Arconas Corporation is a leading producer of innovative seating products for the medical field. With over 20 years experience in manufacturing, and using the unique technique of moulding high resiliency urethane on to steel frames, Arconas has used this high quality process in innovative ways. In the healthcare field, the company philosophy is to develop seating with a high degree of technical efficiency in a design which is non-institutional in appearance.

Arconas Corporation is a North American company covering all of the United States and Canada through representatives, and the company seeks opportunities in the broader world community. Pro Care, the firm's healthcare division, is only one part of the company which has extensive products in the corporate and institutional field. Arconas Corporation has long standing relationships with institutions such as Harvard University, the University of Michigan, cruise ship companies, the United States Navy, as well as leading corporations around the world.
