No instrument is permitted in the church. The service consists of a sermon, several hymns, and concludes with a prayer by one of the brethren. It is in the latter feature of the meeting that the 'shaking' is done. The worthy brother arises, clasps his hands, and without preamble, commences to deliver a stock prayer which, judging from the heifer calves and carefully raise them. When they are about three years old, and the rapidity of his utterances, has done duty many times before. He writhes in apparent agony as he condemns the action of what he terms "the filthy rags of humanity flaunting in the soul-destroying breeze of sin." His hair becomes disordered, his garments defanged; and he does his utmost to affect his hearers. They cry "Glory!" "Hallelujah!" and throw their arms about, knocking off hats and going through a wild kind of dance, which going through a wild kind of dance, which usually ends in their falling to the floor through nervous excitement. The Germans have a story which the home-loving people love to repeat. A father, when his daughter became a bride, gave her a golden casket with the injunction not to pass it into other hands, for it held a charm which in her keeping would be of inestimable value to her as the mistress of the house. Not only was she to have the entire care of it, but she was to take it every morning to the cellar, the kitchen, the dining-room, the library, the bedroom, and remain with it in each place for five minutes, looking carefully about.

After the lapse of three years the father was to send the key, that the secret talisman might be revealed. The key was sent. The casket was opened. It was found to contain an old parchment, on which was
