

"My dear friends, may I not earnestly ask everyone of you to help with all your might in satisfying this crying need of the English-speaking people of this city, before another winter is upon them, that they may no longer be compelled, as hitherto they have been, to cart their sick servants and children all over the city in search of shelter, and finding none, only to bring them back again to their own homes, where adequate isolation is quite impossible, and to spread disease and often death to their families and to the whole community?"

"It only remains for me to say, that the work of the Faculty has been carried on throughout the session with zeal and efficiency. Scarcely a ripple has occurred to disturb the perfect smoothness of its working. The students, from juniors to seniors, in their conduct and progress, have given us no cause for anxiety. The graduating class is here to speak for itself. We have put our seal upon every member of it, as fit and worthy to be entrusted with the care of human life and health, and to do credit to his alma mater.

"The great wave of loyal patriotism that passed over the country had no reason to pass us by; it took from us some of our best men, and we parted with them in anxiety, but with every endeavor to minimize to the utmost the sacrifices which the interruption to their studies would necessarily entail. Most of them are now at the front, maintaining the honor of our Canadian soldiery. One of them, Mr. E. P. O'Reilly, of Hamilton, Ontario, now fills an honored soldier's grave in South Africa. He was a brave and honorable man, a good student, a general favorite, and gave promise of a successful career. We mourn his loss, but we are consoled by the thought that we have contributed such brave and useful men to do battle for our beloved Queen and Empire, of whose subjects there are none more loyal and devoted than those of Canada, of McGill University, and of our Medical Faculty."

After a few remarks from the Principal, Dr. Peterson, the proceedings were closed by singing the National Anthem.

ERRATA.

We regret that the following mistakes were made in setting up Dr. Bogg's paper, "Some Remarks Relative to Posterior Positions of the Occiput in Labour," which was published in the May number.

On page 347, 10th line from the bottom, "palm downwards" should read "palm upwards"; and in the next line above "face in vertex" should read "face into vertex." On page 348, 8th line from the top, "pelvic arch" should read "pubic arch."

At the Royal Victoria Hospital, only four new members have been added to the resident staff, Drs. C. T. Ballantyne, L. W. Martin, McKee, and Hiebert.
