NEWS OF CARDSTON.

Cardston, Jan. 10.—R. W. McIntyre, assistant engineer of the department of public works, Calgary, arrived today to spend a couple of days here. Mr. McIntyre is an old timer in the district and when last seen was swapping yarns with Donovan and Barker and the rest of the old timers' brigade.

Owing to the present cold weather herds of Indian cattle are drifting into town from the reserve (Blood) which runs adjacent to the municipality. The cattle evidently believe that the "haunts of men" are preferable to the bleak, snow drifted prairie.

Tom Brown of the Brown ranch was a passenger on today's train. "Old times in the colonies" was the theme of his conversation. This is one of the 1886 and 1887 winters. Tom avers. Of course the cattlemen raise a great big objection but the agriculturist finds it just the proper thing for fall wheat.
