Film Version of Stage Hit "Sun Up" at Nickel

A picture of undoubted import to this year's motion picture contributions is "Sun-Up" which comes to the Nickel Theatre today. It is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, and was directed by Edmund Goulding.

Goulding is well known as a writer and scenarist. He has written the best seller "Fury," several of the starring vehicles for Mae Murray, and is co-author of "Dancing Mothers," one of the most successful plays now running in its second year in New York.

"Sun-Up," as conceived for the stage by Lulu Vollmer, created a sensation on the stage in New York and on tour with Lucille La Verne playing the part of "Ma" Cagle, the same role she interprets in the screen version. According to advance reports the screen version is even more powerful in its dramatic sweep than the stage play.

Those two favorites, Pauline Starke and Conrad Nagel are featured in leading roles. Nagel plays the part of the lawless mountain boy to whom understanding comes through contact with the outer world gained during the war. Miss Starke is his sweetheart, and is said to give her finest and most sympathetic performance in an exceedingly difficult role.

George K. Arthur gets away from the type of role he has been playing as the "stranger." He characterizes an army deserter who is sheltered by "Ma" Cagle during her son's absence in the army.

Other members of the cast are Arthur Rankin, Sam De Grasse, Edward Connelly, and Balfour Beckwith.

"The Nightcap"

CASINO THEATRE TO-NIGHT.

A crowded house witnessed the performance of The Hopkins Players at the Casino Theatre last night and were thoroughly delighted with the performance, and players. Every seat was occupied and both boxes filled.

"Spring Cleaning" has made a fine impression on our theatre goers, and Manager Harkins has decided to repeat it at the matinee a week from Saturday. "The Nightcap" will be put on, and will be the bill for the remainder of the week. "The Nightcap" is a mystery play of high nerve tension. Thrills pile up in one of the finest mystery plays the stage has ever had. Insoluble mystery enshrouds "The Nightcap." It is enthralling, gripping, replete with invention and ingenuity, suspense and surprise. It is a play for eye as well as ear. It is cast to the full strength of this excellent company. Mr. Selman, Mr. Neilson, Mr. Bliss and Miss Deane, carry the weight of the play and a fine performance is assured.

THE ROYAL STORES, Limited

Well, if the little fox cubs, Bushy-tail and Slyboots, were delighted at having solved correctly Old Mr. Dog's Cross Word Puzzle, as I mentioned in the last story, you can imagine how excited the Circus Elephant became when he saw his name in the little checkboard squares. He had been too busy tending the baby elephant to work out the puzzle the night before, but on seeing the answer in the Bunnybridge Bugle, he trumpeted with delight. Then picking up the baby elephant with his big strong trunk, he did a fox trot and an elephant jig around the log cabin. "Guess I'll call up Little Jack Rabbit," and the big circus animal picked up the telephone and shouted:

"One, two, three, Happy Bell, Rail Fence Corner, Clover Dell. Little rabbit's Bramble Patch. Tippy tap and draw the latch!"

The next minute the bunny boy enquired:

"Who is calling Little Me, Quickert quick, one, two, three!"

"Your old friend, the Circus Elephant," replied that obliging fellow.

"Did you see my name in Old Mr. Dog's Cross Word Puzzle?"

"Did you see Mother's?" shouted the little rabbit, too excited to answer the old elephant's question.

"The very first thing," he replied. "Right on the top line."

"Reddy Comb brought the paper early this morning, but I had already guessed every word and every name," went on the happy little bunny. "I could hardly sleep last night. I woke up this morning before Chirping Sparrow twittered from the Shady Forest. Dear me, I could hardly wait for the Bugle to come."

"Well, I must hang up," said the Circus Elephant. "I've got a lot to do today. Mrs. Daisy Duck, Uncle John Hare's kind housekeeper, is coming over to iron the baby elephant's bibs. I washed them in the wooden tub, with a rubby rub rub and a dubby dub dub, but I'm a poor hand with the iron. So she's going to help us, thanks to kind Uncle John Hare, who will motor her over in his Bunny-mobile."

He did a fox trot and an elephant jig around the log cabin. Just then the telephone went.

"Did you see my name in Old Mr. Dog's Cross Word Puzzle?"

"Give him my love. Goodby," added the bunny boy, and he hopped out to the flower garden where Lady Love, his pretty rabbit mother, was gathering a nosegay for the big blue china vase.

"The Circus Elephant just called me up," shouted the little bunny, as he hopped up close to mother.

Mother in the garden, picking pretty flowers, With a song upon her lips all the happy hours. You can make your mother sing, little rabbit fan. If each day with cheerful heart you help her all you can.

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that, provided, of course, the Big Brown Bear answers the little rabbit's question, for it is that nice old owner of the Lollipop Tree who is calling.

Home's Report

On the arrival of S.S. Home at Humbermouth yesterday from the Straits, Capt. Norman sent the following report to the Railway Management:—"Met very stormy weather with continuous west and northwest winds; the worst in my experience on the coast. Fishing over on the Labrador side."

The Height of Diffusion.—Six quarts of oil will cover only a square mile of sea. But have you ever let a sardine tin drip on your white flannel trousers at a picnic?—The Continent.
