returning his gruffness with forbearance, and a certain kind of humility which said, will do all I can to repair it in your

There were times when the Captain was almost frantic, so exasperating were his thoughts, and nothing but the strict discipline of a man of.

the man he had come to hate ; his

the Doctor's hands any himself ; and his words proved true.

That night was the turning point ;

him many days, till he was able to recall his identity he raised his hand to

"Navy Yard, December, 18-. "My Sweet Young Friend : "I must congratulate you on your reunion with your sister, of which I heard today from Sister Agnes. I hope I may yet have a little place in your thoughts. Come and see me with your sister, you know you are always welcome. Mrs. Laura Hartwas with me yesterday, she misses you constantly, but your friends are right, your young fresh heart should not be made the recipient of sorrows like hers. I wish l could comfort her, but naturally she is very anxious about the Lieutenant just now."-she hesitated.

Go on," said Marion eagerly, "I have been wishing to ask an explanation of some expressions I heard the Doctor use yesterday; it seems that she had desired to go to her husband, and the Colonel prevented it.'

"I knew nothing of it !" replied Rosine with surprise. Well, I picked it up from the end of a conversation ; but go on," she added impatiently. "There is nothing more of Laura here," said Rosine, and continued her reading — "We hear from Harry almost every steamer ; he is getting on finely, is at present at Strasburg, working hard at his profession.

Profession !" cried Marion, look ing around from the glass, "I thought he was in the Navy !'

"He was in the service," replied Rosine. "but resigned on account of the war with Mexico, which he could not justify to his conscience.' 'Very foolish of him !" said the sister, in a tone slightly contemp-"What had he to do with the tuous. right or wrong of the matter? If he obeyed orders, the responsibility rested with the government.'

You reason like the Commodore, said Rosine, laughing. "He was mortally angry with his son."

"I don't wonder," replied the sister; "it is a great hinderance to the rise of a man to change his profession after being established. Does he live on his father in the meantime ?'

Rosine's face flushed with indigna-tion as she replied, "You don't know Harry Greenwood. He is above all meanness."

'He has a warm advocate in you. at least." said Marion, looking keenly at Rosine, who blushed painfully but go on, lets hear what his sister says of him."

More reluctantly than ever. Rosine sion for more light. A mirror hung continued her reading, still loath to opposite, and the reflection of his offend her sister by seeming to want confidence — "He thinks to stay unshorn, emaciated face amazed him; he hardly knew himself. To in Europe two or three years. Father is a shade more reconciled, at least he does not speak of my brother with the severity that so distressed me. Come to me soon, my dear one and I will tell you more of his daily life. You will find a loving welcome from your attached.

DORA GREENWOOD."

It was true, as Marion had any, mised from what she had overheard, that Laura had desired to go to her husband. Since Le Compte's departure, her any

THE CATHOLIC RECORD

clined.

dishes.

ing.

ferent colored oversocks. They fire. Then the priest began :

an upturned box.

lithe and vigorous frame, and he the relation between the Surgeon illy prepared to bear his wound. and his Captain was an amicable it was at this juncture that the one. Although Aleck Hartland was new surgeon arrived. From that quiet and cold, there was nothing of new surgeon arrived. From that time Captain Hartland grew almost hauteur or revenge in his manner dumb, and the lines about his mouth toward Le Compte. He even talked with him sometimes when there were and chin despened daily ; he became many listeners, on the common with his men, and reticent topics of the day, but he carefully with his brother officers, treating Le avoided meeting him alone. lompte with chilling coldness, cut-" The Captain's fever and his still ting off every effort of the surgeon open wound had left him unfit for him into conversation, repelling all inquiries as to the conduty, and he only waited orders from the Department for a furlough, dition of his wound, and savagely hoping Le Compte might become and looked forward ultimately to a amenable, by some infringement of discharge from the service, with a rule, to a court-martial. But the feeble body and blighted hopes. surgeon was too wise for him;

> CHAPTER XXV. COUSIN TOM

The winter of Marion's sojourn in Colonel Hartland's family was not as gay as it would have been, but for the anxiety that brooded over the

