

A VISIT TO EPWORTH.

BY REV. E. N. BAKER, A.M., B.D.

EPWORTH RECTORY.

I HAD always been anxious to visit Epworth, the birthplace of the Wesleys, one of the sacred shrines of Methodists. So in company with the Rev. Dr. Shaw, of Bloomington, Ill., I took the train from London, intending to visit the Wesleyan Conference, then in session at Sheffield, and from there go to Epworth.

As soon as our train started, as our custom was, we took out our guide-books to see the railway connections, and to read up the points of interest in the places we intended to visit. To our very great surprise Epworth was not mentioned. At first we were disposed to blame the publishers for neglect in leaving out the place
