

FUR FASHIONS.

The few patterns we exhibit for ladies' outdoor wear in winter are worthy of attention, in the matter of taste and use. The first (1) is a visiting mantlet with long points, in black astrachan, lined with silk. The second (2) is a cloth or velvet jacket trimmed with natural beaver or chinchilla, lined with silk cord. The fifth (5) is a cloak or pelisse in sea otter, with broad sleeves and lined with silk. The sixth (6) is a natural beaver or chinchilla. The third (3) is an otter cap, real or imitation, with high crown, straight border, and set off with a ribbon knot. The fourth (4) is a muff of otter or black fox, na-velvet or plush cloak, trimmed with strips of the finest furs, as beaver or chinchilla.

AN ABSOLUTE BAROMETER.

In 1870, two artillery officers, Messrs. Hans and Hermary, constructed a very remarkable absolute barometer based upon the simultaneous observation of an ordinary thermometer and an air one, whence the instrument showed variations in pressure. A skilful manufacturer, Mr. Lesperut, has succeeded in completely modifying the form of this apparatus and in rendering it much more accurate and practical. The new instrument (see figure) consists of a frame containing a circular concavity in which all the apparatus are inclosed, thus dispensing with a metallic box, the appearance of which is not pleasing. The button at the top of the frame operates the index of the Centi-grade thermometer. In order to make an observation, we move the index by means of this button and place its point opposite the liquid. After this, the lower index is moved, and a connection is made with the wire that moves with it opposite the extremity. It only remains to make a reading opposite the index needle which slides along with the wire.

The two other buttons, to the right and left, serve to fix the apparatus to the frame. These two buttons should be unscrewed in order to make the variable (760) agree with the altitude of the place, thus permitting of making an immediate observation. The plate on which are inscribed the words "very dry," "variable," and "stormy," is movable, and consequently the renewal of it is a simple matter.

Long-distance photography, it appears to us, is destined to render service to officers charged with military reconnaissances in captive or free balloons. It seems to us that it may prove useful to the explorer for obtaining accurate data in regard to inaccessible localities across rivers, at the base of precipices, or at the top of mountains.

The ST GEORGES OLD FOLKES CONCERTS, which took place last week, were vocally a great success, and so many pleasant features were introduced that it is to be hoped they will be repeated during Carnival week.

The following are the names of most of the ladies and gentlemen who took part in the concert.