I know I have injured you, and I society in which they mixed ; anxiety for sons, husbands, fathers, and brothers, preparing for battle ; war might commence at any moment my ladies." where Aleck was, although as yet all was quiet. Mrs. Colonel Hartwar could have prevented a violent land prepared to give a small but cutbreak. It was specially galling brilliant party, especially, as she to Aleck to feel that he was coming said, for bringing out Rosine, there more and more within the power of were to be but few invitations and those very select ; she felt that it wound was growing day by day more was due to Rosine and to society troublesome for the want of proper that she should make this exertion treatment, and the fever of the now, as circumstances might herethat she should make this exertion after prevent her doing it at all climate had made its appearance on ship board-either might bring him in her secret heart she desired that day. Marion and Rosa should make the And they came at last, both together; acquaintance of some other marriage-the wound broke out afresh, and able gentleman besides her son. Dr. delirium and fever came upon him ; Hartland frowned upon the whole his heart had been taxed too far. plan, laughed at his mother's idea After he was transferred to the ship's of bringing out Rosine, whom he had hospital the fever ran higher, the himself escorted to the naval ball; bounding pulse became sharper each but consented in the end to be con day, till two of his brother officers sulted about the invitations. Mrs. twice stood over him watching for Hartland, seated at the writing table the last breath. But Le Compte, in the library, had called to him who had tended him faithfully, as he came into the hall. assured them that the worst was yet "Where are the girls?" he in to come-when the raging fever had quired, as he entered, equipped in burned out, and he should come to furs and coats. Gone sleigh riding with your father, more than two hours since.'

three times the nurse said he was "Just like father !" rejoined Ned, in an injured tone. He had come gone, but Le Compte plied him with stimulants, and to his unwearied from his office after a hard day's work, promising himself a drive with efforts he owed his life. The first glimpse of returning reason was the young ladies, and had been foreshown in the averted face, when the stalled by his paternal relative, his surgeon stooped over him with the reply to his mother's request for necessary draught. The Doctor saw help in the invitations to the party this, and withdrew at once, leaving " I suppose was not very cordial. the close care with the nurse, and you will insist upon having Laura only appearing when the Captain here," he said, pettishly, "and Tom was sleeping, and withdrawing Stapleton has just arrived in the altogether as soon as he was able to Belvidere from India, and will peak. The first word was "letters," down upon us today; of course he but when the package was given must come. A precious couple to him, he could only hopelessly touch begin with !' them. The alcove where his cot was How surly you are, Ned," said placed was in a dim and darkened his his mother, quistly, her calm self-assurance unrufiled by her son's corner, and he held the letters near remark ; " of course we must ask ask for more light. As his brain Laura, the world will expect it, and began to act, a restlessness which retarded his recovery manifested or not. When did he arrive? he itself, and the surgeon gave permis- has been away two years." Yes, it is a pity the good-for-nothing old fellow hadn't staid where he was appreciated." you talk shamefully," re Ned, plied his mother in the same unto stroke his unclipped beard, when ruffled tone of voice; " he is your papa's only near relative, and you he started as if a serpent had stung him, though the curtains were down, and Aleck will be his heirs, in all and no human eye was on him, for probability. there, on the fourth finger on his 'He better not leave any of his left hand, above the seal ring which tin to me, I should pass it over to he always wore, was a plain gold Sister Agnes at once. Did you hear ring ; there could be no mistake, for the Asylum was completely riddled by fire last night, the children all in spite of the tramor which seized him, he drew it from his herei, and it is saved by the superhuman electron and it is saved by the superhuman electron is saved by the superhuman electron is a complex of the Sisters, some of whom are dreadfully burned; I have been there dreadfully burned; I have been there is the day dressing wounds."

grown to your fingers.' holding "She has been holding ribands," said the Colonel; the "I offered her my furs, but she de-

