Without Once Shifting Gears
4370 Miles

In 7 days and 7 nights
In High Gear

4370 Miles Without Stopping the Engine or Shifting the Gears

This is a record-breaking non-stop performance recently given by a stock Model 90 Overland in a special test conducted in the United States—State of Oklahoma.

Sailed in high gear, this car was driven for seven days and seven nights, over roads both good and bad, through weather both good and bad, a daily average of 624 miles—without a single stop.

Model 90 owners (there are 175,000 of them) naturally take pride in this performance. But their pride is of an earlier origin than this—for they have had the opportunity to test this unusual car by personal experience under the varying conditions of every-day demand. You, too, will be proud to own an Overland Model 90.

Pawnbrokers in Great Britain issue about 200,000,000 pledges a year.

Under ordinary conditions 10 inches of snow yield one inch of water.

The strength of the United States in potential military man-power is estimated at 19,000,000.

Eight hours for sleep, eight hours for work and eight hours to spend the money.

Lord Allenby tells a good story, says a London paper. When a Canadian soldier heard that the ex-Kaiser had been at Bethlehem, he remarked: "You bet the shepherds watched their flocks that night."

A blacksmith of Rotterdam was overcome with joy on hearing that he had won forty thousand dollars in a lottery that in his excitement he hit his pipe with his ticket, and was unable to prove his claim.

At one time it was the fashion in the Russian army to compose regiments of men having the same features. In a regiment called Paulovsk, formed by the Emperor Paul, all the men had turned-up noses and, therefore, resembled him. Another regiment were all marked with the small-pox.

Gold and silverware to the value of 200 pounds was stolen from the window of Montague & Co., jewellers, Kensington, G.B. A respectably dressed man threw a half brick, wrapped in sackcloth, through a large pane of glass, seized what he could reach through the hole, and ran off. He had escaped in the crowd before the astonished assistants could reach the door.

Boston baked beans out of golden pots were on the table at the luncheon given in Boston to the King and Queen of the Belgians. Two gold pots were made for the occasion and were presented to the royal visitors after the meal. They were fashioned after the ordinary bean pot, and were about six inches in height and eight inches in diameter.

Of the eleven members of the new Ontario Government, nine are clean shaven, one wears a moustache, and one a moustache and Van Dyke beard, the latter clipped so close as to be hardly discernible in the newspaper cuts. Uttrage to say, the sole bit of beard among the eleven belongs to the only lawyer of the number, Attorney-General Raney. Is the bewhiskered farmer a segment of the imagination?

At Portsmouth, N.H., an improvised still in which inmates of the naval prison there have been distilling liquor from apples, raisins and prunes, was discovered by members of the Prison Welfare League recently. The still had been set up in an unused mess hall. It was made principally of coffee cans. A small quantity of the drink and supplies of its ingredients were found. Officials announced that they would conduct a hearing in an effort to place responsibility for the construction of the outfit. Five hundred men are now confined in the prison.

Chicagoans who have recently returned from the Hawaiian isle of Mauna Loa, tell of an unprecedented demand for olivines, the diamond-like crystals found in the lava of the great volcanoes. These are known as Hawaiian diamonds, and are of various colors, brown, yellow and scarlet, as well as clear crystal, and Hawaiian legend has it that they bring good luck to the wearer. With the after-war demand for jewels continually on the increase, this, together with the fact that the recent tremendous eruption caused little damage, has put a superstitious premium on the stones.

Here is one London (G.B.) police surgeons tests to determine the oft-disputed question as to whether a person is drunk:

Walk a straight line, heel and toe, without swaying.

Pick up a piece of paper from the floor while standing on one foot.

Say the words "tonalities," "artillery," "British Constitution" and "pussyfoot" without a recurrence of the "sh" sound as in "alsh."

"The prisoner did these things, but not satisfactorily," explained the surgeon after recounting his "tests" before a court trying a man on a charge of drunkenness. "I doubt whether I could pass that examination, any time; the case is dismissed," commented the Judge."

Free Masonry Flourishing

THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

From different Masonic centres of world come reports that during past year the different branches Masonry have flourished as never in their history. Lodges, piers, and Preceptories, have been to the limits of their capacity in conferring degrees. Yet with this work, never before has Freemasonry been as harmonious and perous, and its beneficence has been co-extensive with the calls of spring and distress.

Masonic writer has truly said: "Institutions of Masonry, differing in all others, make no public display of their philanthropy, no extravagant claims for their beneficence, 'as the dew of Hermon, and as dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion, for there the Lord commanded the Blessing.'" As dew distilled in the shadow of it, lingering on the rose to be ed by the rays of the rising sun, the effulgence of the diamond the prismatic tints of the rainbow, and adds to its aroma and queenly beauty, so it is that the human heart, when touched by the divinely ordained principles of this institution, develops and energizes the noble impulses and inspirations of the soul."

Freemasonry inculcates patriotism—love of country, love of the flag, and love of freedom. There is no taint of evil in Masonry. Its temples are dedicated to love and charity, and still retain the master ideas of ages old; still rear their proportions a perpetual rebuke to tyranny, and always a stronghold of rectitude and justice, catching glints even through the quagmires of the superstition of heathen nations, or the jungles of obscure faiths, of that celestial light that shall endure for ever.—The Masonic Sun.

Mary, Queen of Scots, Letter.

Among recent donations to the manuscript department of the French Bibliotheque Nationale, is a letter dated June 21, 1566, from Mary Queen of Scots to King Charles IX. of France. In this letter, written from Carlisle, the Queen implored King Charles to help her, and complained of having been treated "with greater indignity than ever was shown not merely to a queen but to a gentlewoman, and not only rudely, but so as to endanger life."

Household Notes.

Never take the lid off the kettle while dumplings are cooking.

A washable cotton rug is a comfort in the up-to-date kitchen.

The hanging tenderloin should be cut crosswise of the long fibers.

Try dipping the French fried potatoes in oatmeal before frying.

Pure alcohol is better than gasoline for cleaning white kid articles.

Orange jelly is a convenient sweet to have on hand in large quantities.
