THE MAN WHO WORRIED.

Chicago Times-Herald.
"O, if I might put grief away,
And bid adieu to care."
The man who worried sighed one day.
"The world would be so fair!
But peace avoids my yearning breast,
And happiness goes by—
Ah, shall I ever find the rest
I long for ere I die?"

"Why grieve?" the sage who heard replied.
"Has not your toil availed?
The ones you love are by your side,
Where have your efforts failed?
I see around you luxuries
That many a man would deem
The rich and resplendent dream."
Of such enmeshing dream.

"My efforts have been fairly paid,
My wishes are not alone
From errors I myself have made,
Or chances that are flown—
But there's my neighbor. Day by day
He mounts—his fortunes grow
I can't drive my gloom away
While he outstrips me so!"

KILLED HIMSELF

Because he Could not Kill the King of Italy.

Strange Letter Left by Anarchist Who Suicided in New York.

New York, July 31.—Ten days ago an Italian in Paterson, N. J., Carbone Speranza laid down his life and so absolved himself from his pledge to kill King Humbert, of Italy. He killed Giuseppe Pessina, and then took his own life. It was said that he held high place in the Mafia. The two men quarrelled and Speranza shot Pessina and blew out his own brains. A very strange letter was found in the murderer's pocket.

In the letter which Speranza had prepared he set forth that he was chosen by his anarchist comrades to kill the King of Italy, but that, owing to the fact that he was in this country on the date set for the attempt at assassination, he could not fulfill the obligation.

"This is not of my bidding," wrote Speranza, "but the good and brave society wills it. On Feb. 2, in Italy, it was my lot and my order to kill the king. My number came out in America, and I could not do it. They gave me liberty, but ordered that the will of the society must be obeyed. 'They have said that because I was in America, that I could do nothing, but I will show them that I do not talk only. Companions, either renounce the society or in silence obey the oath of blood.'

NOW A DAWSONITE

Former Chatham Man Who has Been Some Time in the Klondike.

Is Largely Interested in Several Filing Claims up There—What He Says.

The Toronto Globe says: Excellent reports regarding the conditions prevailing at Dawson are brought by Captain M. D. Campbell, (formerly of Chatham), who is staying at the Walker House. He arrived in Ontario a few days ago from the great mining city, where he has spent the last three years. He went to Dawson with a party from the neighborhood of Oshawa, but the others did not go into mining with him. Captain Campbell has worked hard since he went out, and has done very well. He is the owner of several claims in the Bonanza Creek district, and his present trip is to enlist the assistance of capital for the purpose of developing these properties.

In an interview Captain Campbell said: "Dawson is in fine shape now, and its prospects for the future are of the brightest description. Business is active, the population is increasing, and the city is settling down to a permanent basis more and more every day. The mining industry is, of course, predominant and the total gold output this year is estimated at $20,000,000. The best of order is maintained, both in the city and in the surrounding country, and life and property are as safe there as in Toronto. As far as I know there are no serious grievances agitating the miners. Complaints are occasionally heard, but these may be traced in nearly every instance to persons who have been disappointed in their mining ventures.

"The great drawback to the development of the country, from a Canadian point of view, is the fact that the majority of the inhabitants are aliens. There are several thousand people up there, but comparatively few of them are Canadians. It seems unfair that Americans should drain the country of many millions of dollars' worth of gold every year, while Canadians take out only a small amount. If the people of this country realize what opportunities there are for making a comfortable livelihood they would swarm into the Klondike district. Canadian capital, too, might well be employed in mining undertakings around Dawson. Any man with a fair amount of capital can double his money there, provided he is willing to work. The climate is agreeable enough during half the year, and during the other half it is tolerable. Dawson is in many respects a modern city, and the inhabitants enjoy many privileges which go to make life comfortable. There are good streets, fine lights, pure water and other conveniences common in the great cities of the present day. The outlook is magnificent, and there need be no fears as to the prosperity of Dawson."