Ned held her hands, chafing and squeezing them alternately, till all I sat there in the little cell, on the at once the thought Marion had suggested to Rosine the previous young priest. I remember that the night rushed into her head causing man was very ill, and I knew that her to cast down her eyes, blush painfully, and attempt to disengage her hands. A flash like an electric battery shot across the Doctor's mind, and his first impulse was to loose the hands he held, the next to retain them, and if possible. Last Sacraments and make your fathom the meaning of that blush. peace with God.' Her feeble resistance was in vain. and she was almost ready to drop tears of vexation with herself, not he replied: unmingled with anger against "'I don't want the Last Sacraanmingled with anger against Marion, for the suggestions. We came across Cousin Tom in the Park," said the Colonel, who was gradually thawing out ; " he had the most splendid turnout in the crowd, and insisted upon my sparing one of You didn't do it ?" exclaimed

Dr. Hartland, his countenance changing, and turning quickly to his father without releasing Rosine. TO BE CONTINUED

> "BENEATH THE ASHES"

he said, 'Yes, very slowly, his voice spoke what I thought were hard sounding thin and weak. "'I'm an Irishman, too.' I went words to me, and since then I have not gone to the Sacraments. That on ; but he did not give the slightest was why I refused them so abruptly yesterday. In my heart I didn't mean it. After you went I began to sign that he heard me. "I felt strangely embarrassed as think I had been in the wrong ; and I edge of the hard bed. I was a very have no longer any hard feelings. And now, Father, if you will hear me, man was very ill, and I knew that I will go to confession. he must be prepared for death as The priest stopped speaking, and soon as possible. Again I spoke, as there was no sound for a little while save the steady purr of the fire in the gently as I could :

'I suppose you know that the end large square stove.-B. J. Murdoch. is not far off ; and you are a Catholic. in Ave Maria. of course, you want to receive the peace with God.' "I shall never forget the shock of surprise his works caused me as ments of the Church, I tell you

There was a ring of finality in his voice. He looked at me for a little while, then his eyes sought the floor again. After some time, I stood up and moved toward the door. My departure was evidently expected. I had just sufficient presence of mind to say

'I'll come to see you again, and I hope to find you in different dispositions.'

I went along the cold, white, bare corridor, scarcely noticing the drawn faces that peered out at me through the black bars. Only one the ought was in my mind, and that I heard a Catholic refuse the Last Sacraments of his Church.

It was after supper in Camp No. 4 'As I left the prison the atmos of the North Shore Lumber Comphere grew suddenly warmer, and that peace which often comes with the setting sun seemed to be over pany; and we sat around the great square stove that panted and roared and grew red at its task of heating A few children were all things. the wide, low room. Two or three playing not far away, and singing bright lampe, with green tin shades, merrily as they ran about; but I could not stamp from my mind the hung from the rafters above the long image of that poor dying Irishman who seemed to have lost the faith. supper table, at which the "cookee worked while gathering up the

'I awoke that night two or three Father John Coughlan was with times thinking of the prisoner, and blaming myself for not having us, as many of his parishioners stayed longer with him. belonged to No. 4. He had come on In the his annual winter trip to hear the morning I offered Mass for him, and confessions of the men, and he was after breakfast I went to the school to say Mass on his little portable and asked all the little children altar for them the following morn-to pray for my intention. "All that morning as I went about The crew consisted of about thirty my work the thought of the poor fellow was continuously in my mind. men, as No. 4 was not then a very large camp. All had discarded the I began to recall certain impressions thick red mackinaws they usually had received on my first visit to wore at their work, and they now sat the Tower of London a few years about the fire clothed in grey or dark before. As I noted the different blue flannel shirte, and grey home points of interest, the thought that so many had passed long terms of spun trousers tucked inside of dif imprisonment caused me to wonder low cut, oiler moccasins on their feet. how they had borne the terrible The mejority were seated on benches seclusion, until I came to one part though two or three sat on chairs or of the Tower where a prisoner had a life sentence. On the stone wall of his cell he had carved the words, I can not remember how it came 'He that endureth unto the end shall about, but presently all the men were looking eagerly at Father John. be saved.' The words are still there. On the wall of another cell I read who had moved his chair a little back from the stove which was now 'Be thou faithful until death, and I will give thee the crown of life. giving forth intense heat from the burning rock maple and beach wood. And as I thought of the living faith He was about to begin a story-some that must have inspired those men personal experience—so I stopped talking to the man nearest me, with to write those words, hundreds of years ago, in the stone, and then of whom I had just entered into converthe poor fellow who had refused the sation. And there was silence all Sacraments, I could not but judge round, save for the crackling of the that his faith was dead, and the thought of 'white ashes' came to my mind It is a long time since it all hap

