

and fifty, in which over four hundred and fifty genera, species, and varieties are described as new to science.

The benefit resulting from the application of his palæontological knowledge to the solving of geological problems in this country cannot be overestimated. His untiring industry, backed by a clear perception and thorough grasp of the essentials of palæontology in its relation to geology, has given us enduring results which will carry his name down to posterity inseparably linked with those of Logan, Selwyn, Dawson, George Dawson and Billings. His scientific reputation was world-wide.

Dr. Whiteaves was one of the original Fellows of the Royal Society of Canada. He was also a Fellow of the Geological Society of London, an honorary member of the Yorkshire Philosophical Society, England, a member of the Manitoba Historical and Scientific Society, of the Montreal Natural History Society, and of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. In 1900, the honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred on him by McGill University, and in 1907 he was awarded the "Lyell Medal" by the Geological Society of London.

He was a member of the Church of England and was twice married. He leaves a widow, a son and two daughters, resident in Ottawa.

Of a generous and kindly disposition and always ready to impart information when his aid was invoked, Dr. Whiteaves was an ideal type of a man imbued with the professional spirit, striving for the best results, not satisfied with half measure, and ever urged on by the love of his work. With a keen sense of humour, well versed in literature, and an ardent admirer of all that is best in art, his companionship was sought after and much appreciated by all who were fortunate enough to be brought into contact with him. His life was indeed an example of intellectual culture founded on a sound moral basis.

His death is a national loss; the Geological Survey of Canada in particular will feel the adverse effect of his removal; his name will ever remain emblematic of all that is honourable, true and upright in a man.
