CURRENT TRADE CONDITIONS.

ONTARIO.

The lumber business could not be otherwise than quiet at this holiday season. Salesmen are off the road and no person is putting forth much effort to book orders. Inventories will receive the greatest share of attention during the next two weeks. From the conflicting reports which are heard regarding prices it is difficult to make a logical deduction. In some quarters it is claimed that certain grades of pine are being offered at a reduction, while manufacturers contend that the market is as firm as ever. If any concessions are being made they are probably confined to isolated cases where the supply of a certain grade is comparatively heavy and the holder is anxious to even up his stock before the severe winter weather sets in. The lower and upper qualities of pine continue to be in the greater favor, the intermediate grades being quite inactive. Hemlock is somewhat neglected on account of the partial cessation of building operations, but some enquiries concerning