When I came back that afternoon ned, yet it is very easy for me to to see him he seemed more inclined to speak to me. After we had talked recall the different little incidents in the event that I am going to relate. for a little while I remarked very Shortly after my ordination to the gently priesthood I was sent to Australia. 'In Ireland I have often heard next week. where I remained a few years before the people say that an Irishman coming to America. I had not been never loses the faith of St. Patrick. long at my new mission when one night at about 9 o'clock, the prison "He raised his eyes quickly, though his chin still rested on his doctor came to tell me that a prischest, and he looked at me strangely oner, a poor fellow-countryman of

THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY IS THE MOTHER OF GOD The Church gives official sanction and assurance that: "The Blessed Virgin Mary is truly the Mother of God." In the year 431 at the City of and assurance that : Ephesus, the Father of the Third General Council of the Church, to offset the errors that some were holding in regard to this matter, solemnly defined that Mary is the Mother of God. Against those who persisted in believing that she was not the mother of God. the Church formulated a condemnation Should anyone refuse to admit that the Emmanuel is truly God, and that in consequence the Holy Virgin is Mother of God, since she gave birth according to the flesh to the Word of God made flesh, let him be anathema." These sentiments are uttered by Elizabeth, who, inspired by the Holy Ghost, asks when Mary visited her, 'Whence it is to me that the Mother of my Lord should come (Luke 1, 43.) to me ?"

THE MATERNITY OF

This is understood, however, not that she is the mother of His Divinity. This has come from eternity A mother is truly called a mother of her child even though it is true that the babe receives from her only its material substance, and not its spin itual soul, which is a result of God's exclusive and direct creation. In a somewhat similar way, the Person who was born of Mary is the Word made flesh. From her He received His humanity, His divinity is from sternity, but the Person in whom these two natures are combine God, and He was born of her, and the only true way to express this fact, is to say that she is the mother of God according to the flesh, as the Eternal Father is His Father, according to the Godhead.

HER IMMACULATE CONCEPTION

Because of this fact, that she was to be the mother of God. Heaven itself prepared her in a special manner for this great honor. To do this properly God did not wait until she arrived upon this earth, but carefully selected for her, human beings of no ordinary merit to be her parents. The honor fell devout couple, Joachim and Ann. Since Mary, their child, was to be so signally adorned by Heaven, it was fitting that her soul would not be even for a moment under the dominion of the demons by the stain of Original Sin, hence at the very first ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. moment of her conception she was parserved from that sin to which we fall heir. This is called her Immaculate Conception, and will form the subject of an entire instruction

HER VIRGIN MOTHERHOOD

Another privilege of Mary which marks her out as the holiest amongst the holy is that she is the Virgin-Mother. In all the symbols

BARRISTERS, SOLICITORS, NOTARIES, 270 eton T. Louis Monalass George Keogla Cable Address : "Foy" Telephones { Main 461 Main 462 Offices : Continental Life Building CORNER BAY AND RICHMOND STREET TORONTO DAY, FERGUSON & CO. BARRISTERS
 BARRISTERS

 James E, Day
 26 Adelaide St. West

 John M. Ferguson
 26 Adelaide St. West

 Joseph P, Walsh
 TORONTO, CANA
TORONTO, CANADA LUNNEY & LANNAN BARRISTERS, SOLICITORS, NOTARINE Harry W. Lunney, B. A., B. C. L. Alphonsus Lannan, LL. B. CALGARY, ALBERTA JOHN H. MCELDERRY BARRISTER, SOLICITOR NOTARY PUBLIC CONVEYANCER