The Johnsons of Chicago directory note number 5,750, and have a clear majority of 1,350 over the Smiths.

INSPIRED BY DREAMS

TRIUMPHS OF THE BRAIN ASLEEP OVER THE BRAIN AWAKE.

Dramatic Achievements That Owe Their Being to the Mysterious Workings of the Mind Under the Subtle Influence of Slumber.

There are numerous authentic cases in which, inspired by a dream, a person has achieved in sleep something that he had utterly failed over when awake and certainly more than one where an artistic triumph has resulted. No doubt, too, there have been instances of the kind where the mystery of such an achievement has remained an irritating problem, as very nearly happened in respect to an artist whose pictures sold well and whose genius for color combinations was considered as astonishing as his output.

The painter used to tell the creepy story of how, going into his studio after breakfast, he would often stand spellbound at the fact that some supernatural "double" had been hard at work upon his canvas during the night, more than once obtaining evidence in the way of colorings that he had strained after for days in vain. Here was something to make the strongest brain reel.

As it continued at intervals after he had tried locking the studio door and placing the key under his pillow, the effect can be better imagined than described, and it was only a chance accident that at length burst the bubble. He got up one morning to find his dressing gown streaked with a dry carmine pigment, and fragments of the same material lay strewn about his easel below. Impelled by a dream, he had gone down there in the night to paint, trodden upon the pigment, and, automaton-like, picked up the pieces before retiring again. And precisely the same thing is known to have happened to a well known worker in mosaics some years ago. His mind continued to work out schemes after his body had "struck," and he would proceed to his workroom and arrange designs, the effect of which simply stupefied him next morning.

At least one enduring piece of music owes its inspiration and production to a dream in the same dramatic way. The singular distinction, in fact, is claimed for several. It occurs at the end of a famous Russian opera. For weeks the composer had struggled with his finale and had all but given it up in despair. The spirit of a certain night danced vaguely down the overworked brain, but always eluded him when he went to set it down for the orchestra.

One night, as he lay asleep, it came to him, gradually distinct. He dreamed that it was an accomplished fact on paper. Events showed that he must have gone downstairs, played it triumphantly over on his organ several times, and then written down the chords that had caused him so much anxiety. Next morning the score sheets were found neatly dotted and the finale a great success; but, although his wife had heard the organ going and even remembered the tune played, the composer himself could only recollect the dream itself and was absolutely at a loss to account for the position in which he was found—fast asleep over the keys. The brain had succumbed immediately the dream inspiration had taken a practical shape.

Equally dramatic, again, is the story often told of a brilliant musician who had written a song which he could not induce any music publisher to risk publishing. The fact had preyed on his mind. One night he dreamed that he had written a pathetic letter to a popular singer, inclosing it with his scornful masterpiece, walked all the way to the vocalist's house at Hampstead and pushed his envelope through the door for him. He recollected little of it next morning, not having occasion to miss his manuscript, and stoutly denied his landlord's assertion that he had left his bedroom and gone for a nocturnal stroll. Shortly afterwards, however, he was astonished at receiving a check and a ticket for a concert, and then, especially when he heard his own song rendered at the concert, it all flashed back to him. He had unconsciously acted upon his dream—owed his stroke of luck purely to a somnambulist inspiration.

It goes without saying, too, that the most humorous things are occasionally done by persons who retire to rest with a fixed intention for the morrow in their minds and are discovered working out the scheme in their sleep. The writer knows a gentleman never suspected of acting upon inspirations evolved in his slumber—who had laid in a stock of paints, with which he intended to decorate his rooms after a pattern not yet decided upon. Some fantastic notion, presumably, must have presented itself as he slept. All unconsciously he proceeded downstairs in the small hours, mixed all the colors together in a bowl and started to daub the doors and walls with considerably more determination than taste. The result was a polychromatic chaos, to say nothing of a bad shock for the gentleman, who sprang out of his dream at the sound of a cry from his startled wife.

