WHO IS BRUSSILOFF?

Cousin Declares That He Is Really Sir Hector Macdonald.

Sir Hector Macdonald.

"When a man is dead, then he's done for," runs the old ballad, but there are a few who do not come under this generalization. We have had the famous Dauphin of France, titular King Louis XVII., who is said to have escaped from the deadly. Temple, and to have lived in America or elsewhere as various people. And two novelists took the idea as bases for interesting novels. We recall news items how Oscar Wilde did not die in France, but was buried in effigy, and lived to find life anew, hidden away. The mystery of Marshal Ney is an old story. And there was Hector Macdonald, who has reappeared in the person of more than one noted military leader; especially lately, he has been identified with General Brussiloff.

There are, then, men who simply will not stay dead. Will not stay dead. The story of Brussiloff, while the reverse of probable to the story of Brussiloff, while the reverse of probable to the story of Brussiloff. A quiet wedding took place in Parkdale Methodist church, Toronto, on Wednesday, November 15th, when Clara Louise Hawley and Noble J.

united in marriage by Rev. V. H.
Emory.
Mr. and Mrs. Watson are both well known in this city.

Brussiloff, while the reverse of probable, is still interesting enough to be reproduced. A writer recently gave out an interview with a resident of Gotham who said she was a cousin of the supposedly dead Macdonald. In this the identity with Brussiloff was put forth. We learn.

The legend of Sir Hector Macdonald is one of the strangest and most commantic in modern history. Charged charges dismissed.

Officially, General Sir Hector Macdonald is dead and buried in a little cemetery outside of Edinburgh. His wife remarried many years ago.

Tradition has it, however, that the suicide in the Paris hotel was not Sir Hector, but a traveler in an adjoining room. Seeing at once the opportunity, Sir Hector, according to the story, changed clothes with the corpse, and, in his new identity, departed unsur-ected. Like the man in Arnold Bennett's story, Sir Hector went forth into the world with his life to use as he liked.

The legend, which was previously hazy and unconfirmed, takes on new life in the words of this Mrs. Taylor, Macdonald's cousin. The reporter asked a number of questions, trying to shake her belief in the identity of the hero of the eastern front but without any success. The account states:

'T am absolutely certain," she

THE WHOLE BODY NEEDS PURE BLOOD

The bones, the muscles, and all the organs of the body depend for their strength and tone and healthy action on pure blood.

on pure blood.

If the blood is very impure, the bones become diseased; the muscles become enfeebled, the step loses its elasticity, and there is inability to perform the usual amount of labor. The skin loses its clearness, and pimples, blotches and other eruptions appear.

Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure blood. It is positively unequaled in the treatment of scrofula and other humors; catarrh, rheumatism, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, that tired feeling. Be sure to get Hood's and get it today. All druggists.

Of illimitable prospective wealth, Captain Guinness has been blessed in many other respects beyond the ordinary lof of men. He is very good to look at—a fine specimen of manhood, with a frank clear-cut face and a sensible head set on sturdy shoulders. As an oarsman his name is a household word, and he is, besides, a good shot and a skilled yachtsman. He is a member of Parliament for South-east Essex, and was formerly member for the Haggerston division, one of the poorest parts of London. He has also served on the London Education Committee. He served in South Africa during the war. Thus it will be seen that he is dowered with the gifts. As a politician he is a strong Union ist—an Iriahman, if a Unionist, is usually a strong one—but his frank, cheery, breezy personality makes him popular with men of all parties. For his character is a remarkably fine one. He is a thorough man of business, but his kind-heartedness and munificence are proverbial. He is a man of wide culture, and is Chancellor of Dublin University. His wifned is both keen and discriminating. Among his interests art and art collecting are preeminent, and his family shares these interests. His London house, 5 Grosvenor place, is literally packed with art treasures. So is Elveden Hall, his place in Suffolk.

'Sir Hector was a small man, stockily built. Gen. Brussiloff is of the same figure. In his character of Russian general, Sir Hector has grown a moustache, but it does not make his features unrecognizable.

'Many people who did not know of Sir Hector have sommented on the queer and extraordinary circumstances connected with the rise of the Russian commander. It is odd, to say the feast, they point out, that a man in supreme command of one of the greatest offensives of the war should be of a previous history totally unknown.