JUNE 5, 1920

Phone 17t

ARRISTERS, SOLICITORS

MURPHY & GUNN

BARRISTERS, SOLICITORS, NOTARDES

Bolicitors for The Home Bank of Canada Solicitors for the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation Suite 53, Bank of Toronto Chambers

LONDON, CANADA

FOY, KNOX & MONAHAN

ey to Loan Teleph HERALD BLDG. ROOM 24 Telephone 1081 GUELPH, ONT.

ARCHITECTS WATT & BLACKWELL Members Ontario Association ARCHITECTS

Bixth Floor, Bank of Toronto Chambers LONDON, ONT. DENTISTS

DR. BRUCE E. EAID Room 5, Dominion Bank Chamber Cor. Richmond and Dundas Sts. Phone 9006

EDUCATIONAL St. Jerome's College

Founded 1864 KITCHENER, OMT.

Excellent Business College Department cellent High School or Academic Department cellent College and Philosophical Department

REV. W. A. BENINGER, C. R., President.

FUNERAL DIRECTORS

E. C. Killingsworth FUNERAL DIRECTOR Open Day and Night 389 Burwell St. Phone 3971

Best Market Price Pald for Raccoon, Skunk ak, Wessel and Fox.

ROSS' LIMITED

LONDON, ONT.

87 YONGE ST., TORONTO

Phone Main 4030

3691-15

Mexico.

lexico. Sister Agnes could not persuade through all, had restored to his her to the contrary; with all the energy of her former days, she was frowned upon her he needed no determined ; there was but one thing further proof, his decision was made. to be done, Colonel Hartland must be informed of her intentions. The good Sister performed the painful task as a matter of plain duty. No sooner was he aware of her plan than he called upon her, and used every argument to dissuade her from her purpose, begged her to consider that Aleck was in the midst of preparations for carnage and blood. carried out with the dead. Finding that he made no impression changed his tactics, and told her plainly that under the circum stances the world would say, and not of home letters, " and put these into an envelope, and return them un. opened to Mrs. Laura Hartland," he This was "the unkindest Compte added sternly ; they had come from cut of all," but it kept her where his wife during his illness. The letters from his father's hand, full of she was.

CHAPTER XXIV.

BEFORE THE CASTLE OF VERA CRUZ

1

knowledge of the most minute cir-We must carry our readers to cumstances of his son's position. the Gulf of Mexico, where, before the Castle of Vera Cruz, the X---- was anchored, preparing for the siege that was to make so many bleeding our anxiety." hearts. The spirit of conquest of people and territory was the spirit of decidedly, when Captain Jones looked up from the sheet, as if he would inquire who was this friend. the Maxican war; not to subdue enemies, or to defend one's own, "Impossible !" replied the Captain, equally decided in his tone. but to attack a harmless population Of course there could be but little " I feel it, I see it," said Hartland ; ' I am under infinite obligations to true patriotism in such a war : there was but small heart in it, as many of the officers themselves acknowledged. him, Jones ; obligations I can never We can compare it to nothing but a repay; he has not only saved my life, for that I almost hate him, but he has opened my eyes, and for that fight between a bull-dog and a small terrier ; but with the moral or political aspects of the war our narrative I cannot be too grateful." has but little to do. Lieutenant Alexander Hartland was at Vera Cruz, foremost in that terrible siege of five days, and bore his part so a word has passed between ur, but well that he was promoted to the he—say no more," he added, feeling

"Captaincy," with the addition of a he was taxing himself too far," ball in his thigh, which threatened henceforth, I am a free man."

had redoubled, and she had even false, degraded, worthless woman most of the day, dressing wounds." "Was Miss Greenwood there ? ingone so far as to secure passage in a who could part with that ring; it steamer bound for the Guif of was burning, searing proof of her was burning, searing proof of her

