The Evening Chit-Chat

By MISS CARRISON

Which would you rather have arranged card party or occasional especially arranged card party are their biggest concessions to formal hospitality. But in informal hospitality they fairly revel.

The husband is always free to bring home a guest whenever he wishes—using discretion, of course—the wife's women friends feel free to drop in at any time, and the children frequently bring their young friends to the house.

A guest here does not disturb the family routine in the least. He shares the family fare. He never feels that he is in the way at all. On the man's night out the well-known guests are sometimes invited into the kitchen, to join the family circle there while the dishes are being disposed of, and many a young bachelor has even hugely enjoyed the joke of donning an apron and helping out.

As to the ways and means, the housemother says: "We usually have plenty to eat in the house, and plenty for four can generally be expanded to enough for five. For the occasions when my fare needs 'eking out' I keep a stock of canned vegetables and soup and preserves.

"If we run short of anything, we laugh at it together, and the novelty of this treatment of the situation usually pleases the guests.

"Hospitality has been one of the greatest pleasures of our married life, and I think it is just because we made up our minds at the beginning to enjoy our friends in a simple way and never to insult them by letting our entertainment of them become a burdensome duty. If we lost any friends in this way, we felt they would hardly be friends worth keeping.

To quote the poet, "Them's my sentiments, too," and I wish they were more folks."

These people almost never entertain formally. A weekly "afternoon

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence to be held strictly confidential. Address Dr. R. E. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores and regulates the womanly functions, abolishes pain, puts the finishing touch of health on every weak woman who gives it a fair trial.

It Makes Weak Women Strong, Sick Women Well.

Fads and Fashions.

The vogue of mashes becomes every day, more emphatic.

Uncurled feathers of every description appear on hats.

The white corduroy skirt seems likely to be a fall favorite.

French fashion prophets say that jade jewelry will be much worn.

Golden brown and tan are favorite colors for automobile and travel coats.

There are indications that the dove-cottared blouse is going to be fashionable.

Dancing skirts are short, only those for the most elaborate evening occasions having trains.

Striped silk for hats and hat trimming, neckwear, amousters and parasols are very modish.

Nerves Are Exhausted

And nervous prostration or paralysis is creeping steadily upon you.

You hear of people suddenly falling victims of nervous prostration or some form of paralysis. But when you get all the facts of the case you find that they have had months or years of warning.

They haven't slept well. There has been frequent attacks of nervous headache. Digestion has failed. They have been irritable, easily worried and excited and have found memory and concentration failing.

Had they but known that these symptoms tell of exhausted nerves or had they realized their danger they would have resorted to the feeble, wasted nerves by use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great restorative treatment cures by forming new, rich blood and by substituting the wasted nerve cells. No medicine is more certain to prove of lasting benefit to the system. 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50; at all dealers or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Increasingly popular for the ornamentation of the collar.

Hemstitching is a favorite touch in new French fashions, and its most prominent use is in neckwear.

The willow plume seems to have had its day and probably will make its final exit with the summer.

Silk embroidery onilet net, in rich Oriental colorings, is a new trimming note, and laces of all kinds are excellent.

The vogue for waists matching the suits, giving the effect of a three piece costume, continues to be as strong as ever.

Black and white effects generally, with gowns in mauve, in white and dusky gray, are all seen worn with large black hats.

New tailor-made skirts appear in many mixtures: serges, chevrons and double-faced cloths. A few are shown in satins and velvets.

Many new coats are rather plain, but only trimming consisting of large collars, cuffs and pocket flaps. Belts are frequently added.

Nearly all new coats have large collars, and the newest have the long-pointed effect, simulating a hood and finished off with tassel.

Soft materials, such as crepe de Chine, satin, chiffon, taffeta, voiles, civet and novelty fabrics are much employed for afternoon frocks.

Many of the smartest new suits are at away in front a few showing the ostillon back, with the coat just reaching to the waistline in front.

Femininity seems to have gone quite mad over buckles, particularly those intended for shoes, and these are often chosen to match belt buckles.

Practically all the new coats are made full length and cut on straight lines. They are made up in pongee, off-finished taffets and rubberized silk.

The large collar-revers and deep wrap-back cuts are much in evidence in new jackets. Quite a number have skirts trimmed to correspond with the jackets.

Blind Trout in Frozen Lake.

Fourteen years ago rainbow trout were put into the Sagistalee, a lake lying at an altitude of 6,000 feet above the sea, in the Bernese Oberland, not far from the Faulhorn. The fish are said to have bred in the lake, but two-thirds of those caught are more or less blind. As the lake is frozen an average for eight months out of the twelve, and the ice covered deeply with snow, the London "Fishing Gazette" suggests that the complete darkness which reigns below is the cause of the blindness, but Dr. Hofer, the great authority on fish biology, is of opinion that it is more likely to be caused by eye-parasites, which are often found in lakes. He says an examination of the trout would soon settle the point.

The American Post.

In Great Britain, which we have called slow, ultra-conservative, deficient in snap, hustle, enterprise, the postal service really serves the people. Practically everything under eleven pounds is mailable.

To-day, if an American wishes to send a package by mail, he must keep it below four pounds in weight.

Under cover of the theoretical argument that it is Socialism for Government to "go into express business," the private interests of the railroads and express companies have been permitted to overcharge the American public to the tune of billions—Chicago Daily Tribune.