Does Away With Steeple Climbing. It has remained for a Frenchman to discover a new use for the captive balloon. M. Letorey, a French architect, has applied such a balloon to the cleaning and decorating of cupolas, high towers, roofs and monuments.

According to a French exchange, the balloon is raised or lowered from a wagon by a winch and is steadied by stays from the side of the envelope. It has two platforms, one on the top, the other underneath, which communicate by means of a ladder up a central tube. The balloon scaffold, as it is called, is claimed to be useful and safe in many operations, such as now require the services of steeple climbers. It is also adapted for a clear wireless telegraphy, as an aerial station.

What Is It?

A man who has been running a race with steam and electricity for years, finds himself suddenly stopped. It seems as if a cold hand clutched his heart. His brain whirled; he can hardly see. "What is it?" he asks himself as the attack passes.

If his question meets a right answer, he'll be told that his seizure is a warning to pay more attention to his stomach, which is already damaged by irregular meals and rich foods.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It eliminates from the blood disease breeding poisons, makes the blood rich and pure, and furnishes a foundation for sound, physical health.

"About ten years ago I began to have trouble with my stomach," writes Mr. Wm. Connolly, of 333 Walnut Street, Lorain, Ohio. "It got so bad that I had to lay off my other two and three days in a week. I have been treated by the best doctors in this city, but got no help. Some said I had cancer of the stomach, others catarrh, others dyspepsia. Then I wrote to you asking for the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' These medicines I have taken as directed, and I commenced to get better from the start, and have not lost a day this summer on account of my stomach. I am up-top, and better than I have for ten years."

Keep the bowels healthy by using Dr. Pierce's Pellets. They don't gripe.

ALT. GETHER INCORRECT!

The Statement That There Was Indecent Haste in Filling the Tilbury Pulpit Unfounded.

An article which Mr. Planet copied from a Detroit paper the other day relative to the vacancy in the Presbyterian pulpit in Tilbury, appears to have been sensationally exaggerated in some respects and altogether incorrect in some others. While it is true that some rather warm words were uttered at the late presbytery meeting respecting the necessity for a special meeting to deal with the Tilbury matter, none of the speakers intended to reflect either on Rev. Mr. Johnston or the Tilbury congregation. Mr. McPhail, the late pastor, has been absent for some time on leave through ill-health. As there was no chance of his resuming his labors on the close of his leave, he tendered his resignation to the Presbytery. This was considered on July 10, and the congregation voted to accept.

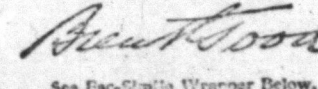

As a result a congregational meeting was held at Tilbury and Messrs. Stewart and Forbes appointed to wait on Presbytery. At the same meeting the feeling of the congregation was taken regarding a successor to Mr. McPhail. The feeling was unanimous in favor of Mr. Johnston, who is at present filling the vacancy. The reason for this test was that Mr. Johnston had a call elsewhere and the congregation wished to give him an assurance that they were all anxious that he should remain with them. On July 21 the Presbytery accepted Mr. McPhail's resignation and the pulpit was ordered to be preached vacant. The article from Detroit was altogether in error in saying a call had been extended to Mr. Johnston, and that some claim there was undue haste. There has been no call and no haste. There has been no attempt or desire on anybody's part to supplant Mr. McPhail. The pulpit was preached vacant last Sunday, and in due course the congregation will undoubtedly give a call to Mr. Johnston, who is a clever and capable preacher, but it is not known yet whether Mr. Johnston will accept, because he has also received calls from two or three other points. It is too bad the few warm words uttered in Presbytery should have been made a foundation for a sensational report about underhand work in Tilbury. There was nothing of the kind. The matter of fact Mr. Johnston was not seeking the call at all. The congregation had to look for a successor to Mr. McPhail, whose return was out of the question, and was only natural they should turn to a pastor who had so acceptably filled their pulpit.