"Read these for me, he said to aptain Jones, pointing to a package paternal love and solicitude, were evidently written with a perfect

Thank that friend," (he wrote

'La Compte," said Aleck very quired Mrs. Hartland, without look-ing up from her writing. "I hear orphans." frowned upon her; he needed no Of course ; she'll make a splendid Sister of Charity herself, by and by,"

said the Doctor, bitterly. "We ought to ask her to the The disclosure carried him into a relapse, and for many days he lay speechless, taking no notice of any party," said Mrs. Hartland, "she is one. Captain Jones came to him so very fond of Rosine." again, when Le Compte had by assid-She won't come, even for her love could think and speak. With a way-tear of me," he added, with a slight worn heart, he felt no gratitude for curl of the lin. Mrs. Hartland sighed as much as his recovery, he wished he had been here," she said, after a pause. "Mr. Greenwood, if you please, mother; there is no Lieutenant Greenwood now."

"Don't you think he was quite charmed with Rosine ?" inquired inquired Mrs. Hartland, dipping her pen into the ink for the twentieth time. The Doctor turned sharply around, and gazed at his mother a little fiercely for a moment, then suffering his countenance to relax into a smile. who writes so particularly to relieve or breaking matches for themselves or other people; let Rosa alone in that way, I beg of you. She is the only young girl I meet who is not sure that every man she sees is wishing to be a lover; but this sister of hers-what a contrast! She'll put some new ideas into Rosa's head before spring. She were better in Illinois, if they expect her to marry her affiancès ; she is a la Laura with the deviltry left out." 'Hush !" said his mother, laying her hand on bis arm. At that instant the door opened,

"And you believe the rescal ?" questioned his friend with surprise. "The proof is unquestionable, not and the two girls bounded in with rosy cheeks and animated step, the then I spoke aloud : Colonel following. Dr. Hartland "'I suppose you come fi moved one side, but did not greet country-from Ireland?' them as usual; his bad humor did not leave him till he saw Rosine ball in his thigh, which threatened henceforth, I am a free man. to lame him for life. Either care, or His decision was irrevocable, his the sickly climate, or some nameless tone so frigid, so severe, that his gruffly, taking her small hands in animal expression which I had his; "these things have nearly noticed. After some time, however, pulling away at her gloves. "Here, my own, was very sick : his condition was very serious, and all the symp seem to have lost it.' toms seemed to say that he had long to live. The man had not sent while. for me, but the doctor thought per-spends all her leisure with the haps I should like to visit the poor fellow. I thanked the doctor-who by the way was not a Catholic-and I promised to go to see the man the next day.

It was late in the afternoon the had vanished. following day before I was free to visit the prison. As I walked down last the long whitewashed stone corridor past cell after cell, with now and then a face peering out at me through the small square grill in the black God's Church.' iron barred door, there came over me she ever permitted herself to sigh. "I wish Lieutenant Greenwood were hard to shake off.

When I came to my sick man's cell the warden unlocked the heavy door and let me go in. The sick man could not have been more than forty five years old yet his beard was plentifully streaked with white. He was seated in a chair, and he had on a rough, grey greatcoat over his prison garb. His head was resting on his chest, and he did not raise it word. as I entered. Only his eyes moved upwards, and the way in which they did so gave him a very sinister expression. "I bowed to him and said "Good-day !" He looked at me strangely as he replied, and something in his look testant services on Sunday.' reminded me of an animal rather than a man; yet it was a subdued expression. His eyes rested on me expression. His eyes rested on me for the tears had come to my eyes, for a few seconds, then they looked at and I did not wish him to see the rough stone floor again. "I felt a great pity for this poor coat about his neck, he continued : fellow, as I looked around on the cold, bare, whitewashed walls; and I "'There is a little bymn that I thought of the great depression that often sing here ; my mother used to sing it back home when I was must come to a man living day after 'God little boy. It goes like this : day in such surroundings.

help him !' I said quietly to myself ; I rise from dreams of time. And an angel guides my feet "'I suppose you come from the old To the sacred altar throne Where Jesus' Heart doth beat

"He showed no animation what.

scever save a slight raising of the "He ceased speaking, and waited : few seconds as if he expected me to make some comment; but I was unable to speak. Then he went on 'A long time ago, Father, a priest

-

'But I am sorry to say that you and professions of faith, from the Apostles Creed to the Nicene Creed He remained silent for a little as well as in the general Councils of Nice, Constantinople, Ephesus, Calce Finally he raised his head for the first time since I had met don, Mary is called him, and, if I am not mistaken, there her Son not only to h 'Virgin," and him, and, if I am not mistaken, there were tears in his eyee. I noticed quickly that all that was like an animal in the expression of his face proclaimed by the Council of Lateran in 649 to be "Ever Virgin." The explanation of this double So you think I have lost the faith of St. Patrick ?' he said at mystery, the Virginal Conception and the Virginal Birth of Christ 'It seems to me,' I replied ; 'for is given by the Angel Gabriel. " thou you have refused the Sacraments of hold," Gabriel announced, shalt conceive in thy womb, and thou

'He said nothing but sat up shall bring forth a Son; thou shalt straight very slowly, for he was ex-tremely weak. Then he raised his right hand and drew back his thick and remains over virgin. Gabriel coat collar and his shirt, which was answers, "The Holy Ghost shall opened at the front; bending his come upon thee; and the power of the Most High shall overshadow head forward at the same time, so that his shoulders were partly thee; with God no word shall be exposed. His back was terribly impossible." It is no effort of natural cause. It is the result of God's scarred with long welts, some of cause. It is the result of God's them not entirely healed. I stood there, looking at the poor fellow's the beginning God said, "Let there shoulders, and I could not say a be light and there was light," or as when man was first made, the obedient clay gathered at its Master's word, and stood erect a per-That is what I get for the faith of St. Patrick, Father ?" he said. 'Every Monday morning for a long fect body, so when Mary said, " Be it done unto me according to Thy word," time before I was sick I was lashed because I refused to go to the Prothere budded forth within her, vir gin life at God's command the living fruit of a human babe. And again, as when the disciples were gathered "I did not move from the place where I was standing behind him ; together within solid and barred door, Christ in His actual reality and physical presence, entered and stood in their midst, so when the time came for fear of embarrassing him. As I was helping him to rearrange his at Bethlehem, one moment the Divine Babe is yet unborn, a moment more and by miracle her child is resting in His mother's arm. Wherefore it is that there was no pain or pang of childbirth, as St. Gregory puts it, "Alone amongst the daugh-ters of Adam who were mothers, Mary was free from the curse of labor which weighs upon every woman giving a child to the world.

ABSOLUTE SINLESSNESS

A third privilege of Mary, accorded because of her being the Mother of God, is her absolute sinlessness. On

15c. Postpaid

Halt ! Who Goes There ? Wilfred Meynell, ! Every reader of "Aunt Sarah and the War." will want to read this book. Paper Cover.

60c. Each Postpaid);

essy Conway. By Mrs. James Sadlier, awthorndean, By Mrs. Clara M. Thompson, traw-Cutter's Daughter, The, by Lady Fullerton lerchant of Antwerp, The, By Hendric Conscience, archant of Antwerp, The. By Hendrick Conscience. ady Amabel and the Shepherd Boy. By Elizabeth M. Stewart. Mesaliance. By Katharine Tynan. Lightness of touch, agreeable and amusing people, a pretty plot are all here, as always, in afnew novel by Katharine Tynan. Iemorials of Robert Hugh Benson. By Blanche Warre Cornish, Shane Lealie, and other of his friends. A beautiful tribute to Father Benson by his friends. The book contains a number of ancedotes and notes. Deer Jane." By Isabel Cecilia Williams. A simple tabe very pleasandly toid. It is refreshing in its simple pathos and expression and true feeling. All who enjoy a clean, wholesome and stirring tale ought to read 'Deer Jane."

ORDER NOW Our Stock is Limited The Catholic Record LONDON, CANADA